Heavy fog in the area for a number of days and nights has left all outdoor immobile objects covered with a heavy frost.

Schools, Crime, Weather Are Top News Subjects

School related news, criminal activity, weather and agriculture provided some of the top stories for the Thief River Falls area during 1979, according to a review of Times issues published during the past year.

School issues were often in the news and covered a wide area of activity from the faculty strike at Northland community college in late March and early April through budget problems and negotiations difficulty late in the year.

Northland faculty voted to strike along with other members of the Minnesota community college faculty association and were off the job from the second day of spring quarter classes until April 9. The interruption of schedule caused a number of students to enroll elsewhere and set back commencement exercises about two weeks.

School board for District 564 in Thief River Falls wrestled with a budget that wouldn't fit within percentage constraints unless dramatic cuts were made in expenditures and some adjustments made in income. Public hearings were held on budget items in February, March and April and an expenditure budget of $6,569,847 was finally approved in late June.

When it was found that expenditures for the previous fiscal year would not be as large as expected, adjustments were made to reinstate part of the items cut at earlier meetings. At the annual school election, veteran members Clyde Christensen and Wallace Sparby declined seeking reelection and Ken Wiebolt and Wallace Grovum were elected to fill their positions.

Negotiations with a number of employee groups were carried on during the year with contracts signed in early December by several union groups. Faculty and board could not reach agreement in negotiations or mediation and the Thief River Falls Education association began an advertising campaign urging the public to contact school board members and request local settlement. The board authorized a request for arbitration by its negotiating group and several weeks later submitted a request for declaration of impasse.

Criminal activity took on a violent turn with the first murder trial in the memory of local residents, prosecution of a man who fired a sawed-off shotgun at a state patrol officer and an armed robber being tracked down with a trained German shepherd dog.

Main interest centered on the trial of Paul Walter Boman for the June 11 shotgun slaying of Duane Morben in Thief River Falls. One of the state's most noted criminal defense attorneys, Douglas Thomson of St. Paul, defended Boman with the case being prosecuted by Norman Coleman of the state attorney general's office. Jury selection took four days and the trial another four days with the jury returning a verdict of guilty of first degree manslaughter. Sentencing was deferred pending a presentence investigation.

Earlier in the year Anthony Junior Gores of Euclid entered a plea of guilty to charges of aggravated assault with great bodily harm and possession of a sawed-off shotgun and was sentenced to a minimum of a year and a day in prison.

Gores had been charged with attempted first degree murder after firing a sawed-off shotgun at state patrolman Harold Blazek as the officer approached Gores' pickup

Little Miss 1979 Wishes You Contentment . . .

Happiness . . .

. . . and Love

LITTLE MISS 1979, Emilie Jean Fayette, was the first baby born in Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls in 1979. She arrived at 3:05 a.m. on January 4 and weighed six pounds, seven and one-fourth ounces. She will observe her first birthday on Friday. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Terry Fayette of Northland Village in Thief River Falls. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mike Fayette and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sugen, all of Thief River Falls.

U.S. Creates New Life For Birgit Renz-Mushel

by Ronnie Reed
Times Reporter

Birgit Renz-Mushel finds it difficult sitting in her tiny home just outside the city limits of Thief River Falls with no job to look forward to each day. And, for a mechanical draftsman from Germany, the time passes slowly since she is not able to further her career in the trade she "loves."

A stack of paper-work rests patiently beside her waiting to be completed at the start of the new year. With a $35 fee and much writing, Birgit will be able to work and also declare herself a United States citizen.

She and her husband, Chris met in Germany while Chris was in the service, she said. The date was August 19, 1978 and the two of them were watching a soccer game between the Americans and the Germans.

"The Americans had just scored another goal, and I started talking to Birgit about the game and how funny it was that the Americans were beating the Germans," Chris said.

After that first meeting, the two of them began going out together. Chris left Germany October 29, 1978 to come to the United States, while Birgit stayed behind for two months since she could not leave her job in Germany right away.

"You can't just leave a job," she said. "I had to give six weeks notice before I could quit working."

She and her husband were married the day after Thanksgiving, November 23, 1979. She could not work before she was married, she said, because she just had a visitation visa. Now that the two of them are married, she will be able to work — once the paper work is complete and after she has visited a doctor to receive a physical examination.

"We have to drive to Minneapolis just to see a doctor," she said. "It's specified on the papers which doctors you can see. The exam only costs $40 so that isn't bad. Then I'll have to be interviewed by immigration people in Minneapolis too."

It has been almost one year now since Birgit has been in the United States. The two of them stayed with Chris's parents in Crookston for one month when Birgit first arrived before moving to Bemidji where they lived for four months. She was given the opportunity to speak German twice while at Bemidji, she said, which she feels is a great accomplishment since she had not spoken it since she arrived from Germany.

"After a while, you miss not being able to speak German," she said. "A girlfriend in Bemidji told me that maybe there would be someone at the university who could speak the language, so I went there

Pennington County ADA Meets Jan. 7

Pennington county section of the American dairy association has scheduled its annual meeting to be held on January 7 at 11 a.m. at Florence's cafe. Business will include a report on spending of county ADA funds and election of officers for the coming year.

Minnesota American dairy association will be sponsoring the noon meal and all Pennington county dairymen and their wives are invited to attend.

Errors Made In Newsletter

Newsletter sent to residents of the Thief River Falls school district last week contained several errors which are being corrected in an advertisement in today's issue of the Times.

Errors involved failure to advance the experience level one year in a sample listing of 1978-79 salary schedule amounts and in listing the wrong number of years of experience in two of four examples given. The corrected table is published in the advertisement.

Three Area Men Are Charged In Burglaries

Wayne Cameron of Thief River Falls has been charged with burglary of the Gamble's store in Middle River November 14 by Marshall county sheriff's department and with two burglaries in Red Lake Falls December 23 by the Red Lake county sheriff's department.

Donald Ray of Thief River Falls was also charged with possession of stolen property and Michael Shnyder of Red Lake Falls was charged with burglary in the December 23 break-ins at Red Lake Falls.

Cameron and Shnyder were apprehended at the Red Lake Falls elevator when a burglar alarm sounded at the Red Lake county sheriff's office and four deputies and Sheriff Kermit Knutson responded. They were charged with burglary of the elevator and of Murphy's cafe in Red Lake Falls. Both were held at the correctional center in Crookston under $25,000 bond each. Donald Ray was also in custody.

Drug Education Meet Planned Here Friday

Thief River Falls area people concerned with drug abuse and interested in improved education and deterrents to drug use or sales are invited to a meeting to be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

County court judge Larry Jorgenson of Warren and Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards have agreed to be present to discuss roles of the courts and law enforcement in dealing with illegal drug use. The public is invited to bring their questions, comments, suggestions, interests and concerns to the meeting.

Mrs. Louis Carpenter, who arranged the meeting following good interest in an earlier session, stated that arrangements are being attempted to have a drug counselor in attendance as well as Judge Jorgenson and Sheriff Richards. People of all ages are encouraged to attend.

To Organize Film Society Here Tuesday

Organizational meeting of a proposed film society will be conducted in the public meeting room of the Northwest regional library Tuesday, January 8 at 4:30 p.m.

It is anticipated that the society will offer showings of 10 to 12 films a year to members of the society. Decisions regarding membership fees, types of films and scheduling will be worked out at the organizational meeting.

Anyone interested in participating in the film society is encouraged to attend the meeting.

NEW YEAR'S BABY at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls was the first of three born on New Year's day. Jason Lee Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Swanson, was born at 2:41 a.m. Tuesday, weighing six pounds, five and one-fourth ounces and being 19½ inches in length. He has a brother Jeremy Craig, who will be two in February 11. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lien and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Irving Swanson, all of Thief River Falls. Other babies born on New Year's day were a girl to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lorenz of Thief River Falls at 3:41 a.m. and a boy to Mr. and Mrs. David Hagen of Thief River Falls at 3:57 p.m.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Mortenson-Przybylski Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Yvonne Ranae Mortenson and Gordon Joseph Przybylski, both of Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows on Friday, November 23, at 6 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Ruby Knutson of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Solberg of Warren.

Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 200 relatives and friends. At the organ was John Przybylski, a brother of the groom. He played "Processional" from "Sound of Music" as the bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her mother. During the ceremony Tom Bjorkman, a friend of the couple, sang "Sure As I Am," "Standing Here," and "Lady." The bride sang "God, a Woman and a Man."

Arrangements of silk flowers, in fall colors, accented with wheat, formed the chancel setting.

The bride was attired in a white floor-length gown of bridal satin with an overlay of lace in daisy pattern. The gown, sewn by the bride's sister, Marva Green, featured a Roman collar and long, lace sleeves, gathered with satin ribbon at the wrists, forming a ruffle. Satin ribbon also accented the waistline. A coordinating headpiece of satin and lace held her double-tiered, walking-length veil. She carried a nosegay of silk orange-shaded roses and white stephanotis, backed by a white lace ruffle.

Darlene Torstveit of St. Hilaire was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor of Roxi Lindquist of Minneapolis, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Kirsten Charlson, Minneapolis, a friend of the bride; Elaine Jensen, Thief River Falls, a sister of the bride; and Diane Kruger, Burnsville, a friend. They wore solid orange, long-sleeved, floor-length gown accented at the Wrists and waistline by brown satin ribbon. They carried arm bouquets of long-stemmed orange and white silk roses complemented by dried flowers.

The groom was attended by his brothers: Tom Przybylski of this city as best man; Leonard Przybylski, Minneapolis, Dave Przybylski, St. Cloud, and Dan Przybylski, Minneapolis, as groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Richard Jensen and Dennis Green of Thief River Falls, brothers-in-law of the bride. All wore white tuxedos with white shirts and white silk rose boutonnieres. The groom's attire was in deep brown, featuring a velvet jacket accented by a boutonniere matching the flowers in the bride's bouquet.

The mother of the bride was attired in a gown of peach print styled with a smocked neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and a belted waistline. The groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of a blue-green sheer.

Following the ceremony, a buffet-supper reception was hosted in the church parlors by the mothers of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peterson served as host and hostess. Kristy and Tammy Knutson served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a white, four-tiered wedding cake surrounded at the base by fall colored leaves. The cake, a gift from the bride's former employer, Dr. Harry Schoening of Minneapolis, was baked by Mrs. Lois Bergland of Thief River Falls. It was cut and served by Marva Green and Marlene Gray. Pouring coffee were Mary Przybylski and Eileen Knutson.

Assisting the caterers as waiters were the Webelos Cub Scouts of Thief River Falls.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Rochester Institute. For the past four and one-half years, she has been employed as a certified dental technician. The groom is a graduate of Mount St. Benedict, Crookston, and St. John's university. He is employed by the Northern Lights Council, Boy Scouts of America, at Fargo, N.D.

WCTU Stresses Anti-Smoking Week Jan. 6-12

Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union (WCTU) is uniting with the National WCTU in publicizing Anti-Smoking week, January 2-12.

To inform the public of the dangers of smoking, several publications are being quoted.

Kent Sorensen, president of Micronetic Laboratories, San Jose, Calif., says "Lung cancer is one of the most preventable of diseases, yet nearly 100,000 people were expected to die of lung cancer in 1979. At least 85 per cent of those deaths were directly caused by tobacco smoke." He continued by saying, "There is more ill health in the United States attributable to smoking than any other cause."

Dr. Claude Pare of the Centre Hospitalier, Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada, is quoted as saying, "Mothers-to-be who smoke more than a pack of cigarettes daily appear to run a 75 per cent risk of perinatal mortality. The rate which carbon monoxide is stored in the fetus means that every cigarette that Mom smokes provides her unborn with two."

Barney Bratingham of Santa Barbara News Press, said: "Did you know that tobacco companies produce fast-burning cigarettes by adding various chemicals such as citrate and phosphate salts or sodium and potassium nitrate to the paper. The Fire Chiefs Association of Santa Barbara county claim 'It would be very simple to produce a self-extinguishing cigarette by just eliminating these additives.' At present there are 20 patents providing methods to produce self-extinguishers."

Santa Barbara News Press, "The California Legislature has asked Congress to ban production of any cigarette that does not self-extinguish in five minutes or less after it is discarded. Request was made by the Fire Chiefs of Santa Barbara County for a safer and better living through chemistry. Experiments have shown that a full cigarette will burn 24 minutes when placed on a flat surface and can start a fire in five minutes.

Pat Samples, Listen: "Researchers testing the amount of carbon monoxide exhaled from the breath of smokers also found carbon monoxide replaces oxygen in the bloodstream and can damage the coronary arteries."

World Health Chronicle, Geneva Switzerland: "Sidestream smoke from the lit cigarette contains more tobacco combustion products than mainstream smoke inhaled by the smoker. Sidestream smoke has five times more carbon monoxide; three times more tar nicotine, four times more benzol (a clear inflammable, poisonous, aromatic liquid), and 46 times the ammonia."

The December meeting of the local Women's Christian Temperance union was held at the Valley Home. The meeting included the Christmas program with Mrs. Clayton Mathson singing two Christmas songs. Mrs. Lester Brekke served as pianist. The devotional meditation was given by Rev. Carl Andersen, youth pastor at Trinity Lutheran church. Christmas related poems and articles were read by Valborg Hanson and Geneva Overum. The program concluded with the singing of a number of Christmas carols.

Lunch served by the members featured an assortment of Christmas breads and cookies.

Post Secondary Enrollment Up In Minnesota

Total headcount enrollments in Minnesota public and private post-secondary educational institutions this fall increased by 4,277 students, or 2.2 per cent, over fall 1978, according to preliminary figures compiled by the staff of the Minnesota higher education coordinating board (MHECB).

Enrollments this fall totaled 199,383 compared to 195,106 last year. Total enrollments at public institutions increased from 150,158 to 153,879, or 2.5 per cent. Enrollments at private institutions grew by 1.2 per cent from 44,948 to 45,504.

The figures are based on the number of students enrolled on the 10th day of class at collegiate institutions and first quarter enrollments for area vocational-technical institutes. Included are students enrolled for credit on campus either full time or part-time but not extension students.

The largest percentage increases among the public systems were recorded by the state universities and community colleges. Both were up 3.5 per cent.

Enrollments at the state universities increased from 37,909 to 39,221 while enrollments at the community colleges rose from 29,324 to 30,346.

At the University of Minnesota, enrollments increased from 55,634 in 1978 to 56,716 in 1979, a gain of 1.9 per cent. Enrollments in the AVTIs grew by 1.1 per cent, from 27,291 to 27,596.

In the private sector enrollments in the four-year colleges increased from 35,246 to 35,887, or 1.8 per cent. The private two-year colleges posted a 3.5 per cent gain, up from 1,629 in 1978 to 1,686 this fall. Enrollment in the private professional schools fell by 3 per cent, from 3,157 in 1978 to 3,062 in 1979. And enrollment in the private vocational schools declined 1 per cent from 4,916 to 4,869.

Extension enrollments for all Minnesota institutions grew by four per cent in 1979, an increase from 26,004 in 1978 to 27,053 this year.

For the board's survey, extension students are defined as those who attend classes for credit at a site other than the main campus or as part of an institution-defined extension program.

Combining total headcount enrollments and extension enrollments, the survey reported a total of 226,436 students enrolled fall quarter in Minnesota institutions, an increase of 2.4 per cent over 1978 when the total was 221,110. This 2.4 per cent increase is the same as the U.S. estimate reported by the National Center for Education Statistics.

A detailed reporting of enrollments will be published by the board this spring.

Egg Production Gains One Per Cent In U.S.

Nation's laying flocks produced 5.7 billion eggs during November, up 1 per cent from last year. Layer numbers during November averaged 289.6 million, nearly the same as a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 1,971 eggs compared with 1,956 a year ago.

Egg-type chicks hatched in the U.S. during November totaled 37.5 million, 5 per cent above last year. Eggs in incubators on December 1, 1979 totaled 34.3 million, down 5 per cent.

Nationally, the November hatch of 307.1 million broiler-type chicks was virtually unchanged from a year ago. The 289.7 million eggs in incubators on December 1, 1979 were up 3 per cent.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH illustrates the designated parking space for the cosmetology department now located in the new area vocational-technical institute on highway one east in Thief River Falls. Cosmetology department will be complete and ready to serve patrons beginning January 8, according to Arnt Aune, AVTI director. (See accompanying story in this issue)

New AVTI Facilities To Go Into Use This Month

Two new facilities in the $2.3 million addition to the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute will be ready to serve patrons at the beginning of the new year in January, 1980, according to Arnt Aune, AVTI director.

School will begin at the AVTI January 7. Since classes will resume January 3 at Northland community college, the new commons and dining room — located between Northland community college and at the AVTI, available to serve students from both buildings — will be open for food service on that date. Lon Gobell of Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls will manage the dining room.

The cosmetology department will also be completed and available to serve patrons January 8. Parking space for those visiting the cosmetology department has been designed on the south side of the AVTI building and to the right of the dining room. (See photo in this issue). The AVTI practical nursing lab is presented located at the site of the former commons at Northland community college.

New cosmetology department at the AVTI building will provide more space and facilities than those formerly found in the cosmetology department in the Lincoln high school building. Departments within the cosmetology department include a lab, shampoo room, clinic, drying room, reception room, office and storage room.

Those AVTI departments that have been transferred from Lincoln high school to the new AVTI building on Highway one east include auto mechanics, electronics, cosmetology, practical nursing, production agriculture and construction technology (a department combining all carpentry classes). Farm equipment mechanics is a new department that is included in the new facilities at the AVTI.

A list of all AVTI departments available within or through the AVTI other than those listed above includes architectural drafting; audio communications; farm management — adult (a class designed to bring the benefits of instruction in business management to farm families); auto body repair; welding; secretarial occupations; accounting; small business management — adult; sales, marketing and management; carpentry; and adult vocational education.

Presently, it is undecided what use will be made of the vacant space existing at Lincoln high school from those departments that have been transferred to the new facilities at the AVTI, according to Frank Hamerlinck, principal of Lincoln high school. And, until further action is taken by the Thief River Falls school board to resolve the matter over what is to be done with the Lincoln high school building, only temporary occupancy is being conducted in the vacant spots.

Driver education classes are conducted in the former AVTI electronics room, the auto mechanics room is used for production, vocal music classes are conducted in the former carpentry room, and some classes that were conducted in the basement of old Washington have now been transferred to one of the auto mechanics rooms formerly used by the AVTI.

Schools Reopen Here Thursday

Thief River Falls schools will open for classes at the regular time on Thursday and buses will run on schedule, according to Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools. Local schools have been closed since December 21 for the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

STEINER . . .

Christmas eve supper guests at the Harold Halvorson home were Mr. and Mrs. James Langved and family of Fertile, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Larson and family and Mrs. Donna Kvasager, Lori and Joel all of Oklee, Mr. and Mrs. David Halvorson of Bemidji and Gary and Brad Halvorson who are spending their holiday vacation at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Halvorson and Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Halvorson, Lisa and Aaron attended the Sunday school Christmas program Sunday morning at 8:30 at the Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

U. S. Creates New Life For Birgit Mushel

and found a German teacher. I told him I needed help and that all I wanted was to speak German to someone, so he talked with me. I often call my mother in Germany, too, so I can speak German, but before I know it, I'm talking in English again."

Girlfriends in Germany send tapes to Birgit, she said. And she writes many letters back home. Chris, who can understand German somewhat, speaks it only slightly.

"I write like crazy," she said. "As soon as I get a letter from someone back home, I write."

Birgit takes advantage of the small rates charged for making a call to Germany, she said. For an 11-minute conversation, there is only about a $15 charge. But calling from Germany to the United States costs a little more. A three or four minute conversation will cost about $35, she said.

Most German families are small because of the small country. Birgit has only one younger brother.

"In a way, they pay you to have children in Germany," she said. "Parents are payed $25 a month for their first child and $35 a month for their second child.

Birgit went to school for three years before she began working as a mechanical draftsman in Germany, where she designs engines and other types of machinery.

"I wanted to quit school before the end of three years," she said, "but one of my teachers pointed his finger at me and told me to stay with it and I did. I'm glad that he did now. I love that type of work. You can move around. I don't think I could ever be able to do something like type for eight hours a day."

Birgit's first project was a small model of a device used for measuring cars. Her boss told her what he wanted and she designed it. "It was fun," she said.

She became interested in mechanical drafting after taking a class of it in school, where she learned only slightly what the trade consisted of. In Germany students go to school for nine years before they make up their minds to continue their education or to begin working. There is no true graduation from school.

"If you don't want to go to school after nine years, you work, but you won't have a chance out there without further schooling," she said. "You'll just be working at a low job with low pay."

Birgit worked a total of three years in Germany. Her first job had 2,000 employees, while the one she worked at before leaving Germany had only 300.

"I didn't think I'd like working at a small place like the one I left," she said. "But I came to really enjoy it. At a small place, you're not just a number; everyone knows you and everyone counts."

It was difficult for Birgit to leave her job, she said.

"When I told my boss I was leaving, he said, 'you can't!' and wondered if I had financial problems or if something else was wrong. When I told him I was getting married, he was happy for me but didn't like to see me leave."

In Stuttgart, the city in southern Germany where Birgit was born, there is a chance to get some type of job all the time. "You don't have to sit around and wait for one," she said. "The city is very industrialized, with the main industry in southern Germany being the manufacturing of automobiles — mainly the Porsche and Mercedes," she said.

"Mercedes is the greatest company in Germany to get a job. If you can get a job there you've got it made. You begin working there and you stay there. At 4 p.m., when a working day is over, there are cars all over. It's unbelieveable."

But, according to Birgit, cars are not necessarily needed in Germany. Bus lines and trains take care of any transportation problems. Many people leave their automobiles at home, because they can get around faster without them, she said.

Young people can buy monthly tickets to ride trains, she said, and a one-way bus trip downtown costs only 60 cents.

But in the United States, people need cars, she said. In Germany it takes a short time to get where you want to go. It takes only half an hour to get to France from Stuttgart, and one and one half hours to tour the Alps. Most people travel south, visiting Switzerland, Austria or Czechoslovakia, she said.

"It's so different because you can get to a totally different country in a few hours." It's not like here where you have to drive 20 miles to see or do something different."

During the weekends travel becomes difficult since everyone wants to go vacationing in the south. People sit in their cars and wait and wait for the traffic to move. "People think it's strange if you don't go on vacation at least once or twice a year," she said.

She admits she enjoys being in the United States, however, because the country and people are different, and "it's a change," she said.

One of the greatest things she misses besides her family is the mountains which often have huge castles peeking through them, and sitting along the coast by the sea.

"I had my own little garden near my home in Stuttgart," she said. "I had so much I wanted Chris to see before he left, but there wan't time."

Birgit would like to continue with her drafting career once she is able to obtain a job in the United States, she said, although the trade would be slightly different here because full use of the metric system has not yet begun in our country. She has thought of going back to school to take classes in drafting, but eliminated the idea when she realized she had enough schooling and experience to work at a mechanical drafting job.

"Why should I start all over from the beginning when I already know what to do?" she said.

Because this is Birgit's first year without a job since she began working as a mechanical draftsman, her days are spent working on her favorite hobbies — knitting, cooking, reading, and supplying attention to the Mushel's 11-month old black Lab, Nicki.

"I've never had pets before we got Nicki," she said. "I love her and would like to get another black lab that would be registered."

In Stuttgart pets were seldom seen because of the industrialized city, and it would not be easy on the animal or the owner to try and raise a pet under crowded conditions where he would not be able to run free occasionally, according to Birgit.

Birgit's husband, Chris, who was employed by the Northwestern Bell telephone company, just recently decided to attend the AVTI in Thief River Falls to enroll in the aviation mechanics program during the winter term. So the three of them spend many of their days home until school and work begins, hunting or fishing — two new sports Birgit has come to enjoy in the United States.

The day after opening fishing season, the two of them went fishing and Chris caught an eight-and-one-half-pound walleye, he said. And Birgit caught one too — well, 'almost'.

"She had about a five-pounder on her line," he said. "He was right next to our canoe and she was trying to get him inside the canoe when we tipped over. We both laughed hard at the time but I wouldn't have been laughing quite so hard if I'd have lost my fish!"

Birgit, who also enjoys hunting, shot two ducks with one shot from her 20-gauge shot-gun Chris bought her — her first time hunting.

"I practiced a lot before I actually went out hunting," she said. "I really like hunting. A lot of people say they don't like it when they haven't even tried it. Although I'm not as excited about it as Chris is, I like going along with him. Let's just say I'm not a hunting freak but I'll check it out." (She had to forfeit one hunting excursion because of this interview, which she feels she can get along without, she said).

The one sport Birgit hasn't enjoyed since she has been away from her hometown in Germany is ice fishing.

"It's too cold for that," she said. "It's nice when you can go out in a boat in the summer and lie in the sun, get a tan, and fish all at the same time."

The winter so far here has not been too bad, as far as cold weather is concerned. And, according to Birgit, this winter is very similar to winters in Germany, while the summers there usually reach 75 degrees. Chris had warned her about the winters here before she arrived in the United States, she said. And her bundling up proved worthy when she stepped off the plane in Grand Forks January 8, 1979 in below zero temperatures. One thing that had especially astonished her was the way in which people plugged in their cars so they would start the next day, she said.

And there are numerous other things that Birgit has come to like and dislike about our country, she said. Food is one thing. She often bakes her own bread instead of buying it because she likes it crusty and chewy. She often baked it in Germany even though both bread and vegetables were very cheap to buy there. McDonald's and Hardees use to be a big deal, according to Birgit, "but you get tired of food like that," she said. Although there are a few McDonald's restaurants in Germany, most people prefer hot dogs or sausages. She was astonished too, at the price of clothing here. The all-American favorite blue jeans cost between $30 and $35 in Germany, while a fancy pair will cost $50.

There are no commercial breaks on television in Germany. Before a movie, 15 minutes of commercials are shown all at once so there will be no interruptions during the program. There are only three channels in Germany and television goes on the air at 2 p.m. showing programs for children, news begins at 5 p.m., and about 1 a.m. television goes off the air. Bills are paid monthly with a $3.50 charge for television and $1.50 for radio.

"We have programs like Columbo, Rockford Files and Gunsmoke," she said. "But the difference in the shows between here and there is that they are all in German in Germany. Sometimes they are even in French or Spanish. If they are in English, which is very seldom, they are accompanied by German words placed at the bottom of the picture.

Birgit missed seeing news of Germany when she first arrived here, she said. The stations carried nothing about her country. Her problems were solved one day while she was in Winnipeg when she learned of a German newspaper.

"I never realized there would be so many Germans in Winnipeg," she said. "I wouldn't mind going back there."

"It wasn't until I began reading the paper that I learned we had a new president in Germany. I like to keep up on news like that. You feel completely isolated when you can't hear news about your own country." She now receives the newspaper and German magazines regularly to keep up on any happenings in her homeland.

Birgit also likes driving better in Germany, she said. "People drive faster and you can get where you're going because there aren't any speed limits outside of the city. The road signs are well marked too, so people know immediately when to do things, like who has the right-of-way at an intersection and things like that. Everything just moves quicker there. People also pay $2.40 for a gallon of gasoline in Germany, so I can't understand why the people here complain about a dollar. But there are bigger cars here so people need more gas. That could be one reason."

"I wouldn't mind living in a larger city than Thief River Falls, where you could go to concerts and museums," she said. "Stuttgart was not that big, but the suburbs around it made it larger. There is nothing I really dislike about living here, except maybe the mosquitoes in the summer but I think many people would agree with me on that."

There is no shopping after 6:30 p.m. in Germany and all stores are closed Sunday. There are also no store coupons to get discounts on food, and no softball, baseball or football.

"I couldn't figure out what Chris was doing the first time I saw him cutting out a store coupon," she said.

The main sports in Germany are soccer and handball.

"We don't have cable where we are here so I can't watch many soccer games," she said. "and I miss that. But once in a while when we go to visit Chris's parents in Crookston I get to watch a game. I think they're very exciting."

Another thing found in Germany and not in the United States is socialized medicare, she said.

"People never get a hospital or doctor bill. Everything is paid through insurance, or they take it right out of your paycheck. Everything is unionized and everyone gets 26 days paid vacation no matter where they work, if they're under 18. When they're between 18 and 22, they get 20 days paid vacation, then after 22 it goes back up to 26 days paid again. And the pay during vacation time is more than regular pay earned."

Birgit, who does not enjoy the taste of American beer, chooses German wine as her beverage here. German beer, for one thing, is much stronger, she said. And not only is the beer stronger, but the coffee is preferred as black as possible in Germany, with people using one scoop of coffee per cup instead of two scoops for 10 cups like here.

Chris throughly enjoys her German cooking, she said. One of her main dishes is Schnitzel, which is pork roast sliced into small pieces which is mixed with flour, eggs, and bread crumbs. She also occasionally fixed homemade noodles. But mistakes are found everywhere in everyone, according to a comment uttered by Chris.

"The noodles usually turn out great," he said. "But last time something went wrong and we don't know what it was. At least Nicki got a feast that night!"

Birgit often makes mistakes in her speaking, too, but it doesn't bother her. She took classes in Germany to learn how to speak English for five and one half years. Many people, especially the young, learn how to speak English in Germany, she said, because there are many Americans that reside near Germany, especially near the Austria-Germany border. Even though the English language is supposed to be one of the most difficult to learn, Birgit feels it is only difficult for those who are lazy. The best method is to start from the bottom and work up, she said.

"I don't care if I make mistakes when I speak, and I know that I do," she said. "Mistakes are how people learn to do things."

The celebrations in Germany are numerous, according to Birgit, with Octoberfest probably dominating the German festivities. Octoberfest, which usually begins September 3 and lasts for three weeks, is performed to celebrate the harvest.

"It's really great," she said. "In Stuttgart there are usually six or seven beer tents — each one larger than the Thief River Falls arena," she said. "There is a band in each tent, and they all play different types of music, but the oompah music is the best. On one side of the tent there is one type of food and on the other side another type. Beer is passed around all day and various liquors are given to people to wash the beer down. It's really a nice gathering because you have both young and old just sitting together talking and celebrating."

A wine fest follows Octoberfest from the middle to the end of October, she said, after the grapes are washed. There is Fasching in February, which is similar to the Mardi Gras celebration, where people dress up and build carts and drive around the city. Christmas is celebrated somewhat differently in Germany. On December 6 children select the largest boots they can find and set them outside by their doors. In the morning the boots are filled with gifts. The Angel, Christkind, appears December 25 to bring gifts and happiness to all families. Unfortunately, the commercialized aspect of Christmas exists there like it does here, she said.

Birgit would like to do some traveling and see more of the United States someday, she said. But, since Chris will have to be in school for the next two years to complete his aviation mechanics course, it won't be until after that time.

"Chris says central United States is pretty, and so I'd like to see that. It depends where he can get a job after he completes school. We can't be picky, I guess."

So, in the meantime, Birgit will sit in her tiny home surrounded by souvenirs from Turkey and Spain and most other countries engulfing Germany. And she will share happy times with her husband, Chris, their dog Nicki, and her roommate Karen Johnson (who first introduced Birgit to life on a farm). "It was different living around all those animals," she said. "It was great!"

She plans on making some type of bookshelf to display the numerous library she has consisting of books from different areas of the world.

"This is just like one long vacation," she said. "The longest one I've ever had. I often miss my family, but Chris and I have discussed going back to Germany some day. I often ask myself what I'm doing here. It was a hard decision. You have to have someone — I could never have done it by myself."

Schools, Crime And Weather Top Stories

truck December 30 of 1978. The main charge struck patrolman Blazek in the hand holding a flashlight, causing loss of fingers.

Early in December an armed robber held up the Riverside Grocery store and left the store on foot. Police called in Roseau county sheriff's deputy Tom Wachsmuth and his German shepherd. The dog followed a trail to a house several blocks away and Scott Everett Sherman was arrested and charged with armed robbery.

Weather was a constant discussion topic from the heavy snow of winter to the spectacular break-up of the Red Lake river which sent heavy ice floes crunching and grinding downstream to the cold and wet fall and sparkling frost of recent days.

Several hundred people gathered at the power plant dam to watch the ice and debris work its way over the dam during the April 19 break-up. Small grain crops came through in generally good shape but late crops and particularly sunflowers were ravaged by wet fall weather. Heavy fog for several days at the end of the year created the heaviest hoarfrost coating in the memory of local residents.

Farmers and elevators were hit by the Duluth grain handlers strike which made it impossible to empty storage space for the 1979 crop. Hard on the heels of the strike came the extended fall season with the local sunflower crop — an increasingly important economic crop in the area — hit hard by lack of a killing frost or drying weather.

Elevators and individual farmers turned to artificial drying of the crop and a controversy arose over the amount of moisture dockage being taken at elevators. Methods of land management on the sunflower fields harvested after frost also became a concern.

Other items in the news included the Marshall county deputy sheriff's car being struck by an unidentified flying object on a highway near Oslo; local controversy over the Holiday stationstore location, parking assessment district and city zoning; demolition of Old Washington school and dedication of the new area vocational-technical institute; construction start on the city's tallest building, the six-story Riverside Terrace complex for elderly housing; defeat of the state building code in Pennington county by a vote of 820 to 25; boost of 30 per cent in farm land values; a baby being saved by CPR techniques applied by an RN hundreds of miles away from home; and a perfect 300 game bowled by Jarvis Olson of Thief River Falls.

Patrick Casey Dies Monday At Terrebonne

Patrick E. Casey, 67, a former resident of Thief River Falls died Monday afternoon, December 31, at his home in rural Terrebonne, in Red Lake county.

Funeral Mass for Patrick E. Casey will be offered Thursday at 2 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church with Rev. Lawrence Wiesler officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

The Biblical Wake service will be held tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. at the Green Funeral home where the body will repose from 4 p.m., today until 1 p.m., Thursday.

A complete obituary will be published in Monday's edition of the Times.

Study Shows State Business Position Is now Improved

Action by the legislature in 1979 improved Minnesota's competitive position in several economic areas, but more changes should be considered if the state is to strengthen its ability to vie with other states for new investment and jobs.

This is the conclusion of the Minnesota Business Partnership (MBP), which has made public the results of its study of the impact of 1979 legislation on the state's economy. The report was released in an appearance by MBP at a meeting of the Minnesota House taxes committee.

The MBP is an association of 47 chief executives of Minnesota-based corporations. Appearing on behalf of MBP were Judson Bemis, chairman of MBP and director and retired chairman of Bemis Company, Inc., and William G. Phillips, chairman and chief executive officer of International Multifoods corporation and co-chairman of MBP competitive position task force.

"The study, which was carried out during the fall, updates an earlier report made in March of this year. The studies analyze certain factors in Minnesota's economy and the same factors in some 25 other states — including Iowa, Wisconsin and the Dakotas. Factors reviewed were taxes, energy, environmental regulation, payroll costs, cost of living and construction costs.

"The 1979 legislature improved the administration of workers compensation and postponed mandated medical insurance to allow for necessary further study of this issue. These measures will help Minnesota business become more competitive in payroll costs," said Phillips.

"As a result of substantial revisions in estate and gift tax law passed during the 1979 session, Minnesota now is on a par with other states in this area," Phillips said.

The legislature's decision to index income tax rates at 85 per cent of the rate of inflation, while consistent with an MBP recommendation in the March report, fell short of action taken by five other states that indexed the rate at 100 per cent.

Positive changes in the maximum standard deduction calculation also did not equal those made by the other states surveyed. Phillips noted that Minnesota's personal income tax on persons in the $10,000 annual income range continues to be competitive with the other states studies but remains very high in brackets above $150,000.

The update also found that Minnesota ranks eighth highest of states surveyed in annual income and property taxes per $100 investment in new plants.

Minnesota's relative energy costs have dropped since the March report even though absolute costs here increased in that time period. The state now is 18th highest in electrical costs, down from 8th highest. In natural gas costs, the state has slid from 12th to 20th highest and is now 12th highest in fuel oil, compared to 5th highest previously.

MBP's recommendations to improve the competitive position of the state's economy include:

(1) Streamlining environmental-permit procedures;

(2) Establishing a hazardous waste disposal siting in Minnesota;

(3) Elimination of the cost of living escalator from the current workers compensation law;

(4) A 10 per cent across-the board reduction of individual income taxes; and

(5) A reduction of the corporate income tax on small business to six per cent on the first $20,000 of income.

"MBP plans to publish a similar update on the competitive position of Minnesota's economy following each state legislative session," Phillips said.

Marvin Profit Sharing Totals $1,551,362.

Profit-sharing distribution of the Marvin Lumber and Cedar company of Warroad totaled $1,551,362 to 918 employees this year, the largest distribution in the history of the profit-sharing plan and bringing the total in the 12 years of the plan to $7,796,069.

Company president William Marvin said the distribution was figured on sales about six per cent larger than the previous year and a payroll of $12,694,533. Employees sharing in the plan received $7.63 for each month of seniority and 11.73 cents for each dollar of covered payroll. Average amount per qualified employee was $1,690.

Jake Marvin told the employees at the profit-sharing party that the company is going to build a plant somewhere in the southern states as well as an addition to the Warroad plant, with the ground-breaking at Warroad to take place during the coming summer. The company is looking at three sites for plant location in Tennessee and Mississippi.

Challenging employees to look at opportunities, set goals and achieve them, Marvin noted that "the best kind of job security can be found in a growing and profitable company. It is not a function of a negotiated contract."

Morris Taylor, head of the company sales staff, said major new accounts had been signed in Tokyo, Japan; Tennessee, Missouri, Arizona, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Virginia, Florida, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Texas and Florida.

Census Bureau Names Director For This Area

Carole Wilson of Bagley will be district office manager of the temporary 1980 census district office in Bemidji, to be located at 1705 Highway 2 West.

Wilson's appointment and the office selection were announced by Rex L. Pullin, director of the U.S. bureau of the census regional office in Kansas City, Kansas. Pullin said Wilson will open the temporary office in January and it will remain open until the census of population and housing is completed sometime during the summer of 1980.

Bemidji census district office space was leased from the state of Minnesota department of administration.

About 520 temporary workers will be employed in the Bemidji census district at the peak of census operations next spring. Hiring for most of the jobs will begin early in 1980.

1980 census will be taken in the Bemidji district area by the mail-out-mail-back method. On Friday, March 28, 1980, the postal service will deliver a census questionnaire to each U.S. household. Residents will be asked to complete the questionnaire as of Tuesday, April 1 — census day — and to keep the form until a census taker arrives to collect it.

In this area the questionaires will be returned to the temporary census district office in Bemidji where they will be checked and processed by census workers.

Bemidji census district office will be responsible for counting all persons and housing units in 16 northern Minnesota counties. They are: Aitkin, Cass, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Beltrami, Hubbard, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau.

Wilson is one of seven census district office managers to be named in Minnesota and one of 409 to be selected throughout the nation.

She holds a bachelor of sceince degree from the University of Minnesota and has also worked as an internal auditor for a life insurance company in Minneapolis.

UND To Get Surface Mining Research Funds

University of North Dakota at Grand Forks is one of 30 institutions of higher education which have been designated mining and mineral resources and research institutes by the federal government, UND president Thomas J. Clifford has announced.

Clifford said the university was notified by Walter Heine, director of the U.S. office of surface mining, of the designation under Title III of the Surface mining and control act. The action means UND will receive federal funds and will be eligible to compete for special research grants.

The university, he said, will be awarded $160,000 over three years for scholarships and fellowships to establish training programs, and will receive a $110,000 per year matching grant for costs of operating the institute as it develops a comprehensive mining and mineral resources program.

Office of surface mining is providing $2.5 million in fiscal 1980 alone for grants to be awarded competitively to the 30 schools in the research areas of mining, mineral processing, extractive metallurgy, petroleum and natural gas, mineral economics, ceramics, exploraion, and legal and social issues associated with the mineral industries.

Clifford said much of the UND institute's work will take place in the school of engineering and mines, although professors in other disciplines may also compete for research grants.

Purpose of the federal legislation is to help the United States achieve the goal of balancing spiraling energy and minerals demands with the conservation and preservation of the nation's vital resources, Clifford said.

Governor Gives Statement On State Spending

"You may not relaize it but state spending has increased much more repidly during the past several years than individual income," states Gov. Al Quie. "General fund state spending increased by 200 per cent over the last 10 years while Minnesota non-farm personal income went up 106 per cent."

"This means the state is taking a larger percentage of your paycheck. I don't think that is the right way for a state government to function. For that reason I have proposed a constitutional amendment to limit general fund state spending," he said.

"This State spending limit proposal follows my philosophy of government — lower state taxes and limit state spending. In 1979 I was successful in guiding a tax cut bill through the legislature which will amount to $739 million in savings to taxpayers. This is the largest tax cut in the history of our state. Following that tax cut, the next logical step will be to establish a limit on general fund state spending so that you will not be overtaxed in the future.

"My proposed limit on state spending will be tied to personal income," Gov. Quie stated. "Here how it would work. Currently general fund state spending represents just over 10 per cent of non-farm personal income in the state. This proposed constitutional amendment would guarantee that general fund state spending would not rise above that per cent.

"By using personal income as the basis to determine the spending limit, we will be able to provide adequate funding for existing programs and at the same time allow flexibility to meet the changing economic times. However, when the state is asked to consider new programs we will have to take a hard look at the impact on spending.

"By restricting general fund state spending we do not want to place a financial burden upon local governments. My proposal would include an assurance that the state will not mandate new programs to local governments without providing proper funding. I believe this is extremely important, especially here in Minnesota, where we have the third highest number of state mandates in the country," the governor said.

This constitutional amendment proposal also assures that if the state collects more money from taxpayers than can be spent under the limit, any excess funds will be returned in tax rebates or other tax relief.

Finally, the spending limit could be exceeded in times of emergency. The Legislature could declare an emergency, upon the request of the governor, and exceed the limit. This would require a two-thirds vote in each house.

Minnesota won't be alone if voters choose to adopt this constitutional amendment. Twelve other states have similar provisions. Six of these states tie spending or taxing limits to personal income, while six others limit spending to the rate of growth in the economy.

"I believe this is a sound spending limit proposal that will meet the requirements of state government, not be too restrictive and yet will hold state spending in line," Gov. Quie said.

"I am asking the legislature to pass this constitutional question this year so you, the people of Minnesota, will have an opportunity to express your opinion on its at the polls in 1980. Without legislative approval, you will not get this chance. It is my hope that the legislature will afford you this opportunity."

Cattlemen To Vote In Beef Referendum

Cattlemen will register January 28 to February 6 in order to vote in a national referendum for a beef research and information order known as "Beeferendum". Producers must register with the ASCS in the county where their cattle are located and certify that they have owned cattle during the past 12 months. After a 12-day waiting period, voting will be conducted February 19 to 22. Absentee forms, for registration and for voting, will be available upon request.

If cattle are joint property, there will be one vote per entity and either the man or wife may vote. The same applies for a corporation or partnership — one vote per producing entity. If a wife or child is a bona fide cattleman independently of the family operation, he or she may vote independently.

If a majority of cattlemen who have registered vote in favor of the beef referendum, an industry-wide effort will be established to conduct beef research, provide consumer information and promotion, and coordinate foreign market development for the beef product. Twenty cents out of every $100 of receipts from cattle sales will be collected and administered by a national beef board made up of cattlemen from across the nation. Number of board members from a given state will be determined by the cattle population of that state, with the initial board having 60 members. Minnesota will quality having two representatives on this producer board.

Some Surface Mining Rules Are Suspended

Region III's office of surface mining director Edgar A. Imhoff says Washington has announced temporary suspensions of limited seclonts of its permanent regulatory program rules for surface coal mining and reclamation operations pending additional rulemaking actions. Region III encompasses Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Joan M. Davenport, assistant secretary for energy and minerals, Washington, D.C., says the immediate suspension was based on a determiniation that the rules involved may not properly reflect the surface mining control and reclamation act of 1977, or the intent of the office of surface mining.

These changes relate to the permanent regulations published in March of this year. The rules, Secretary Davenport pointed out, are being used by states to prepare their own regulatory programs which must be filed with OSM by March 3, 1980.

Davenport explained that the suspension gives states the opportunity to adopt regulatory provisions based on the language of the act rather than on the rules which will be modified. The states will be afforded opportunities to adjust their programs, if necessary, after new rules are published.

The rules suspended relate to certain operations in less than two acres; existing structure exemptions; definitions of public roads and valid existing rights; and properties eligible for listing on the national register of historic places. Other suspensions cover the definition of irreparable harm to the environment, selected bonding requirements and the treatment of acid or toxic materials.

Secretary Davenport stated that the suspension of these rules is a result of the review now going on in the office of surface mining and current litigation over the agency's permanent program regulations.

Marriage And Divorce Film At Newfolden

Marriage and divorce is the topic of "All the King's Horses", a feature film which will be shown at the Evangelical Free church at Newfolden at 8 p.m. on Sunday, January 6. Everyone is welcome to attend.

This film portrays the effects that a broken home has on everyone involved. Jack and Sandy Benson had what most people assume is a good basis for happiness — children, good health and financial security. Beginning with their courtship, the films follows through the erosion of their marriage until divorce seemed like the only solution.

UMC Schedules January 9 Alumni Dinner

Alumni, faculty, and staff from the university of Minnesota technical college — Crookston (UMC) and the Northwest school of agriculture (NWSA) are invited to the alumni dinner party to be held Wednesday, January 9, at Sullivan's in Red Lake Falls, beginning at 6 p.m. with a social hour. Dinner at 7 p.m. will be followed by a brief program at 8 p.m.

The alumni dinner party provides an opportunity for faculty and staff to renew old friendships and find out what changes are taking place in the lives of former students, according to Don Cavalier, director of alumni relations. Alumni will be given a chance to meet new faculty and find out about the changes now taking place on UMC's campus.

Representatives from most divisions will be there to briefly explain the activities taking place in their respective divisions.

Other alumni dinner parties will be held this winter on Thursday, January 17, at the Legion Club in Roseau and Friday, January 18, at the Legion Club in Stephen.

"All interested persons are welcome to all or part of the evening's activities," said Cavalier.

Hilkey Named District Heart Fund Chairman

Ernest L. Hilkey of Crookston has been named 1980 District 1 heart fund chairman for the American Heart association, Minnesota Affiliate, Inc.

Hilkey will oversee fundraising and volunteer recruiting activities for the 1980 state heart fund campaign in Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington Clearwater, Red Lake and Polk counties.

"I was very fortunate," Hilkey said. "Because of dollars spent for heart research, I was given a second chance." Hilkey underwent an arterial by-pass last summer.

A Heart association volunteer for 10 years, Hilkey also is involved with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Eagles, Elks and Crookston Lion's club. He has also served as president of the Crookston chamber of commerce and is currently vice president of the First National bank in Crookston.

The American Heart associatin, Minnesota Affiliate, Inc., is a statewide health agency and is part of the American Heart association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide voluntary health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

Voluntary leadership comes from medical, paramedical and other professional groups, and from business and lay persons throughout the state

Research, Fund Raisers Fight Cerebral Palsy

Advances in the battle against cerebral palsy, a group of disabling conditions caused by damage to the central nervous system at birth or during the first years of life, are being made by the United cerebral palsy research and educational foundation.

Dan Halpern M.D., member of the board of United cerebral palsy of Minnesota reports that UCP-funded research projects to discover the causes of cerebral palsy, coupled with improved efforts to better the lifestyles of women of childbearing age, have shaprly reduced the incidence of cerebral palsy in newborn babies.

Dr. Julius B. Richmond, surgeon general of the U.S. public health service, points out that in the last two decades the incidence of cerebral palsy in this country has been cut in half, from 20,000 new cases per year to fewer then 10,000.

For the past 25 years, the leader in the fight against cerebral palsy has been the UCPA. The battle was joined in 1950 with the formation of a research council. At that time, only $800 was allocated to research. Since then, UCP's research funding has risen to more than $1 million annually.

In 1954, the research program was transferred to the newly founded United cerebral palsy research and educational foundation. The foundation was formed to conduct an expanded program to probe the many critical areas that can cause birth trauma as well as to spur the scientific investigation into new and improved methods of managing the condition.

Dr. Halpern points out that while medical advances often are a series of small breakthroughs that add up to substantial progress, UCP is credited with many notable achievements.

Fortunately with the assistance of the UCP annual telethons, research budgets are growing and UCP expects that the occurrence of congenital cerebral palsy will be almost completely eliminated within the next two decades, Dr. Halpern says.

Headlights Required From Dawn to Dusk

If you drive to work before 8 a.m. each day and return after 4:30 p.m., you are required by state law to use your vehicle headlights, warned state patrol chief Roger Ledding of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"We are now experiencing the darkest part of the year," said Ledding, "and state law requires that headlights be used from sunrise to sunset."

Ledding reminded motorists that the headlight requirement means full headlights and that using parking lights does not satisfy the requirements of Minnesota law.

"It is very puzzling why so many drivers refuse to use their headlights at dawn and dusk," said Ledding. "With the efficient electrical systems of today's vehicles, the use of headlights does not cause any real drain of battery power."

Minnesota Egg Production Down Slightly

Minnesota's 8.8 million layers produced 173 million eggs in November 1979; down 1 million from last year. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 1,968 eggs compared with 1,905 a year ago. This 3-per cent increase in rate of lay largely offset a 4-per cent decline in the total laying flock size.

Minnesota hatcheries produced 2.1 million egg-type chicks during November, down 4 per cent from last year's hatch. December 1, 1979 eggs in incubators totaled 2.3 million eggs, up 15 per cent.

Minnesota broiler hatchings in November of 1.5 million chicks were up 8 per cent from last year. The 1.3 million eggs in incubators on December 1, 1979 gained 29 per cent.

State Certifies 38 Counselors In Dependency

First chemical dependency practitioners to meet the standards for certification developed during the past six years by the Minnesota chemical dependency association and the Minnesota association of counselors on alcoholism were awarded their certificates recently at a ceremony held at the credentialing board offices in the Midway YMCA building, 1761 University avenue in St. Paul.

Speakers were Rollie LeFebvre, from the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, who addressed the occasion on behalf of the community and his company; Rev. Phil Hansen, director of Abbott-Northwestern chemical dependency programs, who spoke on behalf of Governor Quie who had planned to attend; and Dr. Dan Anderson, President-Director of Hazelden foundation, who was one of the 38 persons certified, and spoke on behalf of the competency-based certification process.

All three speakers addressed the need for maintaining high quality standards for the delivery of chemical dependency services and agreed that the certification of practitioners will contribute to increased professionalism in the field.

According to Riley Goodwin, credentialing board coordinator, the certification of chemical dependency practitioners is a voluntary process supported by M.C.D.A. and M.A.C.A. with a combined membership of over 1,000 professionals in chemical dependency in Minnesota.

It has taken volunteers of the two associations six years to develop the attitudes, knowledge and skills a chemical dependency practitioner should have, and to develop methods of measuring the competencies of those who wish to be certified.

Clean Up After Parties To Dispel Hazard

Minnesota Safety council hopes your party is a rousing success. When you close the door after your last guest, you may be tempted to trade a pickup half hour for an extra half hour of sleep. Before you decide to leave that mess until morning, however, there are a few things to consider.

Drinks left standing in half-empty glasses are a magnet to children, who like to play grownup. And . . . just several ounces of alcohol can depress the nervous system low enough for death to occur to a small child. Dispose of leftover drinks and place liquor bottles out of children's reach before retiring for the night.

Be cautious, too, of fire caused by cigarettes of embers smoldering in sofas or chairs after the guests have gone. Ashes can smolder in upholstery for 40 minutes or longer before you even smell danger. Gather up ashtrays after your party and place them in the kitchen sink until morning to make sure all ashes are out.

The safety council urges you to take a few extra minutes to clean up after your guests depart.

MSU Offers Course In Piano Tuning

A basic five-part course in piano tuning will be offered evenings at Moorhead state university this winter.

Class, taught by Charles Hanson, a local piano technician, will meet Mondays, beginning January 14, at 7 p.m. in the center for the arts recital hall.

Designed for music teachers and piano players, "Basic Piano Tuning" will look at correcting simple mechanical failures and maintaining acceptable piano tuning. It may be taken for one college credit in music.

To register or for further information, contact the Moorhead state continuing education division at 236-2181.

248 Attend UND Solar Energy Meets

Two hunndred forty-eight persons attended seminars on "Solar Energy and the Private Homeowner" held recently in Bismarck, Fargo, Grand Forks and Minot by the University of North Dakota division of continuing education.

Participating in the Bismarck seminar was Robert Ohlhauser of Thief River Falls.

Sponsoring the seminars were the North Dakota solar office, the Mid-American solar energy complex and the federal aid coordinator office of energy.

Seminar was designed to give an up-to-date report on the energy situation and the technology of alternative energy systems, and a projection on how changes to these alternative systems will affect our lives.

A look back at 1979 and some of the highlights of the Thief River Falls sporting scene:

Basketball

Lincoln high school earned its first trophy in four years of Class AA competition by beating rivals Bemidji 60-56 and Crookston 72-69 in overtime to win the Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament.

Thief River Falls built a 51-33 third quarter lead over Bemidji in the semifinals but a fourth quarter stall got them in trouble and they needed Kyle Hams' five free throws in the final 88 seconds to hold off the Lumberjacks.

Co-captains Jeff Oseid and Steve Enderlein combined for 49 points in the championship game win over a Crookston team that owned a pair of regular season wins over the Prowlers. Oseid scored 19 of his 25 points in the first half before giving away to Enderlein who scored 16 of his 24 points after intermission.

A tall St. Cloud Tech team ran up a 40-14 bulge on the boards to beat Thief River Falls 67-45 in the Region 8AA tournament semifinals.

Northland community college won a share of the Northwest Division title and a 16-7 finish lifted the all-time Northland record above .500 for the first time at 155-150 for 14 years of intercollegiate basketball.

Hockey

A 14-6 regular season record was the best Lincoln high school hockey finish since 1971-72 and a 10-10 regular season record was the best Northland community college hockey finish with 1972-73.

The Prowlers finished second to Roseau in both regular season and post-season Section 8 play, bowing to the Rams 4-2 in the Section 8 tournament finals. A Bob Fitzgerald goal at 5:32 of the third period in that one made it a 3-2 hockey game, but Roseau's Glen daMota hit an open net at 14:53 to wrap up a third straight state tournament berth for the Rams.

Tennis

Lincoln high school earned its third state tennis meet berth in four years with an easy 4-1 victory over St. Cloud Tech in the Region 8AA finals.

But the Prowlers lost a 3-2 heart-breaker to Virginia in a first round Class AA state meet match played at Quadna resort near Hill City.

Football

A dramatic 22-21 upset over unbeaten and No. 2-ranked Bemidji made the Lincoln high school football team instant Northwest Athletic Conference title contender and a Class A state playoff challenger. But three straight NWAC losses to Fergus Falls 28-22, East Grand Forks 20-18 and Crookston 28-8 gave the Prowlers a disappointing 3-6 finish.

Highlighted by a 27-7 season-ending win over rival Crookston, the four-year-old Northland community college football program was 3-5, its best finish. But the Northmen lost head coach Irv Smith, who resigned in December.

Softball

Rusty Nail Raiders did not win a regular season division title for the first time in their five-year history when they lost a Division I season-ending men's slow pitch softball league title-deciding 8-6 game to the Thief River Falls Merchants.

Twice during the five-year title reign by the Raiders they ran up 32-game regular season winning streaks.

Miscellaneous

Lincoln high school and Thief River Falls won the first Minnesota State High School League Region 8AA sportsmanship contest.

Individuals

+ Jarvis Olson bowled the first perfect 300 game in sanctioned league competition at the Family Bowl.

+ Brenda Lund placed fourth in the diving portion of the Minnesota state high school girls swimming meet.

+ Bob Elsner of Team Arctic won the World Championship snowmobile racing title at Eagle River, Wis.

+ Mark Storhaug, a Lincoln high school graduate, earned All-American swimming honors at Bemidji State University.

+ Steve Enderlein was named to the WCCO radio all-state high school basketball team of the year.

+ Scott Sabo, an outstanding hockey player, also starred in baseball as he struck out 151 batters in 78 innings of high school and American Legion play. Nine times the left-hander finished with double digit strike-out figures in the seven-inning games, including three games with 17 strike-outs and three others with 15 strike-outs.

+ Bill Jury, who was an all-conference football player as a defensive back, an all-section hockey player as a goalie and the Region 8AA singles champion in tennis.

+ Georgine Troska finished a two-year career as a member of the Northland community college women's basketball team with a school-record 732 points.

TRF Sports Schedule Starts Anew This Weekend

Athletic teams at Lincoln high school and Northland community college, for the most part idle during the holiday season, begin the 1980 portions of their 1979-80 seasons this weekend.

A busy January, featuring no less than 56 Northland and Lincoln varsity athletic events in 21 playing dates, begins Friday when the Lincoln hockey team plays Section 8 foe Lake of the Woods at a 7:30 p.m. game at Baudette and the Northland women's basketball team meets Itasca in a 7:30 game at Grand Rapids.

The only Northland or Lincoln team to remain active during the holidays, the Prowlers will be trying to bounce back from their first loss in five hockey games Friday against the Bears. Fargo South beat Thief River Falls 5-3 last Friday. The Northwomen are winless in four starts, including a 62-53 setback at the hands of Willmar in their latest outing Dec. 21.

On Saturday, the local scene will include a 7:15 p.m. Northland-alumni hockey game and a 7:30 Lincoln-Mahnomen basketball game.

The Northmen are 0-2 for the year after losing a season-opening weekend series to Hibbing 12-7 and 15-2 back on Dec. 14-15. After facing their alumni, the Northmen dive into a 16-game MJCAA Schedule beginning with a Jan. 11-12 weekend series against Mesabi in the sports arena.

Mahnomen, perennial Region 8A title contender, will present the Lincoln basketball team with a Saturday night challenge, especially if center Todd Young of the Prowlers is still bothered by a toe injury that slowed him in an 83-71 loss to Bemidji Dec. 21. The Prowlers actually took a week off from practice after that game before resuming drills Monday with a scrimmage at Newfolden.

Also on Saturday, the Lincoln swimming team will be participating in an invitational meet at Fosston beginning at 12 noon. It'll be the third outing of the year for the Prowlers who lost to Bemidji 97-72 in their only dual meet start.

Lincoln girls and Northland men's basketball teams will wait until next week before resuming competition. The Prowlers, 2-2 after a 49-44 win at Roseau Dec. 21, will be at Moorhead Tuesday. The Northmen won't play until they make a Jan. 11-12 weekend trip to the Iron Range for games against Mesabi and Vermilion.

That'll mark the start of MJCAA play for the Northmen who face Northwest Division-counting foes 11 times in their final 14 games. Northland is 1-8 for the year, but that includes seven forfeits for using an ineligible player, along with a 76-75 final second loss to Bonnineau in the championship game of Northland's Arctic Invitational Dec. 22.

THIEF RIVER FALLS wing Tom Kenville looked like he had himself a sure breakaway goal when he slipped a shot under International Falls goalie Larry Crosby, but the puck went through the goal crease just inches wide of the net late in the third period of Saturday's game in the seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Bantam A invitational hockey tournament played in the sports arena. The two teams — playing for a spot in Sunday's championship game — were tired at 3-3 when Kenville just missed scoring at 11:06 of the final period. Thirty-four seconds later International Falls won the game with a power play goal, adding an insurance goal at the end for a 5-3 victory margin. International Falls then beat East Grand Forks 5-1 in Sunday's finals to complete the three-day, eight-team event.

TRF Arctic Cat Bantam A Hockey Tournament . . .

International Falls Wins Title

After opening with wins Friday over Virginia 4-3 and St. Paul Como Area 6-4, host Thief River Falls found victories hard to come by in the seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Bantam A hockey tournament played in the sports arena.

Facing International Falls in Saturday's final game with a spot in Sunday's championship match on the line, Thief River Falls dropped a 5-3 decision. Pitted against Grand Rapids in Sunday's third place game, Thief River Falls was a 7-3 loser.

International Falls surprised most observers by beating a strong East Grand Forks team — the defending champion — 5-1 in the championship game of the three-day, eight-team tournament that featured two-division, round-robin scheduling. Division winners met for championship honors, with division runner-up teams playing for third place.

Competition began Friday. In the National Division, East Grand Forks battered Fergus Falls 10-1, Grand Rapids belted Fergus Falls 10-1, and East Grand Forks knocked off the Assiniboine Park Rangers 3-2. In the American Division, Thief River Falls edged Virginia 4-3, International Falls handled St. Paul Como Area 10-2 and Thief River Falls got by St. Paul Como Area 6-4.

On Saturday, Grand Rapids beat the Assiniboine Park Rangers 6-4, Fergus Falls downed the Assiniboine Park Rangers 7-4 and East Grand Forks outlasted Grand Rapids 7-6 in the National Division, while International Falls stopped Virginia 4-2, Virginia tripped St. Paul Como Area 5-4 and International Falls shaded Thief River Falls 5-3 in the American Division.

Pee-Wee A portion of the tournament, scheduled to be played simultaneously in the old arena, was canceled because of the condition of the natural ice sheet softened and cracked by the unusually warm weather.

However, the St. Paul Como Area Pee-Wees accompanied their Bantams to Thief River Falls and managed to work in three games against the Thief River Falls Pee-Wee A team. The St. Paul outfit won all three, 5-4 Friday night, 6-4 Saturday night and 5-4 Sunday morning.

TRF — International Falls

Kip Raboin scored two goals late in the third period to snap a 3-3 tie and lift International Falls to a 5-3 win over Thief River Falls Saturday night.

Raboin's game winner at 11:44 was International Falls' third power play goal of the night and came only 34 seconds after Thief River Falls' Tom Kenville just missed breaking the tie when his breakaway shot went under goalie Larry Crosby but skipped through the goal mouth.

With Thief River Falls applying pressure in the International Falls zone in an effort to get the equalizer, Raboin got behind the defense and iced the game at 13:48 on a partial breakaway.

Defenseman Jim Geatz' power play slap shot from the point at 3:12 of the first period gave Thief River Falls an early 1-0 lead.

International Falls went up 2-1 in the second period when Kris Anderson scored on a nice feed from behind the net on a power play at 2:17 and Tom Lynch converted a 2-on-1 rush tat 13:53.

Defenseman Allan Ness scored two third period goals for Thief River Falls to tie the game twice. He lifted a floater from the blueline past Crosby at 2:07, then after International Falls' Dan Karsnia scored on a power play at 6:54, Ness tied it again at 9:49.

TRF — Grand Rapids

Seven different Grand Rapids players scored in a 7-3 third place game win over Thief River Falls Sunday afternoon.

Settling for a 1-0 lead after out-shooting Thief River Falls 15-4 in the first period, Grand Rapids opened up a 5-2 second period cushion. Thief River Falls got within one goal twice, with Tim Bergland putting in how own goal mouth rebound at 6:34 and Chris Jorde scoring on a scramble in front of the Grand Rapids net at 8:02.

But Grand Rapids' Chad Hesslund scored on a power play at 9:24 and a little over a minute later Tom Rubado put a hard slap shot into the net for a 5-2 spread.

Mitch Semanko tipped in a low screen shot at 2:58 of the third period to pull Thief River Falls within 5-3, but Grand Rapids answered with goals by Bill Acheson on a rocket from the left side at 5:58 and by Mark Matteson during a 4-on-3 power play at 8:23.

THE PUCK bounced away after a shoulder save made by Thief River Falls goalie Doug Odegaard against Virginia Friday in an opening round game of the seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Bantam A invitational hockey tournament played in the sports arena. Thief River Falls won the game 4-3, then added a 6-4 victory over St. Paul Como Area before losing to International Falls 5-3 and dropping a 7-3 decision to Grand Rapids in the third place game of the three-day, eight-team, round-robin schedule tournament.

City League Basketball To Resume Tonight

Thief River Falls city league basketball resumes its 1979-80 season tonight (Wednesday) in the city auditorium following a short holiday break.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), Bud's Auto Clinic and Hartz are leaders after the first month of play in the expanded ten-team, two-division league.

Teams face division opponents twice and cross over to play a single game against each of the other five teams once before the regular season ends February 27. Post-season playoffs start March 3.

Games are played Monday and Wednesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. at the city auditorium. Spectators are welcome.

Sports Boosters Meet Thursday

Lincoln high school swimming coach John Kopari will be the guest speaker Thursday at the Weekly 12 noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

The meeting is open to the public.

DNR License Dates Valid To March 1

Department of Natural Resources reminded fishermen, hunters and trappers that their 1979 licenses were valid until March 1, 1980.

This means that sportsmen who will be fishing, hunting or trapping after Jan. 1 will not be required to purchase new licenses after the New Year but may continue using their present licenses through Feb. 29, 1980.

North Border Leaders . . .

Nordics, Bears Play Saturday

Two remaining unbeaten North Border Conference high school basketball teams square off Saturday when the holiday-interrupted 1979-80 season resumes with Marshall County Central challenging preseason favorite Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

The Bears, who met a similar challege before Christmas when they ended a season-opening seven-game Middle River winning streak 74-52, will be looking to extend a home court winning streak that now numbers in the mid-thirties. They're 7-0 overall and 5-0 in North Border play.

"Nobody has come within 20 points of them this year," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "I suppose anything less than that will be a moral victory for us."

However, Ueland and the Nordics aren't looking for a "moral victory" in the 3:30 afternoon confrontation. They want the real thing.

"We're going to have to play well," acknowledged Ueland. "We're going to have to shoot well — something we haven't done consistently."

Marshall County Central, beaten by Karlstad 49-37 and Argyle 54-43 to start this year, has run off five straight wins, four in North Border Conference play to share the top spot with Lake of the Woods. The Nordics have beaten Badger 57-40, Roseau 67-47, Warroad 69-41, Grygla 50-46 and Greenbush 63-42 with a steady stream of players coming off the deepest bench in the North Border Conference that allows them to maintain constant pressure for a full 32 minutes of basketball.

That pressure will be the Nordics' best bet for an upset Saturday.

"They (Bears) don't have a bench," pointed out Ueland. "They play six guys and that's it. Hopefully come third or fourth quarter maybe our pressure will begin to take a toll on them. If we can play them even until halftime I think we'll be able to give them a real good ball game."

It won't be easy. The Bears' tall front line includes Todd Robinson and his 20.9 scoring average, Tom Omerza and his 14.9 points per game and John Koller with his 12.3 average. Robinson leads the North Border Conference in scoring. He also averages 12.3 rebounds per game. Balanced Marshall County Central attack includes Scott Peters with a 12.8 scoring average, Dan Maki 11.3 and Ray Kvalvog 10.3.

In other Saturday games involving North Border Conference teams, Middle River hosts Strandquist, Roseau entertains Kennedy, Warroad is at home against Karlstad and Grygla plays at AlBrook in the second half of a weekend trip that features a Friday game at Tiovola-Meadowlands. Also on Friday,

Bob Clauson Is Section 8 Point Leader

Bob Clauson of Crookston is the top scorer in Section 8 high school hockey, according to figures announced today by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

Clauson has scored 15 goals, collected nine assists and has 24 points in six games for the Pirates. Tom Roberts of Warroad has eight goals, 12 assists and 20 points in six games to rank second to Clauson, with Thief River Falls' Wade Hoppe currently listed third in the scoring charts with six goals, 13 assists and 19 points in five games.

Top goalies in early season statistics include John Hajostek of Moorhead with a 93 per cent save figure in 3½ games and a 2.6 goals against average; Paul Hennen of Brainerd with a 92 per cent save figure and a 2.2 goals against average for five games; and Todd St. Pierre of Indus with a 90 per cent save figure and a 2.2 goals against average in six games.

Highest scoring lines in Section 8 play include Crookston's Clauson, Tom Johannson and Steve Biermaier with 46 points in six games; Mount St. Benedict's Scott Brekke, John Rock and Paul Mercil with 45 points in six games; and Thief River Falls' Hoppe, Jeff Ulrich and Jim Thompson with 43 points in five games.

Both Crookston and Warroad lost key performers for the season with injuries. Rick Schmitz of the Pirates suffered a broken arm and Esko Salmela of the Warriors broke a wrist.

Fee's Section 8 rankings include: 1. Thief River Falls; 2. East Grand Forks; 3. Crookston; 4. Warroad; 5. Roseau.

Bemidji Sled Dog Races Set January 12-13

Top sled dog race in America, the tenth annual Paul Bunyan competition is scheduled (snow or no snow) January 12 and 13 in the Bemidji area. More than 150 entries from Maine to Alaska are expected to race for more than $10,000 in prize money during the two-day event.

The 16-mile course, with teams racing against the clock in various classes (see enclosed schedule), can be viewed from the countless vantage points along U.S. Highway 2 and on frozen over Lake Bemidji.

The start and finish lines at the statues of Paul Bunyan and Babe next to the Chamber of Commerce in Bemidji gives spectators and close-up of dogs being harnessed, sleds readied, and kenneling of the dogs before and after races. . . usually in individual multi-level compartments on pick-up camper-type trucks.

Detailed information pertaining to the Paul Bunyan sled dog race (ISDRA sanctioned) and overnight accomodations while in the Bemidji area may be obtained by writing or calling Chamber of Commerce executive vice president Donn Roach at post office box 806 or telephone 751-3540.

Fillies Game Aids Kidney Foundation

Sunday, January 27, will be "Kidney Foundation Day" at Met Center in Bloomington when, at 2 p.m., the Minnesota Fillies will play the Iowa Cornets. Currently, the Fillies are in first place in the Midwest Division of the professional Women's Basketball League with the Cornets a close second.

Proceeds from tickets sold through the Kidney Foundation office will be used to support the fight against kidney disease. Tickets are priced at $6 each for adults and $4 each for children. A ticket purchased through the Kidney Foundation entitles you to a reserved seat plus a chance to meet the Fillies in the exclusive Observatory Club after the game.

Checks should be made payable to Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest, Inc., and mailed to Minnesota Fillies Benefit, in care of Kidney Foundation, 1821 University Ave., St. Paul, Minnesota 55104.

The Kidney Foundation is supported entirely with voluntary contributions that are used to fund programs in the areas of research, patient service, public and professional education, and organ donation.

For more information on the January 27 Minnesota Fillies benefit, call 612-645-8605.

Carcasses Are Used By DNR For Research

Hunters and trappers of bobcat, lynx and fisher are urged to turn in carcasses of these species to the Department of Natural Resources for biological examination.

Information derived from these carcass collections and examinations include age and sex ratios, food habits, reproductive status, parasites and general condition of the animals. Cooperation of hunters, trappers and fur-buyers is requested by DNR officials since this information will provide management guidelines for these species.

Carcasses turned over to wildlife managers or conservation officers will be sent to the wildlife research station in Grand Rapids. Persons having questions regarding this collection may write the Forest Wildlife Research Group, DNR, 201 Golf Course Road, Grand Fapids, Minnesota 55744.

Each bobcat, lynx, and fisher must be tagged at the site where taken and registered with the DNR. Details are printed in the 1979 small game hunting and trapping regulations.

Seasons on these species began December 1 and will close January 31.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Skiing is a sport the whole family can enjoy together. Children above five or six enjoy those slopes as well as father and mother. This is important in these days when so many things are pulling the family apart.

Careful planning is essential to a successful ski trip, then planning the trip with some advice on how to ski, then winter camping, which can be fun and reduce your costs.

Modern skis have a great deal of engineering in their development. They have steel edges. They are cambered for weight, which must be right for you. Length is important. Begin with a fairly short ski, 140 to 170 centimeters. They are easier to manage. As you become more experienced you will probably want longer skis for certain conditions. Avoid competition or racing skis. They are not designed for recreational use. A good recreational ski is called a forgiving ski because it will cover up some of your mistakes.

A good ski boot is essential. It should fit you comfortably and be warm. The modern plastic boot gives you better control of your skis.

You must have good release bindings on your skis, and be sure they are properly adjusted. I skied the first 16 years in "bean traps." If you fell wrong you knew you would break your leg. I finally did at Grand Marais, Minnesota, and took the ride down hill in the basket. You twisted your leg hard enough to break a bone and it hurt! I could not ski the rest of that winter. It is a beautiful feeling when I get in trouble, and the release bindings let loose without injury. You are required to have safety straps attaching your skis to you. In the mountains a loose ski can cause terrible injury.

Poles are also important. Keep them behind you or they can be dangerous. Clothing should be warm enough for a full day out on the mountain. Don't be a hero; hypothermia can be dangerous. If it is cold no finger glove will keep your hands warm. We find down clothing, including a parka hood, light and warm. Remember you spend a good deal of your time up in the wind in those open chairs.

Planning well for your ski trip and the areas you will visit is important. You want the finest skiing, in these days of energy shortages, with the least amount of travel. Avoid excessive altitude for the day's runs, and do not stay overnight at over 7,000 feet. This is why I do not recommend any area in Colorado except Steamboat Springs. Do not be afraid to drive the mountains in the winter time. The roads that are kept open can be traveled as easily as those in our area, and the mountains are most beautiful this time of the year.

If you keep a file of my articles you will have close to an ideal trip for two weeks with 15 ski areas. If you have just a week take either the north or south half of the itinerary. I ski an area just one day, and go on to the next because of the variety of beauty it gives you. Our trip will include Red Lodge, Big Sky, Grand Targhee, Sun Valley, Jackson Hole, Beaver, Ogden Snow Basin, Powder Mountain, Alta, Snow Bird, Park West, Park City, Steam Boat, Medicine Bow, Terry Peak and home.

When you ski always do so under control. If you do not, the ski patrol is authorized to ask you to leave the area.

Here are a few tips on how to ski. Carry a turn through until you have control of your speed. Your weight should be over the middle of your skis, which should be parallel, as you start down hill. When you turn right your weight shifts to your left ski. Your knees bend to the right and your shoulders to the left with the right side of your skis edging into the snow. The right ski is a little ahead. When you do this the ski is engineered to turn right. When you turn left you do the exact reverse. It may seem a little complicated but if you learn to get it all together you can ski under control and have lots of fun.

When skiing it is best to have a high carbohydrate breakfast and supper, such as pancakes and spaghetti. A Sports Medicine article recommends this to prevent leg fatigue from a full day on the slopes. Fatigue is dangerous because it makes you more susceptible to accidents that produce injuries. Warm up gradually in the morning, on the gentle slopes. In the afternoon, if you get tired, go back to easy skiing. Try to learn to ski relaxed and in good balance. It all helps to prevent injuries.

Civilization

Most people are concerned with survival in event of national or world-wide crisis. Often people will declare survival is hopeless, and civilization and progress is doomed since the age of nuclear science to world attach being problematic. It is towards this assumption we must reply in the positive that there is hope for civilization through application of survival technics, and direct your attention to a booklet called, "Survival".

It was written by Walter D. Batchelor, 6120 E. Boston Street, Mesa, Arizona, 85205 and costs but 75 cents. And is worth it.

It has had more than 12 printings, first copyrighted in 1973 and has produced over 150,000 copies. The book is easy to read and has but 34 pages.

Water

It is vital to preserve our water. Without pure water we cannot survive. Conservationists and scientists are showing widespread concern about the unchecked use of water in our homes, business and recreational areas.

Lakes and creekbeds have become laden with junk discarded during recreation activities the year around. One may no longer safely drink from riverwaters, nor eat fish from certain lakes and rivers that are poisoned. Many lakes are dead lakes.

Each of us can be reeducated to study why we must preserve our waters and keep them pure. We must take the time to teach our youngsters all about water.

If each of us begin in the home to preserve our water, what would you do to save water: We could stop letting the water run away down sewers while shaving, bathing, rinsing dishes, watering lawns, washing cars and driveways. By using better methods in the use of water, we can save water.

Volunteers

More than 700 volunteer positions in national parks, forests and other land-resource management agencies are available during 1980. Three to four week opportunities for young people aged 16-18 include trail maintenance revegetation and other construction projects, as well as hiking and exploring.

College-aged volunteers can serve 8-12 week stints as park and forest assistants, manning information booths, leading nature walks, doing research and patrolling back-country areas.

Contact Student Conservation Association, PO Box 550, Charlestown, NH 03603, Tel. (603) 826-5206 for application information.

Endangered Species Agency Has New Head

A top environmental lawyer for the Interior Department, who is also a wildlife biologist, has been tapped by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service director Lynn A. Greenwalt to head up the agency's programs on endangered species and the multi-million dollar federal grants to the states.

Ronald E. Lambertson, 38, assistant solicitor of Interior for Fish and Wildlife, succeeds Keith M. Schreiner as associate director-federal assistance. Schreiner is now area director of the service's Alaska office.

"With his scientific and legal training, Ron Lambertson is uniquely qualified to guide one of the service's most sensitive programs," Greenwalt said. "His extensive involvement with endangered species matters make him a definiate asset to the agency and a strong, effective voice for the resources it serves. I am delighted to welcome him as one of my chief advisors and administrators."

As associate director, Lambertson will be responsible for administering the complex endangered species act and its provisions on listing, reclassification, designation of critical habitat, recovery and protection of impeilled species, and also for consulting with other federal agencies on projects that could affect protected species. He will also direct this country's implementation of a 54-nation treaty, the convention on international trade in endangered species of wild fauna and flora and will oversee the issuance of permits for activities with species listed by both the act and the convention. In addition, he will be responsible for dispensing some $110 million a year to the states and territories for fish and wildlife restoration and enhancement projects.

Lambertson joined the department's legal staff in 1970 after receiving his law degree from the University of Colorado and rose to the rank of assistant solicitor in 1974, becoming one of the youngest attorneys appointed to that position. As assistant solicitor for fish and wildlife, he has served as the Fish and Wildlife Service's chief legal advisor and has been deeply involved in all management aspects of the agency's programs, particularly endangered species.

He participated in preparing the successful legal brief filed before the Supreme Court in the snail darter-Tellico Dam case and has served on a number of endangered species consultation teams, including those for the Tellico Dam and the Miami jetport projects. Earlier, he had helped develop the procedures for conducting endangered species act "Section 7" consultations that have now been adopted as regulations. In all but a few cases, these procedures has assured both adequate protection for endangered and threatened species and completion of federal projects. Lambertson also was instrumental in successfully resolving litigation against the federal grant-in-aid program that threatened for a time to cut off funds to the states. He received the department's meritorious service award in 1976 for his contributions to conservation and environmental law.

Lambertson received his undergraduate degree in wildlife management at Colorado State University and spent four summers taking part in field research projects for the Colorado division of game, fish and parks and the national park service.

Use Of Wood For Fuel Hit Peak In '43

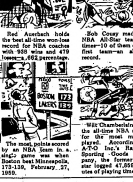
Use of wood for fuel in Minnesota reached a peak of three million cords annually in 1943 but fell sharply thereafter until 1970, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

A study by the DNR's division of forestry shows that fuel wood use rose from two million cords in 1936 to its peak in 1943, fell to less than one million cords in 1954 and bottomed out in 1970 at 224,000 cords.

Since then, fuel wood use has risen abruptly. It is expected that a survey, currently being conducted, will show that 900,000 cords were used in 1978 and approximately 1,300,000 will be consumed this year.

Foresters predict that 1,500,000 cords will be used next year and that a two million cord annual consumption will be reached sometime after the next decade.

It is hoped that use will then stabilize, said foresters, because the two million cords will be all that can be made available under proper forest management practices.



Roundball Recordmakers

Red Auerbach holds the best all-time won-loss record for NBA coaches with 938 wins and 479 losses—a .662 percentage.

Bob Cousy made the NBA All-Star team 12 times—10 of them on the first team—an all-time record.

The most points scored by an NBA team in a single game was when Boston beat Minneapolis, 173-139, February 27, 1959.

Wilt Chamberlain holds the all-time NBA record for the most minutes played. According to A-T-O Inc.'s Rawlings Sporting Goods Company, the former NBA star logged 47,859 minutes of playing time.

Recordings Give Historical Insight

by Kathryn Lindeman
Smithsonian News Service

At first there was only a scratching sound. Then, filling a recording studio as it must have filled an Indian lodge years ago, came the sound of Raincloud of the Chippewa tribe chanting a dream song. Rising and falling rhythmically, overpowering the defects of the recording made more than a half-century ago, the words of the sacred song came to life once more.

To caputure such songs, Frances Densmore, a musician and teacher, had tramped through the wilds of northern Minnesota in the early 1900s, recording on wax cylinders, the most effective device then available to researchers studying the rapidly vanishing culture of native American tribes.

As a child in the 1870s, Densmore had listened to the enchanting songs and sounds from a Sioux Indian camp across the Mississippi river from home in Red Wing. Like others interested in preserving tribal customs, she later became determined to record songs and chants of the oldest Indian singers, whose tribes had roamed the plains and prairies before wars with the white explorers and settlers doomed them to humiliation or extinction.

Densmore eventually recorded and descirbed in special publications more than 3,000 songs of 30 tribes, from the Minnesota Chippewa in 1907 to the Florida Seminole in 1954.

Her recordings and those by other researchers are now being transferred to modern high-quality magnetic tape in a 3-year project underway at the Library of Congress' American Folklife center. The Smithsonian's Thomas Vennum is director of the project, which involves more than 3,500 wax cylinder recordings of American Indian music and legends recorded from 1889 to 1930.

"Along with the major concern of preservation," Vennum says, "the project is intended to provide native Americans with information about their past. There is an increasing desire among tribal peoples to recover old documents and revive cultural traditions. Many have their own tribal museums and want early recordings to be part of the collections."

Saved, for example, are recordings of Winnbgago flute melodies, Navaho ceremonial songs and songs of the Sioux sundance — all of which help both scholars and Native Americans reconstruct life the way it was for the great tribes.

To record the Indian traditions, Densmore purchased an Edison home phonograph in 1907 with a $150 grant from the Bureau of ethnology, established by the Smithsonian institution in 1879 specifically to document disappearing aspects of Indian culture.

The wax cylinders she used came on the market in 1889, invented by Thomas A Edison, who believed them superior to disc recordings. In the field, a researcher toted a small horn for recording, a large horn for playback, the phonograph itself and the boxes of cylinders. Even though the equipment was heavy and bulky, there was less paraphernalia involved in recording on wax than on discs.

Wax cylinders, made in 4-inch and 6-inch lengths, could accommodate an average of 4 minutes worth of music. Most of them were black or various shades of brown. A cylinder's shape resembled nothing so much as a modern frozen orange juice container with both ends removed.

Despite their fragility and primitive nature, cylinders had certain advantages. They could be played back immediately for comments from the singers, and the recordings could be erased with a shaving machine. No compensation was necessary for inner-groove distortion, as with discs, since a cylinder's grooves were all of equal distance from the stylus arm.

In a Library of Congress recording studio, Erika Brady, a doctoral candidate in folklore working at the Library, tapes the music from the cylinders, simultaneously adding on a second track an explanation of her procedure step by step: "This cylinder is being played at 67 feet per minute, which is 120 revolutions per minute. . . The stylus size is 10 mil with a hemispheric tip. . . Having a little tracking problem here. . ."

"This commentary is made so that anyone listening to the tapes can have an explicit idea of how it was recorded," Brady says. She also describes the physical condition of the cylinder she is working with. "In recording onto the preservation tapes, I filter out only as much of the scratchy sound as necessary to make the recording intelligible."

Some of the scratchy overtone is caused by cylinder deterioration. The cylinders — made of a soaplike substance containing paraffin, stearic acid and softeners such as olive oil or caster oil — are very brittle and fragile because of age, Brady said. Although they are wrapped in cotton and stored in cardboard tubes, many have been scratched or broken, mice have gnawed the edges or mild has formed. All of this points to the urgency of getting the songs onto tape — The cylinders themselves can't be preserved indefinitely.

Specialized equipment used for cylinder playback was developed years ago by the Library's recording expert, Robert Carneal. "Remarkably, some of the early field researchers used very good equipment," he said. "Our equipment uses parts of the original devices, but we've added a modified stylus and an anti-flutter wheel to keep the drive at a constant speed."

Listening to the songs, most persons can identify through the static the insistent rhythm of the chants or pick out the drums and rattles, the usual accompaniment to the Indian songs. But it takes a trained ear to identify the tribe and type of song.

Vennum and Folklife center staff members Maria LaVigna and Ronald Walcott sort through the cylinders and gather information about each one. Vennum says that the challenge of providing accurate and complete documentation is as important as getting a good recording. "We feel a big responsibility to include as much about the songs as possible — the date, singer, song text, English translation, recorder's name and anything else we know about the contents."

"Most of the cylinders are fairly well documented, but some of the labels have fallen off the storage boxes, making the identification task even more of a challenge. There will probably be lots we'll never uncover in our research, but then again, we may also hear someone say, 'Hey, that's my grandfather.' "

In one case, project researchers rediscovered certain sacred songs which were thought by their tribe to be lost forever. By circulating among scholars a master tape of unidentified music, Vennum hopes to recover additional song texts, identify song genres and generate more documentation from areas where field workers are studying particular tribes.

Vennum, LaVigna and Walcott are trying to organize the remaining cylinders, which after World War II were divided among various agencies. Today, the Library of Congress has the largest number, but some are stored at the Smithsonian, the National Archives and other organizations.

"Our copies of these early recordings, the commentaries and documentation won't be on the 'top-10' list for the general public," Vennum noted, "but they will be available to both scholars and native Americans who want to know more about traditional songs that went out of use a generation or two ago. We think these songs are worth the effort."

CORRECTION
IN SCHOOL DISTRICT 564 NEWSLETTER

Due to an oversight, the "Previous Teaching Experience" portion of the table on Page 2 of the December Newsletter was not advanced one year to reflect teaching experience. The corrected table is as follows:

DEGREE	PREVIOUS TEACHING EXPERIENCE	SCHOOL YEAR (SALARY 185 DAYS)
Bachelor of Arts	0	$10,040
Bachelor of Arts + 15 credits	7	$12,991
Bachelor of Arts 30 credits	7	$13,404
Bachelor of Arts + 45 credits	9	$14,542
Bachelor of Arts 60 Credits Or Masters Degree	9	$14,966
Master of Arts 15 credits	11	$16,114
Master of Arts 30 credits	11	$16,539
Master of Arts 45 credits	11	$16,963

In the examples given in the second column on Page 2, experience for Teacher "A" should have been five years instead of four years and for Teacher "B" should have been 20 years instead of eight years.

These corrections are being made by the board and administration so that the public will be accurately informed and the faculty salary schedule will be correctly stated.

CAN WE ELIMINATE THE RADIATION HAZARD FROM NUCLEAR POWER?

By Dr. Leonard Sagan

Dr. Leonard Sagan, Manager of the Biomedical Effects Program of the Electric Power Research Institute, was formerly Associate Director of the Department of Environmental Medicine at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic.

Dr. Leonard Sagan

It's impossible to live in a totally radiation free environment because the earth itself is radioactive and we receive cosmic radiation from outer space.

Everything in the world—rocks, mountains, the houses we live in, our bodies—is radioactive because of the natural radioactivity that exists in materials and within our environment itself.

People who live at higher altitudes receive more radiation from cosmic sources than people who live at sea level. People who live in brick houses receive more exposure than people who live in wooden houses and people who receive medical x-rays receive a good deal more exposure than people who don't receive medical x-rays. Exposures from nuclear power are very small on the order of one percent or less of an increment.

If we did not build or operate any nuclear plants, it would create certain dangers, too. For example, we'd have to build some other kinds of plants to generate electricity. Many studies have shown that the risks or hazards from operating those plants is as great or greater than those from nuclear plants. There is radioactivity released from the burning of coal. The dose from the burning of coal in a generating plant is, in fact, about the same as the dose of radiation from a nuclear plant, so we wouldn't have achieved very much in terms of reducing radiation exposure.

Most of the things we do have some risks associated with them and that's true of nuclear power too. It would be foolish to think that any technology or human activ*ity has zero risk, but the* risks for nuclear power, in my estimation, are small compared to those other risks.

As for the people who live around nuclear plants, their exposure from that operation is very small—in the order of a few percent—as compared to radiation that they can get from natural sources. So I don't consider that a hazard.

As a medical doctor, I think the risks from nuclear power generation compared to other risks we take in our daily lives and compared to the benefits we get from energy availability is very acceptable and small.

December 27 — It was reported by Neil Favre of Thief River Falls that someone had broken into the Irvine Forsberg residence, located at the north Forsberg's, Inc., plant and had stolen numerous guns and an undetermined amount of money. Burglary is under investigation.

Sheriff's department reported the following cases.

December 20 — 10:18 p.m. — while on routine patrol at the Place, sheriff's deputies observed two individuals in a parked car acting in a suspicious manner. The youths were checked and one juvenile, 17, was found to have possession of marijuana. Some open beer was found and Gregory Buringrud, '20, Thief River Falls, was charged with furnishing beer to a minor.

December 24 — 2:55 p.m. — Kenneth Bakke, Thief River Falls, reported his shop north on highway 59 was broken into, and a Nipco heater, green, valued at $280 and a McCulloch 16-inch chain saw valued at $250 were taken. Incident is under investigation.

December 22 — 11:06 p.m. — John Wolbeck, route 3, reported that while he was parked at the Galaxie Theater and his pickup was unoccupied, it was broken into and a Kassner 12-gauge double barrel over and under shotgun was taken, estimated at $400.

December 21 — 11:08 a.m. — A school bus driven by George Dewall, Thief River Falls, was stopped in the east lane of highway 1, about six and one half miles east of Thief River Falls, with stop lights and stop arm extended to load a passenger. A tractor driven by Neil Hanson, Thief River Falls, owned by Sparby-Johnson, Inc. was also traveling east, and due to very heavy fog, did not see the bus and was unable to stop in time and struck the bus in the rear, causing the bus to skid across the westbound lane, coming to rest on the shoulder of the roadway. Damages were estimated at $1,800 to the bus and the tractor was totaled. The only occupant in the bus was the bus driver.

December 23 — Kim Kazmierczak of rural Thief River Falls reported that someone has shot up his mail box with damages estimated at $15.

December 27 — 7:30 p.m. — county road 61 and county road 17 — A car driven by Dean Syverson of Englewood, CO., was attempting to back into his driveway on county road 17 when a car driven by Leonard Casavan of Thief River Falls struck the Syverson vehicle which was not all the way off the road. Damages to the Syverson vehicle estimated at $2,000 and $300 to the Casavan vehicle. At the time of the accident, there was very dense fog in the area.

December 27 — Gary Berard of route 1, reported that someone had vandalized his mailbox causing $20 in damages.

MSU Releases Fall Quarter Dean's List

Moorhead state university recently released the dean's list for the fall quarter. To be recognized for this academic achievement honor, students must maintain a 3.25 or higher grade point average and carry 14 credits.

Minn. Repays $172 Million Federal Loan

Governor Al Quie announced today that Minnesota has repaid a $172 million loan borrowed from the federal government to pay the unusually high unemployment insurance costs during the 1975-77 recession period.

The funds made it possible for the department of economic security to continue paying unemployment benefits through the recession, according to Rolf Middleton, commissioner of economic security. The benefits normally are paid through employer contributions to the Minnesota unemployment compensation fund. The fund was depleted in 1975-77 when the unemployment benefits claims load rose significantly.

Minnesota's healthy economy since 1977 contributed to the repayment of the loan.

"If the loan had not been repaid, Minnesota employers would have faced increases in their federal unemployment insurance taxes for both 1979 and 1980," Governor Quie said.

Minnesota was one of the first states with a large outstanding loan balance to make full repayment.

Twenty million dollar payment was made last January, and the remaining $152 million was repaid in November.

Ability to repay was due, in part to the 1977 Minnesota legislation which increased employer contributions to the state trust fund and reduced the number of persons who qualify for benefits, Middleton said.

Federal loan, available to states with depleted trust funds, is interest-free if repaid within two years.

Since 1972, 25 states have found it necessary to borrow funds under this federal law provision. The loans were largest, in both dollar amount in number, during the 1975-77 recession. Nine states borrowed more than $100 million each during this period, the commissioner said.

Winter Shows Talent Event Set Feb. 24

Twenty-first annual talent festival for amateur performers throughout the region, held in conjunction with the Winter shows, has been scheduled this year for Sunday, Feb. 24, according to Ed Stoyanoff of the university of Minnesota technical college-Crookston, coordinator for the event. UMC will be serving as host for the contest.

Prizes totaling $250 cash will be awarded to winning contestants. Individuals and groups of all ages are welcome to compete. Family groups are especially encouraged to participate, Stoyanoff said. Categories of competition for tryouts will include "amateurs only" in vocal solo, vocal group, instrumental solo, instrumental group, variety acts of piano.

Registration will take place in the Kiehle auditorium foyer on the UMC campus. The precise time for registration and auditions will be available from the University Relations Office. Finalists for the evening program will be selected by a team of judges. Winners will be chosen by a new panel of judges during the evening program which will be open to the public. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. in Kiehle auditorium.

General information about the talent festival may be obtained from Stoyanoff at the university relations office, phone 218-281-6510, ext. 250.

Nursing Skill Workshops At MSU Offered

Two nursing workshops will be offered at Moorhead state university in January, one on cancer patients and the other on attitude and communication skills for nurses.

"Dynamics of Oncology Nursing," a one-credit course focusing on cancer cell behavior and how it influences a patient's health and psychology, will meet from 6 to 10 p.m. January 14, 16 and 21 in Murray commons on campus. The course, taught by Jane Giedt, R.N., a member of the MSU nursing faculty with extensive experience in critical care nursing, will combine lectures, audio-visuals and group discussions.

"Attitude Awareness and Communication Skills for Nurses" will meet January 18 and 19 and January 25 and 26 also in Murray commons. The three credit course looks at new methods of developing positive attitudes, self-confidence and communication skills. It will be taught by Barbara Hisley, R.N., who's worked as a staff nurse in several inpatient psychiatric settings.

Classes will meet from 4 to 10 p.m. January 18 and 25; and from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on January 19 and 26. Breaks are scheduled for meals.

To register or for further information about the MSU nursing program, contact the department at 236-2693.

Glenn Barley Is Added To Malting List

Malting barley improvement association has added the white aleurone six-row variety, Glenn, to its list of varieties recommended for malting and brewing subject to acceptance by industry in future commercial use. The recommended area for production is North Dakota and Minnesota.

Decision to add Glenn to the list of varieties recommended for malting and brewing was based on extensive pilot and plant-scale malting and brewing tests. Plant scale tests were made using 10,000 bushels of the 1975 crop, 8,000 bushels of the 1976 crop, and 15,000 bushels from the 1978 crop.

Glenn was released by the North Dakota agricultural experiment station Jan. 12, 1978. Glenn is a cross between Br5755-3, Trophy and N.D. B138. It has averaged eight per cent higher in bushels per acre than Larker, and is slightly earlier than Larker in maturity. Glenn is resistant to stem rust, loose smut and moderately resistant to spot blotch, net blotch and septoria leaf blotch.

Exports add strength to farm prices and reduce or eliminate the need for deficiency payments. For the first five years of this decade, U.S. farm program costs totaled $13.8 billion. These costs fell by half in the past five years.

A FAIRWAY FRIENDSHIP is budding between March of Dimes 1980 National Poster Child Betsy Burch and Arnold Palmer. The two have much in common, especially a desire to see the threat of birth defects removed. Palmer is National Chairman for the March of Dimes, whose mission is prevention of birth defects. Betsy, 6, of Stone Mountain, Ga., was born with webbed fingers and a malformed right leg. She represents more than a quarter of a million babies born annually with birth defects.

Through cold, snow-covered fields, underneath ice-encrusted trees, the river runs its course.

This brings to mind the Christian Church. It was founded upon the teachings of Jesus who lived His life and did His work unperturbed by the coldness of many of His fellowmen and of the ruling officials. He knew that His work would stand because it was founded upon truth. It not only stood, but has flowed steadily on for centuries. It is still going on today in His churches.

If you do not attend church services why not go this coming Sunday, and identify yourself with this steady flow of the best for which life stands?

There is always room in the river for one more drop of water. There is always room in the Church for one more worshipper.

Behavior Study Is Key To Survival

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Tommie and Susie (not their real names) were the products of broken homes.

Taken at the tender age of a few months from their respective families, they eventually found each other and had offspring. But Tommie and Susie were lousy parents — ignoring, mutilating and even killing their babies.

Susie became known as "The Killer."

Such bizarre behavior might have become a social worker's nightmare except for the fact that Tommie and Susie were golden lion marmosets, a rare and endangered South American monkey, and they were living in a zoo. Instead, their case became the perplexing problem of Dr. Devra Kleiman, an expert in animal reproduction and behavior at the Smithsonian Institution's national zoo in Washington, D.C.

Why, Kleiman asked herself, did these animals, taken from their parents and reared outside their families, breed prolifically but make such miserable parents? The answer had more than academic interest: The only way to save the golden marmosets from extinction was to learn how to breed them successfully in captivity and raise healthy offspring. Only 100 of them remain in the wild.

Answer was soon provided by detailed behavioral studies of the animal in captivity and the wild. Golden marmosets live in an extended family, Kleiman and others discovered. Young marmosets like Susie must be left with their parents until a second group of young are born and raised. By having role models and by babysitting with the new youngsters from time to time, the younger marmosets learned how to be good parents.

Armed with this information, the National Zoo began leaving younger marmosets with their parents until an appropriate age. The result? The number of golden marmosets in captivity has grown from 69 in 1972 to over 100 worldwide. Most of these new additions were born at the national zoo.

Work on golden marmosets also taought researchers another invaluable lesson.

"Behavioral and social studies of animals are absolutely necessary for breeding and raising rare and endangered animals successfully in captivity," Kleiman says.

"Of course, we must also know an animal's diet and nutritional requirements, what diseases it gets and what kind of environment it needs. But if we don't know the social and breeding customs, the chances of success are nil."

Behavioral studies of animals require painstaking, sometimes boring and always lengthy observations of their eating habits and reproductive and social activities. Ideally, these studies should take place in the animal's natural habitat, but this is not always possible. More often, researchers combine observations of the animals in their natural habitats with studies in captivity.

In one such project on social behavior, Kleiman is studying three relatively rare South American animals — the maned wolf, the crab eating fox and the bush dog. These animals belong to the same family as the common household dog. They share another key feature: All three special are monogamous, that is, one male mates with one female at a time.

"Monogamy is unusual in mammals," Kleinman says. "Only three per cent of all the world's mammals are mongamous. Humans and these animals are among this tiny minority."

What fascinates her are both the similarities and differences in how the animals express their mongamous behavior. The maned wolf, for example, lives mainly in savanna environments feeding on small rodents and vegetation. The males and females appear to be solitary hunters, coming together only during the mating season. Males may not stick around long enough to help raise the young.

On the other hand, the male and female crab eating fox travel in pairs in the wild and jointly hold a territory against predators and intruders. Male and female often hunt close together and reunite after a separation with an elaborate ceremony. They may sleep in physical contact and they periodically groom each other by nibbling and licking. The male invests heavily in the survival of his offspring and helps the female raise the young by bringing food. The short, squat bush dog shows behavior similar to the fox. Kleiman's colleagues have even observed male bush dogs assisting in the birth of young.

"These observations will help in our breeding programs," she says, "but I also want to know why these animals express mongamy in different ways and take a different amount of interest in raising their young.

"The differences may be influenced by many things — the natural habitat of the animal and the need to stick together either for food or to keep away predators. In some cases, this also means that the male takes a heavy interest in the survival of the offspring, but not always."

Kleiman tries not to draw too many analogies between animal and human behavior, although she admits that the patterns seen in animals are also seen in humans.

"Take the American suburban middle-class family," she says. "Some women rear their children essentially alone. The male protects the home and indirectly provides food through wages received from a job. But the male frequently has little interaction with the young and weak emotional bonds with both wife and children.

"We see this pattern in animals too, but the major difference is that monogamy in humans is culturally imposed and is not usually related to survival.

"If we can come up with some factors from our animal studies that seem to promote a particular form of mating system, we may eventually learn something about evolution of these systems and, perhaps, about ourselves."

Whatever the message may be for humans, the message for zoos is clear. Understanding the behavior and social customs of animals is a must for successful breeding programs. In many cases, these programs are the last chance for endangered animals who, like the golden marmoset, have no other hope for survival.

THIS FAMILY PORTRAIT of mother and young golden lion marmosets, rare and endangered South American monkeys, was taken at the Smithsonian Institution's National Zoo in Washington, D.C. Animal behavior studies there show that marmosets make good mothers if they have good role models as youngsters. Animal behavior studies are necessary for successful captive breeding programs, which in many cases are the last chance for the survival of endangered animals.

Students Form Group To Push Traffic Safety

A student organization has been launched to help reduce the large number of traffic fatalities and injuries which occur to young people. Minnesota student traffic safety organization was developed by the Minnesota safety council with a grant from the Minnesota department of public safety and the Minnesota department of education, a co-sponsor of the organization.

The group will assist junior and senior high school students to form local school traffic safety clubs or committees to provide traffic safety education programs in secondary and elementary schools as well as in the community. Student groups will be eligible to earn state awards in recognition of their efforts in traffic safety education.

According to Rex Morriss, program director for the Minnesota student traffic Safety organization, similar programs which couple both statewide safety resources and the active participation of young people are operating successfully in many other states across the country.

"We are relying on the talent and energy of the young people in Minnesota to help curb the rising tide of youth-involved traffic crashes," said Morriss. "It's a chance for young Minnesotans to help keep themselves alive and healthy."

Junior and senior high school students interested in joining the Minnesota student traffic safety organization, or adults willing to serve as sponsors for a student club or committee in their local school, should contact Morriss at the Minnesota safety council, 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102; telephone 612-291-9150.

The Veterans Administration recently began its 50th year as an independent federal agency established solely to aid America's veterans and eligible dependents. Prior to 1930, responsibility for veterans' programs was shared by several federal agencies.

Safety Tips Offered For Wood Burners

There's more to burning wood than enjoyment of the warmth and glow of the fire. Because of rising fuel costs, there is a resurgence of interest in woodburning as a primary or supplementary heat source. Many people may not be burning wood safely.

The first safety factor to consider is the chimney. If it's over 20 years old or shows any visible signs of deterioration such as cracked or missing mortar or brick, a steel liner should be added inside the flue and the full length of the chimney. If the chimeny is newer and no evidence of deterioration can be found, a good, thorough cleaning is probably all that's needed.

Chimneys should be checked for creosote buildup every three to six months. A stovepipe should be cleaned twice a year, a chimney annually or whenever creosote buildup exceeds one-quarter inch. (Use of a properly-sized flue cleaning brush is the cheapest and best insurance against chimeny fires.

Creosote buildup is the prime safety hazard in operating any woodburning appliance, assuming other hazards are eliminated with proper installation. Creosote forms when incompletely burned combustion products (smoke) are cooled to their condensation point. This can occur in the stove, in the stove pipe and in the chimney. In extreme cases the smoke may be cooled to below 200 degrees and a water-creosote mixture will condense and run down the stove pipe. This is a sure sign of too much cooling in the flue.

The interior of the stove itself will naturally have slight creosote buildup as the fire cools. When the fire is built back up the deposit is burned off and generally poses no safety problems.

A woodstove used continually during the heating season will have less creosote problems then a stove used only for one firing per day (or less often). With only occasional use the flue doesn't heat up properly and enough creosote buildup may occur in just a few firings to cause chimney fire to flue blockage.

Burning improperly-seasoned wood is another major cause of creosote buildup. Wood containing over 20 per cent moisture cannot burn efficiently. On the average, the fire will be cooler and flue gases will contain a great deal of water which serves to reduce their temperature making serious creosote buildup almost inevitable.

Wood should be dried for at least six months — preferably a year — before it's burned. Since wood has become quite expensive, many people are tempted to cut their own. A permit is needed to cut wood on state land. Cutting should be done sensibly and only by people who know what they're doing. Wood cutters who are not fully prepared and knowledgeable can seriously harm themselves and the forest.

One more important point. Make sure you have a direct outside air source to your fireplace or woodstove. With today's tighter houses, there's not always enough air for fires and they may steal the air needed to breathe. At worst, it could mean carbon monoxide poisoning and that can lead to serious illness, even death. The problem is simply solved with an outside air duct to feed the fire.

More information on burning wood safely may be obtained from the Minnesota Energy Agency. Write to 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, 55101, or in the metro area call 296-5175, and outside the metro area call toll free 1-800-652-9747.

1 Million Ton Drop In Grain Oilseed Output

Terminal elevators in Minnesota shipped out nearly 18.5 million tons of grains and oilseeds with an estimated farm value of almost $2.1 billion during the first eleven months of 1979, Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

These figures compared to the same January through November period of 1978 represented declines by nearly one million tons in volume and by over $102 million in farm value.

November export volume of farm commodities totaled nearly 2.8 million tons, but that was down 25 per cent from the 3.7 million tons shipped out during that month last year.

"With both of our inland waterways now closed for the winter it is apparent that Minnesota will fail to equal 1978 agricultural commodity exports volume in this year of record national farm exports. Through November this year 84 per cent of Minnesota's total terminal elevator exports were shipped out by ships from Duluth Port and by barges down the Mississippi River," Commissioner Seetin stated.

River terminal elevators in Minnesota did increase grain and oilseed exports by more than eight per cent this year through November, a total of nearly 10.1 million tons. But Duluth Port, shut down by a labor dispute for 12 weeks at the peak of the shipping season, reported a 17 per cent reduction in volume, less than 8.4 million tons compared to last year's 10.1 million tons.

During November Duluth Port increased its farm export volume by over 27 per cent compared to that month last year. But river terminals, this November cut back on shipments by 57 per cent because the barge season actually started its winter shutdown the first week of November.

Commissioner Seetin noted that while the 1979 export summary still needs the December volume and value estimates, it is impossible to approach the 1978 Minnesota export totals.

In December 1978, Minnesota's total grain and oilseed shipments from terminal elevators was 903,845 tons. That was 80,000 tons less than this year's accumulated volume deficit at the end of November.

Rail and truck transportation on which Minnesota farmers are now totally dependent for export marketing of their bulk grains and oilseeds for the balance of this winter, account for only 16 per cent of Minnesota's current annual farm exports.

Reviewing the first eleven months of marketings and an indicated nearly 3 million ton carryover inventory of grains and oilseeds in Minnesota terminal elevators at the end of November, Commissioner Seetin suggested that the state's agriculture industry will probably continue to experience marketing problems resulting from the transportation crisis:

He said that the year end inventory of grain and oilseed stocks on farms and in commercial storage will help to indicate the transportation and marketing problems farmers are likely to experience during the first half of 1980.

"Keep in mind the fact that three of Minnesota's big crops, corn, soybeans and sunflowers, were harvested late this year due to adverse weather. Reportedly there are still scattered fields of these crops not yet harvested. The bulk of these 1979 crops probably is being held over along with accumulated inventories from past years. Each of the quarterly grain stocks reports this past year have shown record Minnesota farm commodity carryover. We could see the same kind of a report for the January 1, 1980 grain stocks in Minnesota," Commissioner Seetin concluded.

Wheat is Minnesota's highest volume and most valuable farm export this year, shipments through November totaling almost 260.6 million bushels with a farm value of nearly $886 million. Corn shipments totaled 220.4 million bushels worth $469.5 million; barley shipped 49.6 million bushels worth $109.5 million; soybeans shipped 52.1 million bushels worth $347.4 million; sunflower seed exports over 1 million metric tons worth $220.75 million; while combined shipments of oats, rye and flaxseed totaled 27.8 million bushels with a farm value of $51.2 million.

Almost two thirds of the total grain and oilseed received by terminal elevators was delivered by trucks, with 34.5 per cent delivered by rail cars.

COOKING CORNER

This Recipe Takes The Cake

Eunice Lambert of Dallas, Texas is a gateau gourmet. For those of us who haven't mastered first-year French, these exotic words translate into "cake expert," a term Mrs. Lambert's many recipients attest to after biting into one of her lush creations.

The personable, Mrs. Lambert enjoys cooking up feasts for family and friends, and modestly admits that desserts are her specialty. "Rich Egg White Cake with Coconut Frosting" is a favorite that's done up proud whether for married daughters and offspring or church functions. "Let's face it," she explained with a smile, "anything homemade tastes better—that extra affection comes right through."

When she is not folding batters, zipping up clothes on an old Singer machine, or working with her church, Mrs. Lambert sells Avon. Her "beat" is within the immediate area of her Oakcliff home. Mrs. Lambert's 36-year Avon reputation for punctuality is so well-known that at one appointment, a customer jokingly refused her entry because, Mrs. Lambert related, "she yelled out that I was five minutes late!"

Unlike some of the great chefs of the world, Eunice Lambert is not stingy about sharing recipes: If you'd like to produce a little bit of heaven, read on. "Bon appetit, or, "y'all enjoy!" is the only other advice Mrs. Lambert would like to extend.

RICH EGG-WHITE CAKE WITH COCONUT FROSTING

Darla Ayers Is 5

Darla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dake Ayers, noted her 5th birthday Sunday, Dec. 16. Guests at a birthday luncheon at the Ayers home the afternoon before were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Meyer, Kim, Jeremy and Melissa and Mrs. Paul Furuseth of Sanders. Bringing birthday wishes Sunday were Lucille Thompson and Myrl Johnson. The traditional rainbow cake on an heirloom cakestand was served by Mrs. Ayers. The cake was decorated with a wishing well motif with birds and flowers, and held five candles. Sunday evening Mrs. Ayers, Randy, Robby, Diane, Denise and Darla participated in Our Savior's Christmas program, which Dake also attended. Monday, Mrs. Ayers and Darla had Cari Farbo as their luncheon guest at McDonalds in Thief River Falls before taking birthday cake to Mrs. Ethel Johnson at Valley Home. Afterwards a visit was made to the public library, where the girls took out their first library cards. Mrs. Ayers and Darla were coffee and cookie guests at the Curtis Farbo home in Sanders when they brought Cari home at the close of the afternoon. Sending gifts, but unable to attend the birthday festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VeVea, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Olson and family and Ethel Johnson. A card and greetings were also received from an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Wakefield, of Hartland.

Christmas Day dinner guests at the Martin Solseng home were Mrs. Lillian Knutson, Mr. and Mrs. Ferryl Ranum and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Page of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Solseng and Heidi of Fargo, Mrs. Esther Solseng, Mrs. Eleanor Joyce, Mrs. Edith Dyrdal and Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Lewis and Todd.

Dinner guests of Mrs. Lydia Olson in Thief River Falls Christmas Day were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Olson, Jeffrey and Steven, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Nelson, Dale, Gary and Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Filpula, Gene, Ricky and Ginger of Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Olson and Kristy, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Haug, Chad, Lara, Kelsey and Tyler of Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Aamot, Wendy and Kellie of St. Paul, Debbie Olson of Minneapolis. Joining them for an afternoon visit were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Olson, Dan Olson, Becky Bruggeman, Susan Olson, Tom Knott and Donnie Anderson.

Supper guests at the Bill Hoglo home Christmas Day were Mr. and Mrs. John Wendel, David, Krista and Lisa of New Brighton, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wendel, Wayne and Kara of East Grand Forks and Mrs. Edna Wendel and Oscar Mossestad of Thief River Falls. Earlier in the afternoon the Wally Lamb, Dick Hoglo and Marvin Olson families had also called briefly.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Lane and Mrs. Ludwig Peterson were Christmas Eve supper guests at the Gary Lane home in Sanders.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Scholin of Thief River Falls were Christmas Eve supper guests at the Roger Dyrdal home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Thompson and Rhiannon of Mound, who came to spend the Christmas holidays at her parental Charles Ellingson home, visited the evening of Christmas Day at the Jim Rude home in North. The previous Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. John Wayne of Thief River Falls visited with the Thompsons at the Ellingson home.

Christmas Eve supper guests at the Melvin Bakken home were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bakken, Robby, Ryan and Kevin, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bakken, Melanie, Angela and Wendy and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dyrdal, Jason, Jamie, Melissa and Brent of Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Inar Mikkelson were among a host of relatives and friends enjoying supper at the Milton Burstad home in Thief River Falls Christmas Day.

Mrs. Burt Lane visited with her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Vraa of Grand Forks at the home of Mrs. Ludwig Peterson in Thief River Falls Friday afternoon. That same evening Gerald Hamre of North and Duane Olson were visitors at the Lane home.

Supper guests at the Herb Swenson home in Sanders Christmas Day were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hallan, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Swenson and Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Melhouse, Angelee, Rodo and Flora of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Melhouse of the Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Moen, Keith and Cory were Saturday evening guests at a cheese party at the Charles Ellingson home.

Christmas Eve supper guests at the Frank Armstrong home were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Olson, Jeffrey and Steve, Mr. and Mrs. Dake Ayers, Randy, Robby, Diane, Denise and Darla, Dan Olson, Becky Bruggeman, Susan Olson, Tom Knott of Red Lake Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VeVea of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Armstrong of Rockville, Maryland, and Donald Armstrong, Kim and Tawnya of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Solseng and Heidi arrived Christmas morning from Crookston where they had spent since Saturday visiting her parents, the Glass family. They spent the week of Christmas at the home of his mother, Esther Solseng.

Donald Armstrong, Kim and Tawnya of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Ron Armstrong of Rockville, Maryland were callers at the home of Eleanor Joyce Christmas morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Janzen and Tom of Roseau were Wednesday afternoon coffee guests at the Gordon Olson home. They, together with Mrs. Olson and Jane, had visited at the hospital in Thief River Falls that afternoon to make the acquaintance of infant Katy Jo Klegstad. Katy had been born Christmas Day to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Klegstad of Hallock.

Congratulations Mrs. Klegstad is the former Kim Janzen, a niece of Mrs. Olson.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Berg, Pam, Karen and Sandy of Helgeland spent Christmas Eve with her mother and uncle, Lilas Klegstad and Norman Olson.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Blomker, Nathan, Odetta and Jonathan left Saturday for Elk River to spend Christmas with his folks, the Christ Blomkers. They returned home Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hallan were Sunday visitors at the Bill Wendt home in Thief River Falls.

AAA Directors Meet, Urge Oil Decontrol

Resolution urging decontrol of the oil industry was passed by the board of directors of the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA) during their 73rd annual meeting at the Radisson hotel, St. Paul.

They will not endorse a windfall profit tax, but asked that government and private industry "take the steps necessary to assure adequate energy supplies and reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil."

Minnesota AAA board, which annually endorses resolutions to protect the interests of motorists, also urged the state legislature and congress to act promptly in resolving questions surrounding the construction of one or more crude oil pipelines to serve Minnesota. The board noted that the complete cutoff of crude oil exports from Canada before 1981 will place Minnesota in a precarious supply position. The proposed pipelines would assure a supply of crude oil for Minnesota refineries.

In other energy-related action, the Policy committee of Minnesota AAA also passed a motion supporting the use of gasohol.

Enforcement of laws regarding truck weight was also urged by Minnesota AAA. Noting that they had vigorously opposed increasing the truck weight limit to 80,000 pounds, the board of Minnesota AAA pointed out that fatal accidents involving heavy trucks increased 47.6 per cent between 1975, when 80,000-pound trucks were first allowed nationally, and 1978. Meanwhile, fatal accidents involving automobiles increased only seven per cent.

Engineering studies have shown that the heavier trucks cause faster deterioration of interstate and trunk highways and bridges. Truck weight limit laws are now inadequately enforced, and many trucks are over their allowed limit.

So, for safety reasons and to prevent even more deterioration of the roads, Minnesota AA asked the state legislature to pass laws to strengthen weight enforcement.

Another resolution intended to protect motorists' investment in the state's streets and highways supported an increase in the state motor fuel tax up to a maximum tax of 11 cents per gallon. The resolution noted that the increase was needed just to maintain current roads due to inflation and escalating maintenance costs.

In another matter regarding roads, Minnesota AAA noted that even though salt is needed to reduce slipperiness on roads, it does cause serious damage to vehicles, highways and bridges. Therefore, the organization asked the Minnesota department of transportation to clarify the enforcement, of winter maintenance procedures in an effort to minimize salt damage.

Officers were also elected during the meeting. Julian O. Newhouse, Alexandria, was elected chairman of the board for the 446,000-member organization. John H. Given, Detroit Lakes, was elected vice-chairman and Edward M. Pierce, Burnsville, was elected president.

Other officers elected include: Merton H. Kirby, St. Peter, treasurer; H. Duane Edberg, Richfield, corporate secretary; Robert P. Rossman, Burnsville, controller; and Duane J. Crandell, St. Paul, general counsel.

State Law Requires Clear Car Windows

"Frosty windows are a major driving hazard during this season of below-freezing temperatures," said Commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"According to state law, motor vehicle windshields and front side windows must be clear of frost, snow and condensed moisture any time the vehicle is in operation," said Sopsic.

"Clear vision in all directions in absolutely essential for safe driving. Studies estimate that your eyes provide 85 to 90 per cent of all the information you receive about traffic conditions.

"Frosty and fogged-up windows are a daily hazard this time of year especially when vehicles are parked outside overnight. Taking a few extra minutes to clean all your windows is not only a good safety precaution, but an excellent way of avoiding getting a ticket," added Sopsic.

Underground Water-Use Being Studied

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

Residents of Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., live above what may be an energy storage area of enormous potential.

Beneath the two cities is a "layer cake" of porous rock containing water interspersed with impermeable rock formations. Scientists are investigating the use of one of these porous rock areas—called aquifers—for storing heat, according to Matt Walton, director of the Minnesota geological survey at the University of Minnesota.

Aquifers are geological formations that absorb and hold precipitation like a sponge. There are four aquifers under the Twin Cities. The aquifers have been tapped for drinking water and industrial uses such as air conditioning.

But members of the Geological Survey are now looking at the Franconia-Ironton-Galesville aquifer, which lies about 700 feet under the Twin Cities, as a possible storage area for thermal energy.

Geological survey is now working on plans to use the aquifer for storing heated water. System would work like this: Two wells would be drilled into the Franconia aquifer. One well, would be used for pumping cold water out of the aquifer. Once pumped out, the water would be passed through a heat exchanger and the resultant heated water would be pumped back into the aquifer through the second well, where it would be stored until the heat was needed.

"The beauty of this operation is that it is a nonconsumptive use of water in the aquifer," Walton said. The Franconia aquifer has been used as an industrial source of water, but is not a source of drinking water, he said.

Water, heated from 53 to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, would be pumped under pressure through well-insulated pipes into the aquifer. Once in the aquifer, the water would form a bubble of heated rocks and water that would hold the heat for up to six months.

"Many people believe aquifers have a flow rate like streams and rivers," Walton said. "Some do, but the Franconia does not." The Franconia flow rate is slow enough that the stored heat would move only a few feet in six months, Walton said.

Without some type of heat storage system, the cost of heating buildings escalates during the coldest months of the winter. Coal, which is a relatively low-cost fuel, is often not efficient enough to handle the winter demands for heat. As a result, gas or oil, which are more efficient but also more expensive, must be used.

When combined with an effective heat storage system, however, low-cost coal could be used to meet high energy demands during peak periods. "A building could keep its heating units running at a steady base level all year round, storing heat in the late spring and early fall and taking it out during peak times," Walton said.

Theoretically, the Franconia aquifer could store heat for up to six months and still return up to 95 per cent of the original heat, Walton said.

If the Franconia proves to be an efficient heat storage area, Walton, along with others from the University of Minnesota Institute of technology and physical plant department, hope to put the heat storage system to work under the St. Paul campus. University is currently working on a proposal to build such a system with the Minnesota energy agency, Honeywell corporation, and General Electric.

"This is one of the quickest methods you can use to save a large amount of energy," Walton said.

Carrying Clout

Catchy advertising slogan to the contrary, you carry more clout when you are in the upper strata of the federal administration than when you merely carry a popular credit card. Comment on that fact is contained in the following editirial from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Even the most politically naive among us is aware that politicians and parties in power have a great deal of influence over how and where certain federal funds will be distributed.

It has always been that way, and no administration or party seems anxious to change the spoils system. Restrictions have been placed on some areas of the political process in recent years, and abuses do not seem quite as obvious. But there always have been and apparently always will be methods of rewarding areas and individuals for their support.

One of the most blatant examples of improper use of the power that comes from controlling federal funds started when Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne announced that she had decided to support Sen. Edward Kennedy instead of President Carter for the Democratic party presidential nomination. Chicago is an important cog in the party machinery, and its mayor is always courted by candidates.

Mayor Byrne, who had apparently been firmly in the Carter camp, clearly must be punished for exercising her right to support the candidate of her choice. Charging into the fray to show Mayor Byrne how foolish her decision had been, transportation Secretary Neil E. Goldschmidt openly intimated that he would find ways of denying federal funds to Chicago.

It is an important issue for Chicago, because the city has been counting on federal help in finding room at O'Hare International airport for a new international air terminal. Efforts to persuade the Air Force to relocate an air base at O'Hare to make room for the terminal had been unsuccessful until President Carter announced in October that the Air Force had agreed to move.

"Goldschmidt says that he has "lost confidence" in Mayor Byrne, that he has "real personal problems dealing with her" and that her conduct "just doesn't entitle her to a great deal of respect." He backtracked somewhat last week, saying that Chicago will get funds it is entitled to but that his department will deal with someone other than the mayor.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin has reacted angrily to what he calls "potential political blackmail" and has prepared a bill which would stop Sec. Goldschmidt from distributing 1.4 billion dollars in discretionary mass transit funds during the 1980 presidential campaign.

"With billons of dollars in discretionary funds available to the administration, and the amount increasing with every passing year, this is a corruption that cannot and should not be smiled at, winked at, or in any way condoned or accepted," Sen. Proxmire declares.

Corruption may be a strong word. But it is certainly questionable at best for a high-ranking government official to state openly that federal funds will not go to a city whose head has committed the unpardonable offense of deciding to support the "wrong" candidate. It does nothing to strengthen the administration or its leaders, and it provides another classic example of the damage which can be done by a spokesman who lacks good common sense. Sen. Proxmire is right when he says that such abuses must not be condoned.

Not The Whole Truth

Someone once sagely observed that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. It might also be noted that telling a half-truth may not really be telling a lie, but the effect is the same.

A case in point is a statement made by Rep Parren Mitchell of Maryland in debate over a fuel aid bill in Congress last year. Rep. Mitchell pointed out that three people froze to death in his district' and then said, "You ask those people who froze to death whether the cities met their responsibilities."

The Congressman's comment received widespread comment in the nation media in support of granting federal funds to the poor. There is an ominous threat in the possibility of people not having enough money to heat their homes and therefore freezing to death.

When the Baltimore Sun did some checking on Matchell's claim, the newspaper's reporters found that three people in his district had indeed frozen to death. But none had died indoors. All three deaths involved derelicts or intoxicated people who perished outdoors where all the federal fuel aid in the world would have been of no help to them.

Rep. Mitchell had told the truth — but only part of it — and when he was confronted with the facts he acknowledged the deaths happened outside. The shock impact had already sent its waves out over the country and the Congress.

The system is not unlike that employed by government-controlled communications media throughout the world. An example given is a race between a United States automobile and a Russian vehicle which the U.S. car won handily. A USSR newspaper reportedly covered the event as follows:

"An international sports car competition was held recently with the Russian entry finishing second and the American car finishing next to last."

Going Too Far

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

This nation will be in serious trouble when it says that a business cannot advertise its own product.

Yet, that's exactly what the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG) is trying to tell Northern States Power Co. in its advertising and mailings.

NSP has embarked on an advertising campaign promoting the use of nuclear power in meeting the nation's energy needs. NSP has made certain assertions in its advertising that MPIRG objects to, including such things as: nuclear wastes can be managed without compromising the safety of present or future generations; nuclear power is an inexpensive method of generating electricity; and nuclear power has proved to be the safest, most pollution-free method presently available for generating large amounts of electricity.

MPIRG, an organization of state students which is funded by the students, has filed a suit in district court asking for damages of $300,000 and an injunction preventing NSP from using such advertising in the future.

An MPIRG attorney claimed that the advertising and pamphlets violated the freedom of speech of NSP customers and the fairness doctrine, and demanded that NSP be required to send an MPIRG pamphlet out with its monthly electric bills in refutation of the NSP advertising.

We fail to see that it's wrong for a stockholder-owned utility to promote its own product, and if the courts rule otherwise, then all business in the state and nation is in serious trouble.

We would wager that the great majority of NSP users see nothing wrong with NSP's advertising stance. MPIRG is trying to take away NSP's freedom of speech with its suit. To our knowledge, MPIRG and its members haven't been denied freedom of speech. They are free to criticize NSP verbally, through the mailing out of their own pamphlets and in letters to newspapers. And; they could even take advertising in newspapers and other media promoting their cause.

MPIRG seems to be saying that they're for freedom of speech as long as it doesn't promote something with which they disagree.

Not So Renewable

Following editorial is from the Kossuth County (Iowa) Advance:

One of the statements made, and basically correct, is that wood is a renewable resource.

But just how renewable?

Families in the northern climates, looking ahead to winter, have stockpiled wood for use in wood-burning stoves or fireplaces, and it is understandable. Much of this wood is from fallen trees and otherwise unuseable forest products.

However, while we think of trees as renewable, just how renewable? It takes a long time to grow a tree of any size.

Trees are being planted as replacements, but by the time newly-planted ones are big enough to cut or use, let's hope that alternate sources of energy and heat have been developed. That is the real answer.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Girls is naturally more beautiful than boys," wrote the teacher on the board, asking the class to correct it. A boy volunteer, wrote, "Girls is artificially more beautiful than boys."

Iowa sportsmen apparently are curious about a sign on one of the streams which states, "When this sign is out of sight it is unsafe to cross this river."

NEWS OF HEALTH

A hospital nurse answers a patient's call with the help of modern technology.

For maximum patient care the $30 million six-story tower addition to Mills Memorial Hospital in San Mateo, CA, is equipped with a fully integrated communications network, including a nurse-call system.

Installation also features an advanced Sylvania intercom system, a paging network, color TV in patients' rooms and a master-antenna system.

According to General Telephone and Electronics, each bed is equipped with a pillow-control unit called a Tele-Mike. A patient signals for a nurse. A light goes on outside the room, and the patient's bed and room number are displayed on a digital panel at the nursing station. The nurse speaks with the patient through a handset.

The Tele-Mike unit at each bed also contains remote signals to a 19-inch color TV set. Sound from the TV is received through the pillow unit, letting the patient listen without disturbing other patients. The TV audio automatically cuts off when the patient is speaking to the nurse and goes on again at the end of the conversation.

In addition, Mills Memorial is equipped with an Intercom System that helps speed communications between key departments and staff members. This reduces regular telephone congestion and leaves hands free for the caller and called so they can continue working while carrying on their conversation.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Wisdom of Big Brother

The Wall Street Journal recently described a letter one of its reporters had received from a Michigan lawyer relating his experience with an existing federal energy program. It seems the individual wanted to know if his client could obtain a grant from a $10-million fund operated by ERDA, the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Sorry, replied ERDA, only $1 million was left; the other $9 million had been all used up for "administrative expenses." Of course that was only one tiny program. Just imagine how much more "administration" we can buy if Congress passes the Administration's proposals for more than $200 billion in new energy taxes.

The Taxman Taketh, and Taketh and Taketh ...

The Tax Foundation recently reported that the median income of our typical American family will reach $18,467 in 1979, up 66 per cent from 1972. That seemed like good news, until I heard the rest.

During the same period, prices rose more rapidly—up 75 per cent, but taxes really went through the roof. Federal income taxes rose 82 per cent, Social Security taxes 142 per cent, while state and local taxes climbed fastest of all. They are now four times as high as a decade ago.

Perhaps that explains why there are now 78.9 million persons working in the private economy, but 81.6 receiving government payments of one kind or another. If we want to be taxes less, we've got to stop asking for more.

No Sweat, Our Printing Press Can Take Care Of That

Did you know the Treasury Department makes double payments on more than 100,000 checks a year, and generally makes no attempt to recover the money? In fact, some $73 million has been erroneously paid out during the last three years alone.

The typical case: An intended recipient notifies the Treasury his or her check never arrived, or was lost. If the department can verify the check has not been cashed; it sends out a second check. But then it does not stop payment on the original check which it claims it cannot legally do. The result is both checks get cashed, often by deliberate fraud. Wouldn't it be nice if you could write as many checks as you wanted . . . without ever having to worry about having enough money to back them up?

Watch What They Do, Not What They Say

One of the least reported stories in America is the failure of government to do as good a job in any given situation as private industry.

Take energy conservation. Since 1972, business and industry have voluntarily reduced their energy consumption by 16.8 per cent. But the federal government, the nation's largest single energy consumer, has failed to curb its own energy use. And guess who has the worst record of all? A House Government Operations Committee report recently blasted the Energy Department for its "abysmal record in saving energy." The department ranks second in energy consumption, 12th in energy conservation.

Oh well, no one's perfect. After all, Big Brother does have the responsibility of running our lives. We should expect he'll waste a little energy.

They Call It "Dissanctioning Gender-Specific Terminology"

That's what the Department of Health, Education and Welfare calls one of its favorite activities—spending your tax dollars so its paper pushers can dream-up terms like "dairy products deliverer" as a substitute for that old sexist bugaboo—milkman.

Just thought you might like to know.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — When the Veterans Administration's modified life plan insurance coverage reduces by one-half at age 65 or 70, is additional life insurance available?

A — The insured may continue the full amount of modified life insurance by replacing the decreased amount with an ordinary life policy. An additional premium must be paid for the special ordinary life policy.

Q — Does the Veterans Administration provide job-finding assistance for veterans?

A — VA provides information about job marts, on-the-job and apprenticeship training opportunities, etc., through all VA regional offices.

Q — I was notified that I was entitled to Veterans Administration compensation eleven months ago and I waived a portion of my retired pay. Will I be taxed the full amount of retired pay for the past year?

A — No. You will be taxed only on the retired pay that exceeds the compensation to which you were entitled.

IF TOOTH KNOCKED OUT BY INJURY

Tommy was riding his skateboard down the driveway. He lost his balance and fell to the pavement. He wiped the blood from his mouth and found his upper front tooth in his hand. What do you do? Luckily your dentist can deal effectively with this kind of dental emergency. But he'll need your help.

Collect the tooth and wrap it in a wet cloth, or place it in a glass of salted water. Bring the child immediately to your dentist's office. Don't waste time because the chances for a successful replantation are best if done within 30 minutes to an hour after the mishap.

Some parents rush their child to the dentist, but in their haste forget to bring the tooth. Don't forget the tooth! And don't try to clean it yourself—even if it looks messy. What you think is dirt may actually be soft tissues that will help the healing process when the tooth is reinserted in its socket.

The younger the patient, the better the chances of success. Long-lasting results have been disappointing in replanting teeth in adults."

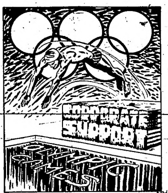
The big business of amateur sports



Amateur sports & American business!

U.S. corporations are becoming key participants in this country's amateur sports programs, Ollan Cassell, executive director of the AAU said. It appears to be the best way to go for our society. The East Germans and Russians have state-supported sports systems, but they experience political intervention.

"Swimming was one of the first amateur sports to receive significant financial aid from the American business community," Cassell said. He noted that in November Phillips Petroleum renewed its national sponsorship of swimming.

Company involvement in swimming began at the end of 1972. "The new contract will run from 1981 through 1984. This year the company became sponsor of the nation's diving program which was also renewed through 1984," Cassell said.

Like Cassell, Col. F. Don Miller; head of the U.S. Olympic Committee, eschews government financing. "We are obtaining corporate sponsors to help refurbish existing facilities, build new training centers and provide room, board and transportation for the athletes."

The USOC has had a corporate sponsorship program for 25 years. However, its basic goal was to fund teams being sent to the Pan American and Olympic Games. The new thrust of corporate fund raising has been in the areas of development, according to Miller.

Corporate swimming sponsorship is noted as a benchmark in this development thrust. Nearly 75 percent of the corporate money goes directly to athletes and swimming clubs to help defray expenses of traveling to national championships in the U.S. and to support U.S. participation in major international meets such as World Championships.

Other corporate supporters of amateur sports include: Dial Soap, U.S. gymnastics; Standard Brands, the AAU/USA Indoor Track and Field Championships under its Fleischmann's Margarine label; Miller Lite, AAU's U.S. National Track and Field team; Mack Trucks, the AAU's international weight lifting program; Burger King, two national training centers; Coca-Cola, the National Sports Festival; Sears, Roebuck, & Co., the AAU Junior Olympics program; Nabisco, the AAU physical fitness program; Sun Co., a national coach program for wrestling; Data General Corp., which donated a computer for a USOC bio-mechanics program.

"We want the American swimmers and divers to have the opportunities to be as good as they want to be," said Dr. Aaron Weinstein, president of the competitive diving committee of the AAU.

"Diving is an expensive sport, because of the amount of traveling involved. With corporate support, we can send our people to at least four different international events a year to get experience against the best divers in the world.

"This year, we placed one-two in all springboard and platform competitions in the Swedish Cup, a very prestigious event. We were never close to that before. Having a sponsor is a gift from heaven."

According to Ray Bussard, swim coach at the University of Tennessee and Pan Am Games coach, "the surest way to continue American strength in the swimming events is to expand the number of international meets where American swimmers compete.

"With increased corporate financial support, our best athletes will be able to compete more frequently against better international swimmers."

Coach Bussard said the results will be seen in the Moscow Olympics. "The American women will do significantly better than their '76 Games performance. The men's team will match the depth of past American teams."

Kerosene lamps and heaters remove fear from blackouts

Suddenly ... no lights ... no heat!

So it was last winter for millions of homes in Portland, Dallas, Little Rock, St. Louis, Memphis, Tacoma, Rochester and dozens of other cities as the result of one or more power outages that have become a far too frequent part of today's lifestyle.

Some outages lasted hours, some lasted days. In Dallas, many homes were without light and heat for almost a week.

Where's the flashlight?

If it has ever happened to you, you know the futility of fighting such an experience with flashlights, flickering candles and extra blankets.

There is a better way.

Simply, equip your home with modern lighting and heating products that burn safe and easily-stored kerosene. When the power goes off, brilliant white light will be at hand for as long as you need it. And warm, comforting heat will be immediately available.

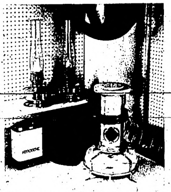
Years ago, before electricity reached rural communities, millions of Americans used kerosene lamps and heaters in just this way, every day.

Glow from the past

The favorite lamp of that era was the Aladdin kerosene mantle lamp. It represented the highest refinement in oil-burning lamps because of its patented mantle and burner assembly.

Unlike the smoky, sooty wick lamps of the time, Aladdin lamps burned with a quiet, clean glow, equivalent to a 60-watt light bulb. They still do.

Later, the same kerosene-burning technology was directed toward perfecting a safe, clean, odorless kerosene space heater. The result was the Aladdin Blue Flame kerosene heater which went on to become the most widely used heater of its type in the world.



STORED IN A "HOME EMERGENCY CENTER," Aladdin kerosene mantle lamps and a safe U.L. listed Aladdin kerosene heater are ready to add comforting light and heat to a modern home during any power outage.

For today's world

The point of all this history is that modern versions of Aladdin lamps and heaters are available today as the perfect defense against the fear and helplessness you experience when your home is suddenly without light or heat.

Many home owners keep their Aladdin lamps and heaters in a readily accessible "home emergency center," while many more make regular use of the lamps for decorative lighting and the heater for supplemental heat wherever and whenever it is needed.

History repeats itself

Either way, if and when a power outage strikes, these prudent families are well equipped to handle it, with products whose time has come ... again.

MIXED BREED CATTLE combining Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn breeding are produced on the Bud and Irene Wishard ranch between Oklee and Trail in east Polk county. The ranch had been a sheep ranch when the Wishards purchased it in 1968, deciding to locate here after driving 23,000 miles in five states to look at available ranch property.

Stakes High In Peat Use; Alternatives Considered

by Rebecca Judge
Project Coordinator
UMD Peat Ed. Project

The stakes are high. Forecasted economic benefits paint a rosy picture in these times of inflation and unemployment. Persistent environmental concerns cause us to weigh each alternative carefully and proceed with extreme caution, if at all.

The subject of this concern: Minnesota's 7.2 million acres of peatland.

Although previous articles have explored peat's potential use in forestry and agriculture, the salient cause of both concern and optimism for many Minnesotans is the possible development of peatland for horticulture, energy and chemical production.

These uses are classified by the Minnesota department of natural resources as consumptive. This means that they require the extraction of peat from the bog surface, a process which eventually and permanently alters the state of the peatland. The resource will not grow back for thousands of years.

Given the irrevocable nature of peat extraction, it is important to give serious consideration to that which is gained and that which is lost in following these utilization alternatives.

Since peat development for energy production was discussed in some detail in a previous peat article, we will focus now on the extraction of peat for horticultural and industrial chemical purposes.

Peat has important horticultural applications. Extracted from the bog and dried, sphagnum peat is often added to soil to aid in moisture retention.

Minnesota, with the only large sphagnum moss deposits in the United States, could become a major exporter of horticultural peat. With world demand increasing yearly, the development of this industry could become a significant source of income and employment for the state.

While Minnesota currently produces about 26,000 short tons of horticultural peat each year, Dr. Rouse Farnham of the University of Minnesota believes that we could increase production to one million tons per year by the year 2000. Farnham's plan would require the development of 10,000 to 20,000 acres of Minnesota peatland.

The economic benefits of increased horticultural production of peat are obvious when one considers that in 1976 alone, the U.S. imported approximately 338,000 short tons of peat at a cost of over $29 million.

Peat development for industrial chemical use has been a long-established practice in many European countries, but has yet to be adopted by the U.S. The suitability of Minnesota peat to chemical production is still under investigation, but if proven feasible, an important new industry might develop.

Chemicals that could be derived from peat include peat bitumens, which yield wax and steroids; peat carbohydrates, which produce a sugar-rich food on which yeast may be grown and later added to animal feed, peat humic acids, which promote nitrogen and magnesium uptake by crop plants, improve root formation by seedlings and improve a crop's resistance to pests; and peat coke, which has been used to produce activated carbon, a product used to remove pollutants from industrial waste gases and water. Peat coke is also useful for the production of certain iron alloys.

Large scale peat development and extraction promises substantial short-term economic benefits which number into the millions of dollars. According to Wilber Maki, University of Minnesota economist, a development scenario for the Arrowhead Region of Minnesota which includes peat utilization for crop agriculture, chemical production (including synthetic natural gas), synthetic natural gas distribution, peat coke production and peat extraction or mining would result in the creation of approximately 18,500 new jobs by the year 2000 with an associated increase in the gross output of the Arrowhead region of $888,876,000. Maki's analysis does not include the effects of peat development for horticultural purposes or extensive development of peat for timberlands.

Over the longer term, Maki and the MDNR warn about the danger of a boom-bust cycle caused by the lack of proper planning and resource allocation. Maki's development scenario calls for the extraction of approximately 18.5 million tons of peat per year. Considering that Minnesota contains an estimated 16.5 billion tons of peat, it would take nearly one thousand years to exhaust this resource.

Environmental concerns regarding large scale peat extraction remain largely unsettled, primarily due to a lack of adequate information. While most researchers agree that the clearing, drainage and extraction of peatlands will result in some negative environmental impacts, there is disagreement in the scientific community regarding the gravity of the environmental threat posed by massive peat extraction.

Clearing the peatlands to allow for the resource's extraction will naturally result in the permanent or temporary loss of habitat for those animals and plants living on the peatlands. This loss could

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Bud Wishard slaps a saddle on his quarterhorse and trails his herd of mixed breed beef cattle to summer lowland pasture, he is a picture out of the pages of the classic Western novel.

But when he piles into his car or pickup and races around the northwestern part of Minnesota to every meeting of cattlemen he can find, he is a businessman with a mission and a purpose. His mission is to promote the forthcoming beeferendum (a coined term for a national beef referendum). His purpose is to stay in business as a beef producer.

Most people don't think of northwestern Minnesota as ranch country, but if they took a jaunt down the lane into the Wishard ranch between Oklee and Trail in east Polk county they wouldn't take long to be convinced. A sharp left turn takes the visitor across a pipe grate apparatus known as a cattle guard, an ingenious device to permit wheeled traffic to cross but prevent livestock from doing so. It might be the only one in all of Minnesota.

Off to the right at the base of the hill is a spread of buildings and corrals right out of that afore-mentioned Western novel. The road curves down along the side of the hill until it spreads out to a parking area in front of a low log ranch house. Off to the left a network of corrals holds a variety of cattle.

Bud Wishard, his wife Irene, son ElRio, adopted daughter Vicki and foster son Bruce Oehlke came to the Trail area from South Dakota a dozen years ago. Vicki is now married to Tim Myers of Gully and Bruce lives at Cambridge. For the previous 17 years the Wishards had leased land from the government "on Sitting Bull's reservation" in north central South Dakota and raised cattle there. When the leasing situation changed and they were without a place to ranch any more, they were forced to go elsewhere.

Bud recalls that he was pretty upset about it at the time, but that his Dad told him that some day he might thank the government for forcing him to move. He's ready to do that now, having found a place he likes to do the thing he wants to do most — raise cattle.

The Wishards bought 2,000 acres for their beef operation and have since added 1,200 more. They run 340 head of beef animals, mostly of Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn cross breeding, and raise young stock for sale as feeders. They figure it takes seven acres of land in their area to support one beef cow. In South Dakota the minimum was 20 acres and in some areas the government required 30 acres per cow. To run a 200-cow herd required leasing up to 7,000 acres of land.

They settled on ranching in the Trail area because the cost of land in relation to the number of acres it took to maintain a cow was favorable and because a suitable ranch was available. Before making the decision, however, they drove 23,000 miles in five states to find the place they wanted.

Bud has long been active in cattlemen's groups and since he has been in Minnesota he has taken on the responsibility of organizing cattlemen here, including the Northwest Stockmen's association, serving as its first president. He is a walking encyclopedia of facts and figures on the industry, and what he can't quote from memory he can find in a couple of minutes.

And one thing he is convinced about is that beef producers better grab themselves by the bootstraps and give a healthy tug if they expect their industry to survive as they know it today. And the best way to do it is to join forces, pool resources, conduct research and promote their product, creating a market that will allow them to sell at prices available today or higher.

"I want to survive in the cattle business," is the way he quite simply explains his interest in the beeferendum. "The only way that I and a lot of other cattlemen can do that is to recover the losses from 1974 through 1978. Those were some mighty lean years for beef producers."

National figures indicate that the average cattleman in the country lost $95 per cow in 1975, $54 in 1976, $77 in 1977 and $38 in 1978 – a total loss of $261 per cow, over the four-year period. That's a high price to pay for having the company of a cow around the farm.

"If beef is the operator's sole enterprise, like it is for us," Wishard explained, "the only way to survive those lean years was to borrow more on the inflating value of real

CATTLE RANCHING is a family tradition for Ralph (Bud) Wishard of Trail. His father ranched in South Dakota and Bud leased Indian reservation land for ranching there for 17 years before coming to Minnesota in 1968. His son ElRio is also involved in the ranch operation here and Bud's grandson Jamie (above), age two and one-half, is growing into the tradition. Wishard, who is chairman of the Minnesota beeferendum committee for the Minnesota state cattlemen's association believes adoption of the referendum will help make it possible for cattlemen to continue in their operations by making beef production profitable. More than half of the beef cattle in the United States are in herds of 50 animals or less. The years of 1975 through 1978 showed cattlemen in the nation had an average net loss of $261 per cow for the four-year period.

RALPH (BUD) WISHARD is a cattleman who would like nothing better than being able to keep right on being a cattleman. He has been traveling extensively throughout northwestern Minnesota recently, promoting and answering questions about the forthcoming beef referendum. The Trail rancher is a chairman of the beeferendum committee of the Minnesota state cattlemen's association

County Board Annual Meet Set Tuesday

Organizational meeting of the Pennington county board of commissioners will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the board room of the county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Chairman and vice chairman will be elected and a number of routine annual business items will be handled. Included will be a number of appointments to standing boards and committees of local, area and statewide jurisdiction. Bids will also be opened on widening SAR 3 east from its intersection with highway 59.

Storm Blocks Roads, Causes School Closing

Thief River Falls schools were closed today as a result of a brief and less severe than expected snow storm which struck the area Sunday. Several inches of snow fell and accumulations driven by northerly winds blocked a number of roads and streets, making travel difficult.

Temperatures which had been unseasonably high throughout most of December and into January plummeted to the 15 degrees below zero range last night. Weather is expected to remain cold throughout the remainder of the week.

Newcomers To Hear Brandt

The Newcomers Club will meet Tuesday, January 8, at 8 p.m. at the Pizza Hut. The guest speaker will be Joyce Brandt of Children and Parents Learning Together, who will give information on that program.

All women new to the area are invited to attend.

Fifth Annual 'Don't Smoke' Day Successful

Fifth annual Minnesota D-Day, a day set aside to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes, was a great success according to a survey just completed, reports Ching Johnson, 1979 D-Day chairman. Survey of 1979 D-Day pledge card signers reveals that 17.1 per cent of them gave up cigarettes on the last D-Day (January 25, 1979) and haven't smoked since.

Survey was conducted approximately 10 months after D-Day by the D-Day steering committee under the supervision of committee member Jim Lodermeier, Shakopee. Handling the addressing and mailing of survey materials were volunteers from the Knights of Columbus women's auxiliary in Shakopee.

Every tenth pledge card was pulled to be the sample for the 1979 D-Day survey and D-Day questionnaires were mailed to these people.

A total of 45 per cent of the sample responded to the survey for a total of 203. Besides the 17.1 per cent who gave up cigarettes on D-Day and haven't smoked since, another 40 per cent made it through the day without a cigarette, but resumed smoking.

Of those who "kicked the habit," 62 per cent were between the ages of 21 and 40. Survey also showed that 71 per cent of the quitters had been smoking about a pack or more of cigarettes each day.

Women and girls proved to be much more successful in giving up cigarettes than men and boys. Survey responses indicated 62 per cent of those who quit for good were female and 38 per cent male.

D-Day is co-sponsored by the Minnesota Lung Association and Minnesota division, American Cancer Society. Other participating agencies and organizations include: the State Departments of Education and Health; Minnesota dental and medical associations, Association for Non-Smokers' rights, Minnesota Association of Student councils, Minnesota Interagency council on Smoking and Health; and the Minnesota Society for Public Health Education.

Concept of D-Day originated in Monticello, Minnesota, January 6, 1974, as the brainchild of Lynn R. Smith, then publisher of the local newspaper. D-Day has been the model for all the other "don't smoke" days that have emerged across the country since.

Minnesota's next D-Day is scheduled for Thursday, January 24, 1980. Supporters are urging smokers to "join the crowd, quit smoking on D-Day."

Babinski and Yonke Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Babinski, East Grand Forks announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol, to Marvin Yonke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke of Thief River Falls.

Both are 1979 graduates of the East Grand Forks area vocational technical institute. Miss Babinski is employed by the AVTI and Yonke is employed at Acme Electric Motor company of Grand Forks.

A June 28th wedding at the Sacred Heart Catholic church in East Grand Forks is planned.

Children And Parents Plan Seeks Entrants

Pre-registration for the programs of "Children and Parents Learning Together" will be held today through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and tomorrow (Tuesday) from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Mark Twain elementary school.

Registration procedure will take from 20 to 30 minutes, according to Mrs. Joyce Brandt, program coordinator, and those registering will need proof of immunization of the child before the child is admitted to a class.

Anyone living in the Thief River Falls school district is eligible to participate in the program if they are expectant parents or are parents of a child under five years of age.

"Goal of our program is to enhance and support the role of the parents as the first and most important teachers of their own children," Mrs. Brandt said.

"During activity sessions, parents and their children will creatively share a wide variety of activities set up for each section. We hope to provide the parent with ideas for activities to do with the child which will help the child develop cognitively, socially, emotionally and physically as well as being fun for the child. And we hope to convey a sense of how to enjoy children by watching their growth and development."

Activity sessions will be held Monday or Wednesday from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 2:30 p.m.; Tuesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.; and Tuesday, January 15, from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

A parent session on making toys from throw-aways will be held on Tuesday, January 22, from 7 to 9 p.m. All materials will be provided and registration will be limited.

Assisting Mrs. Brandt in the program are Sharon Humphrey, early childhood teacher, and Yvonne Sorenson, secretary and librarian. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and the telephone number is 681-5670.

Oatmeal Bread

2 cups boiling water
1 cup oatmeal
2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup molasses
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup lukewarm water
1 package yeast
Flour to make stiff dough

Method: Pour boiling water over oatmeal and cool till lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Combine and add shortening, molasses and salt and beat well. Add flour to make a stiff dough and knead. Grease top, cover and let rise until double in size. Knead down and form into two loaves. Let rise. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 55 minutes. This bread is exceptionally good served with slices of cheese.

Note: This is an old family recipe and requires no sugar. For those who want a sweeter bread, do not add more than one tablespoon sugar as the molasses contains sweetner.

The Kvicks live on highway 59 south, near the theatre. They moved to Thief River Falls seven years ago when Kvick was transferred here by the U.S. Postal department. They have four children: Karl, in the ninth grade; Kelly, seventh; Karen, third; and Kathy, in kindergarten.

The Kvicks attend St. John Lutheran church, where he is head usher and together with his wife, is a member of the handbell choir. Mrs. Kivck is also chairman of the altar guild. She enjoys sewing and makes much of the clothing worn by the girls. She also enjoys reading.

Scientists Examine Sun During Eclipse

by James Cornell
Smithsonian News Service

Small, black shadow of the moon will fall over parts of India and Africa February 16, and a host of American astronomers will travel halfway around the Earth just to spend a couple of minutes in the dark.

For the solar physicist, not to mention the devoted amateur astronomer, almost no distance is too far to go for the chance to observe and study one of nature's rarest, briefest and most beautiful phenomena—a total eclipse of the sun.

In February, when the sun will be momentarily blacked out along a 4,000-mile path stretching from the eastern South Atlantic to the Bay of Bengal, scientists at sites in India and East Africa will attempt to investigate those physical features of the sun's outer atmosphere that are visible only during an eclipse.

At the same time, scores of other scientists using instruments aboard airplanes, rockets and space satellites will be making observations coordinated with their ground-based colleagues. Goal of these studies is to gain a better understanding of those forces controlling the sun's energy—and ultimately its effect on Earth.

"The value of any experiment conducted during a solar eclipse is enhanced because so many other instruments are being used at the same time," says Professor Robert W. Noyes, associate director for solar and stellar physics at the Harvard-Smithsonian center for astrophysics, in Cambridge, MA. "We have an opportunity to look at the same processes on the sun in many different ways."

Noyes is co-investigator on an experiment with the Sacramento Peak observatory to be carried out at India's Hyderabad observatory. The experiment, designed to measure the flow of material in the sun's outer atmosphere, is one of several coordinated in India by the National science foundation.

Ground-based observations from India will be complemented by data from a center-designed experiment aboard a rocket launched from White Sands, New Mexico on the same day.

Solar eclipses are caused when the moon passes between the sun and earth, covering the sun's disk and casting a shadow upon the earth below. Because of a providential quirk of nature — and perspective — the apparent size of the sun and moon are almost exactly the same when viewed from Earth. In reality, of course, the sun is hundreds of times larger.

As seen from space, the moon's shadow is a dark circle about 100 miles in diameter which races eastward across the globe at speeds of several hundred miles an hour. A partial eclipse may be seen for thousands of miles on either side of its path, but only within the shadow itself will the full effects of the eclipse be experienced—and only for a few minutes.

Most scientists — and amateurs, too — are interested solely in totality, for that is the only time the sun's corona becomes visible. Corona is the extremely hot, thin shell of turbulent gases surrounding the sun and extending out into space for several million miles.

Normally, the sun's bright photosphere — the visible disk we see daily — obscures the corona's gentle glow. However, at totality, when the Earth is plunged into darkness, the corona suddenly "flares out" around the black disk of the moon, producing an eerie, shimmering, pearl-grey halo streaked with tongues of flame.

Size, shape and behavior of the corona is directly related to the amount of activity—sunspots, flares and explosions on the sun's surface at the time of the eclipse.

"All the easy experiments on the solar corona have already been done'" Noyes says. "So you must either plan a very complicated, difficult new experiment — or you can simply wait for the sun to change its behavior and study the changes with the simpler equipment used before."

In the past year, the sun has changed a great deal. In fact, the sun is now at the violent peak of its 11-year cycle of activity, so scientists should see some exciting features in the corona.

Noyes and his colleagues are particularly interested in "coronal holes," vast gaps in the sun's outer atmosphere where the sun's magnetic field cannot contain the corona. Corona pours out through these coronal holes in streams of electrically charged particles known as the solar wind.

Invisible solar wind has a direct effect on earth, causing the aurorae (Northern Lights) and radio interference, but it may also have some relationship — as yet unclear — with earth's climate.

"Holes" were first discovered in the mid-1970s by Harvard - Smithsonian scientists using instruments aboard the Skylab space station and other satellites. During the upcoming eclipse, the coronal holes will be prime targets of observation for the ground-based sunwatchers in India and those launching the rocket experiment.

Rocket instrument is a "coronagraph," a special device that creates an artificial eclipse by blocking out all of the sun except the corona. Measurements by the coronagraph may reveal information on the velocity, structure and temperature of the solar wind.

Whatever may be learned from the eclipse about the sun, one part of the eclipse's lure is purely aesthetic.

Sudden darkening of the sun at midday, the brilliant "beads of light" created by the sun shining through valleys on the edge of the moon, the stunning "diamond ring effect" as the last ray of sunlight disappears and the appearance of hitherto invisible planets and stars in the dark sky—all make a total eclipse one of nature's most spectacular displays.

Unfortunately, the path of a total eclipse passes over any single spot on earth only about once every 300 years. Next total eclipse to cross a major population center in North America will not occur until 1991, when the path will run down the Valley of Mexico.

No wonder, then, that astronomers — , both professional and amateur — will travel thousands of miles to spend a few feverish minutes photographing, recording, measuring, analyzing — and enjoying — this fantastic natural light show.

"Despite the incredible advances in our ability to observe the sun from space during the past two decades," Noyes says, "nothing beats a natural solar eclipse."

Indian Hearing Slated Friday In Cass Lake

Federal government is rethinking its definition of the American Indian and is looking for help to identify all Indian students who are eligible for special educational funds.

U.S. department of health, education and welfare is holding one of 13 nationwide hearings to deal with the matter in Cass Lake on Friday, January 11. Public hearing will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Leech Lake facility center, tribal chamber room.

According to Juliette Lester, regional commissioner for educational programs in HEW's Chicago office, testimony from the hearings will contribute to a study which Congress required by law in 1978. Congress directed the assistant secretary of education to supervise a study of the definition of Indian contained in the Indian education act. According to the law, the study is to be done "In consultation with Indian tribes, national Indian organizations, and the secretary of the interior."

Indian education act provides $75.9 million this year, $52 million of it to local school districts to supplement programs that meet the special educational and culturally related academic needs of Indian children, and the rest to Indian organizations to support special services to Indian children and adults. Remedial aid, career counseling, training of Indian teachers and professional fellowships for Indians is provided. Also funded is education to increase the employability of adults, principally preparation for the high school equivalency degree exam.

Lester said tribal leaders, Indian parent committee representatives, and representatives of state and local education agencies have been invited to present written and oral testimony in Cass Lake. Heading a team of resource persons from HEW's education division in Washington, D.C., who will be at the hearing is Dr. Abdul Khan, director of the study.

Khan said the question of whether mixed blood children — either white and Indian, or of mixed tribal ancestry — are considered to be Indian is among the more controversial topics at these hearings. Another is the matter of federal versus state versus other kinds of recognition of tribes or bands and the date of such recognition. Whether there should be different criteria for urban versus reservation Indians is yet another issue.

These will be factors in discussing options for changing the existing definitions in the law, which are already complex. Khan pointed out that the study group is charged not with arriving at definitions — a task Congress reserved for itself — but with determining who would be eligible for aid under various definitions and whether there are Indian children now left unserved. As part of the study, HEW will try to learn how many Indian children are now served, how many are eligible, and the consequences of eliminating people in certain situations from eligibility through various definitions.

HEW is encouraging testifiers to present written comments at the hearing. Written testimony may also be sent to Washington by February 5. It should be sent to Dr. Abdul Khan, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, Room 317-H, Hubert Huaphrey Bldg., 200 Independence Ave., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201. Instructions for preparing testimony appear in the Federal Register of December 5, 1979, p. 69994.

Murray Retires After 30 Years With Railroads

Leonard H. Murray, chief executive officer of the Soo Line since the company was formed in 1961, retired December 31 after more than three decades of involvement with railroads.

He was one of the architects of the merger which brought three midwestern lines under one roof as the Soo Line railroad company. In the 19 years since that merger, the company under his leadership has more than tripled its revenues and attained a profit level which ranks it high among U.S. railroads.

Murray first became involved in railroading as a result of his interest in railroad reorganization law. His experience in working with the financial problems of railroads eventually led to executive positions on two of the railroads which were predecessors of the Soo and to the top executive post of the merged company.

After graduation from the University of Minnesota law school in 1938, he began his career as legal secretary to Justice Clifford L. Hilton, associate justice of the Minnesota supreme court. He moved into private law practice prior to World War II and during the war served as chief price attorney in the office of price administration, Minnesota district office.

In the mid 1940's, when many of the nation's railroads were in bankruptcy, Murray resumed private practice and specialized in railroad reorganization law. His association with the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad — now a part of the Soo Line — led to his appointment in 1949 as assistant to the president. He was named vice president in 1952 and in 1958 became president of the DSS&A.

In 1954 he was elected vice president and director of another predecessor of the Soo, the Wisconsin Central railroad company.

In 1961, at the age of 47 years, he became president and chief executive officer of the new company which brought together the DSS&A, Wisconsin Central and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroad. He served in that capacity until November of 1978 when he was elected chairman and chief executive officer.

Murray currently serves as a director of the First Bank system and Great Northern Insurance company, both of Minneapolis. He has served at various times as a director of the Association of American railroads and other rail-related organizations.

Murray was the recipient of the outstanding achievement award given by the University of Minnesota for 1971.

While he is retiring from his present position, Mr. Murray will continue to serve on the company's board of directors and as chairman of its executive committee.

Stakes High In Peat Use For Minnesota

be somewhat ameliorated by legislation which would permanently set aside large tracts of peatlands for use as animal and plant habitat.

Still, some researchers maintain that extensive development may have a significant negative impact on the nesting and-or winter habitat for some bird species, particularly the already endangered sandhill crane. White-tailed deer and moose may also be adversely affected by large scale habitat destruction caused by peat development.

Peatlands drainage is also associated with numerous environmental concerns. Since water flowing through bogs is often more acidic than that found in the water table and surrounding lakes and streams, some university hydrologists are concerned that the addition of this more acidic water will have a deleterious effect on area water supplies. Additionally, some peat waters may have a higher than average concentration of certain heavy metals which may be reintroduced to the ecosystem by bog drainage and preparation.

Extraction of peat may pose a threat to air quality, if the milled peat harvesting method is employed on a large scale. Researchers are investigating the feasibility of pumping peat out of the bog as a wet slurry to be dried at a nearby plant. While this will reduce the threat to air quality, the economic feasibility of this process is questioned.

In preparing this issue of the Peat Primer, we relied heavily on the following publications:

"An Environmentally Sound Peat Harvesting Technique", Bradley V. Johnson, et.al., U.S. Bureau of Mines, Twin Cities mining research center;

Services Today For Miss Agnes Ekerdalen, 85

Agnes Ekerdalen, 85, of Thief River Falls, died Friday at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Agnes Ekerdalen are being held today (Monday) at 2 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Rev. Berton Hushagen, pastor at Trinity Lutheran church, will officiate. Musical selections will be two duets by Mrs. Boyce Lee and Mrs. Arvid Lee with Mrs. Boyce Lee as organist. Interment will be in the Folden cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Morris Hansen, Leslie Folden, Norman Folden, Howard Folden, Earl Melvie and Eli Melvie.

Agnes Ekerdalen, a daughter of the late Halvor O. and Emma Evert Ekerdalen, was born May 28, 1894 at Holt, in Marshall county. She attended the Pioneer school in rural Holt. Later she moved to Minneapolis and was employed there as a domestic worker for 35 years. Later, she worked for the Royal Stationery company. In 1963, she came to Thief River Falls and lived at the Skylite apartments from 1968 to 1978, when she became a resident of Valley Home. Later, she became a resident at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

She was the last member of her family. Her only survivors are a number of cousins.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by two sisters and two brothers.

Alice H. Spray, 95 Dies Sunday Rites Pending

Mrs. Alice H. Spray, 95, of Thief River Falls, mother of the late W. Lloyd Spray, died Sunday evening at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Spray are pending. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements. A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Carl E. Hanson Services Held At Newfolden

Carl E. Hanson, 62, a resident of the Newfolden community, died Wednesday at Northwestern hospital.

Sophus Ness, 88, of Sanders township, Pennington county, died Saturday afternoon at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Sophus Ness will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m., at the Belmont Funeral home where the body is reposing. Rev. James Mattson, pastor at Zion Lutheran church, will officiate. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Gustav Gerlach Rites Held At Red Lake Falls

Gustav Carl Gerlach, 75, of Red Lake Falls died Thursday, January 3, at St. John's hospital in Red Lake Falls, following a brief illness.

Funeral services for Gustav Gerlach were held today (Monday) at 10:30 a.m. in St. John's Lutheran church, Red Lake Falls. Reverend Roger E. Raebel officiated. Mrs. Dale Baril provided the organ music. Interment was in Oak Grove cemetery, Red Lake Falls, with the Petterson Funeral Home of Red Lake Falls in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Emil Zutz, Raymond Zutz, Carl Lehrer, Arnold Lehrer, Ruben Lehrer and Wilfred Jahnke.

Gustav Carl Gerlach was born Aug. 2, 1904 in Louisville Township, Red Lake county, to Henry and Louise Gerlach. He attended school in Red Lake county and was graduated from Lafayette high school.

On Oct. 4, 1938, he was united in marriage to Luella Jahnke at Crookston. The couple farmed his parents' farm until 1955, when they moved to Red Lake Falls where they operated Gerlach Clothing store. From 1958 until 1960, they lived at Viking. Since then, they have made their home at Red Lake Falls.

Through the years, Gerlach received many wheat awards at the Farm Crop shows held at Crookston. He was a member of the Oak Grove cemetery association.

He is survived by his wife, son Gary, at home; and two nieces, Elaine Fenstad of Grand Forks, N.D. and Dorothy Engan of California.

He was preceded in death by his parents, two brothers and one sister.

Rites Held At Brainerd For The Lyle Olsons

Joint funeral services were held Wednesday, December 26, at the Seventh-Day Adventist church in Brainerd for Wendy L. Olson, 19, and her husband, Lyle Olson, 22, sister and brother-in-law of George Lindquist of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Olson was killed instantly in a pick-up and semi-truck accident north of Hackensack on Friday afternoon, December 21. Her husband died the following morning in St. Joseph's hospital in Park Rapids of injuries received in the accident. The couple were enroute to Baudette to spend Christmas with Mrs. Olson's parents.

Officiating at the services were Rev. Rick Quast and Rev. Lloyd Spreck. Burial was in the Evergreen Memorial gardens in Brainerd.

Wendy Olson

Mrs. Olson, the former Wendy Lindquist, was born in Warroad on May 2, 1960 to George and Gladys VanDeHey Lindquist. She was a 1978 graduate of Lake of the Woods high school and a 1979 graduate of the Brainerd Area Vocational Institute, secretarial department. She has been employed by the Crow-Wing Morrison Community Corrections Agency as administrative secretary and was currently secretary for the Community school youth coordinator, city of Brainerd.

She was married October 7, 1979 at Brainerd to Lyle Olson. Since then, she had made her home at Brainerd.

She is survived by her parents: Mr. and Mrs. George Lindquist, Baudette; two brothers: George Lindquist, Thief River Falls, and Randal, Warroad; two sisters: Cathy Terhark, Brainerd, and Carol Hanson, Pembina, N.D.; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Esther Lindquist, Williams, and her maternal grandfather, William Van DeHey, also of Williams.

Lyle I. Olson

Lyle Olson was born July 3, 1957 at Lincoln, Neb., and had been a resident of the Brainerd area for the past 21 years. He was a 1976 graduate of Maplewood academy at Hutchinson and had attended one year at Union college at Lincoln, Neb. He was associated with his father in the Olson's Masonry Construction at Brainerd.

He is survived by his parents: Mr. and Mrs. Irvin N. Olson, Rt. 10, Brainerd; a sister, Susan Kay, a brother, Larry Dean, both of Brainerd; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Olson, all of Brainerd.

Dear Friends,

Death is "a feeling of peace and wholeness", according to several hundred patients who have been declared medically dead, but revived by recent, sophisticated medical skills, says Dr. Elizabeth Kuebler-Ross of Chicago. "Not one of them has ever been afraid to die again, she said.

Patrick Casey Rites Held At St. Bernard's

Funeral Mass for Patrick E. Casey, 66, of rural Red Lake Falls, was offered Thursday at 2 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city. Casey, a former resident of Thief River Falls, died Monday, December 31, at his home in Terrebonne.

Celebrant at the Mass was Rev. Lawrence Wieseler. Mrs. Carol Amundson served as organist. Interment will be in the church cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Ivan Hoglin, Art Cloutier, Keough Fournier, Sr., Bill Moreau, Dan Casey and Ed Casey.

Patrick Edmund Casey was born Feb. 25, 1913 at Darwin to James and Ellen Casey, now deceased. He attended North high school in Minneapolis and grew to manhood in that city. On Jan. 20, 1936, he was united in marriage to Marcella O'Neil in Minneapolis. The couple made their home in Minneapolis during the years Casey was employed by the South St. Paul stockyards and while driving a beverage truck.

In 1948, he moved with his family to Thief River Falls and was employed here at the Municipal Liquor store for 26 years. For the past two years, he had made his home in rural Red Lake Falls.

He is survived by one son, Daniel Casey, Aiea, Hawaii; two daughters: Mrs. Diane Hicks, Thief River Falls and Mrs. Keough (Donna) Fournier, Jr., Red Lake Falls; six grandchildren, two brothers: Ed Casey, Fridley; and Dan, Medicine Lake; and two sisters: Mrs. Virgil (Kate) Vogel, Clare, Iowa, and Mrs. Henry (Theresa) Quinn of Darwin.

He was preceded in death by his wife, who died Jan. 31, 1971; two brothers: Emmett and Mike, and two sisters, Mary and Eileen.

Tom Ose, 90, Dies Jan. 2 In Danville, Ill.

Tom T. Ose, 90, of 1244 East Centrell, Decatur, Ill., and formerly of Thief River Falls, died Wednesday evening at the Danville Veterans hospital at Danville, Ill.

Funeral services for Tom T. Ose were held Friday at 3:30 p.m., at the Brintlinger-Pershing funeral home at Decatur. Burial was in the Mason County Memorial park in that city.

Tom T. Ose was born Aug. 14, 1889 in Thief River Falls to Tarkel and Anna Ose and was married Jan. 21, 1924 at Springfield, Ill., to Marie Atkinson. He was employed as a crane operator by W.T. Traver company until his retirement in 1955. Later, he worked for a time as maintenance man for Decatur Housing.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Earl E. Ose, Indianapolis, Ind., a daughter, Mrs. Betty L. Coble, Decatur; and five grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, three brothers, one half-sister and a half-brother.

Rev. Rousseau Services Held At Argyle

Rev. Henry Rousseau, 80, pastor of the St. Rose of Lima Catholic church at Argyle for over 38 years, died December 21 at St. Vincent's Villa Rest home at Crookston where he had been a resident since 1974.

Funeral Mass for Rev. Henry Rousseau was concelebrated on December 24 at Argyle at the St. Rose of Lima church by Bishop Victor Balke and 12 fellow priests. Interment was in the church cemetery with the American Legion post 353 of Argyle according the military honors.

Pallbearers were Donald Yutrzenka, David St. Germain, Paul Crummy, Wayne Bergeron, Mark Robertson and Lawrence Lavine.

Henry Rousseau was born Sept. 7, 1899 in Ontonagan, Mich., where he received his elementary and high school education. He later attended the University of Chicago, granduated with honors from Notre Dame, and then entered St. Paul Seminary, where he was graduated and ordained into the priesthood in 1928. He had the distinction of being one of the most highly educated clergymen to serve in the Crookston diocese.

His first assignment was as assistant pastor at Brooks. Later, he served as pastor of the Red Lake Falls parish. In 1933, he was assigned by Bishop Corbet to Argyle, where he was re-appointed by Bishops Peschges, Schenk, Glenn and Povish. Due to illness, he was forced to retire in 1971.

During his pastorate at Argyle, he supervised the building of the new parochial school, a modern rectory, and the remodeling of the church and continuously served as chaplain of the National Catholic Society of Foresters court of Argyle.

He was also chaplain of the Bishop Corbett Council, Knights of Columbus, from the time of its organization in 1951 until his retirement. He was Minnesota State Chaplain from 1957 until 1961.

Rousseau was a veteran of World War I and served as chaplain of the American Legion post 353, Argyle from 1938 until his retirement. He was Ninth District Chaplain from 1950-56 and was elected Minnesota State Chaplain for 1955-56. In addition to serving as chaplain, he was Commander of the Argyle Post from 1939-40 and from 1945-46.

He is survived by two brothers: Albert and Arthur Rousseau, two nephews and a niece, all residing in Michigan.

Farm Price Index Rises In December

Index of prices received by Minnesota farmers increased three per cent during the month ended December 15, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. Higher prices for meat animals and poultry led the way to this increase.

Largest price gains occurred for corn, hogs and eggs. Largest declines occurred for sunflowers and barley. Compared to a year ago, prices were up for all commodities surveyed except soybeans, potatoes, hogs, sheep, turkeys and eggs. Largest gains occurred for wheat, dry beans and milk cows.

The crops index increased one per cent to 203 during the month and was only four per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-December prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat — $3.60 per bushel, down 22 cents from the revised November estimate; corn — $2.08, up 18 cents; oats — $1.28, up two cents; barley — $2.08, down 29 cents; soybeans — $5.83, down 28 cents; flaxseed — $5.55, down two cents; potatoes averaged $2.80 per hundredweight for all grades, up 20 cents; and all sunflowers averaged $7.93 per hundredweight, down $1.81 from the revised November price.

Meat animal index at 234 was five per cent above last month but two per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $37 per hundredweight were up $3.90 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $56.70, up $1. Calves were down $4.70 to $72.30. Sheep brought $20.70, down 20 cents. Lambs were up $2.80 to $65.40.

Dairy index at 255 was unchanged from the previous month, but was seven per cent above the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $12 per hundredweight was up one cent from the revised November price.

Poultry and egg index at 229 was nine per cent above last month, but was three per cent below a year ago. Turkeys were 46 cents per pound liveweight, up one cent from a month earlier. Eggs brought 53 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-December, up five cents from mid-November but down one cent from a year earlier.

State To Have 104,000 Farms Again In 1980

In 1980 Minnesota is expected to have 104,000 farms, totaling 30,300,000 acres, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. Average farm size is 291 acres. All are unchaged from 1979 and have remained constant for the last five years.

The number of farms in the United States in 1979 is estimated at 2.33 million, down 1.6 per cent from the 2.37 million in 1978. For 1980 farm numbers are expected to decline about one per cent to 2.31 million.

Total land in farms was 1.049 billion acres for 1979, a decline of 0.3 per cent from a year earlier. The preliminary estimate for 1980 is 1.047 billion acres, down 0.2 per cent.

A farm is defined as a place which has annual sales of agricultural products of $1,000 or more. The estimates based on this definition are available beginning with 1975.

Beeferendum Promoted By Bud Wishard

estate. The only logical way to recover that loss is to market beef at a profitable level for several years. We have faith that the program to be created with passage of the beeferendum will help in that recovery and to make our industry profitable in the future.

"If the beef industry as we know it is to hope to survive, we must educate the consumer, prove the wholesomeness of our product health-wise and sell at today's prices and higher."

Just what is that beeferendum anyway?

Like other producer-initiated programs in such agricultural areas as cotton, eggs, citrus fruit and dairy products, it is a voluntary check-off from product sales for research and promotion. On a national scale, the two-tenths of one per cent check-off would be expected to provide $30 million to $40 million annually.

Wishard believes in the necessity of product promotion to the extent that he has accepted the Minnesota chairmanship of the beeferendum for the Minnesota Cattlemen's association. His wife is state chairwoman for the Minnesota CowBelles. The referendum is being sponsored by the National Cattlemen's association — a group formed by the merger in 1977 of the National Livestock Feeders association and the American National Cattlemen's association. As such, it is producer sponsored and promoted but is being conducted under legislation adopted by the U.S. congress and conducted through the U.S. department of agriculture. Wishard is a member of the product promotion and consumer relations committee of the national association.

A vote on a similar referendum was held in 1977 and received a 57 per cent favorable vote but did not receive the necessary two-thirds vote required by that legislation. In this referendum, only a simple majority is needed for passage.

In Minnesota a 15 cents per head check-off was approved by a narrow margin (51 per cent vote) in 1973 in a referendum that created the Minnesota beef council. Wishard also pushed for that referendum and has been elected to the state board three times, representing crop reporting District I, an 11-county area in northwestern Minnesota. He has served on the executive committee and is a past state treasurer. The state check-off would be discontinued when the national program becomes operable.

Eligible to vote in the referendum is anyone who owned one or more head of cattle in the last 12 months. This includes dairymen, since half of the calves produced in dairy herds are sold for meat and one-third of the average dairyman's income is from the sale of cattle for slaughter or the feeder market.

Passage of the referendum would allow the two-tenths of one per cent to be deducted at each sale but collected only at the time of purchase for slaughter.

As an example, if a rancher with a beef cow herd sold a calf for $100 to a feeder, that purchaser would deduct the two-tenths of one per cent and make an actual payment of $99.80 to the rancher. The 20 cents would be the rancher's contribution to the program.

If the feeder then sells the animal at a later date for $200, he would receive $199.60 thereby making a 20-cent contribution for the $100 added value.

A finished animal going to slaughter at $400 would bring the feeder a check for $399.20, with the packing plant remitting the 80 cents difference to the national beef board. The beef board would initially be comprised of 60 cattlemen elected from across the nation on a predetermined formula. Each state with 500,000 head of cattle would have one board member, plus an additional member for each 2.5 million head. If a state has less than 500,000 head, it will be combined with other states to the extent practical to form a geographical area with a total of 500,000 head or more.

Money collected under the program would be used in six major areas: (1) Fight anti-beef propaganda; (2) promote the nutritional value of beef; (3) combat beef substitutes; (4) counter extremes in the cattle cycle; (5) expand foreign markets; and (6) increase demand for beef.

Wishard tells the many cattlemen that he speaks to at various meetings that it is past time for them to take charge and to look after themselves and their industry.

"The beeferendum involves no government funds, no subsidy, no deficiency payment. It is a democratic, free enterprise, self-help program created by cattlemen, for cattlemen and run by cattlemen who will have the opportunity to look after themselves and not ask 'Uncle' to do it," Wishard said.

And he believes in the idea enough that he is willing to spend his time traveling and promoting while leaving much of the winter ranching to his son ElRio, hired hand Ed Sellers and 83-year-old Lloyd Bangle.

Producers will register for the referendum January 28 through February 6 with voting dates to be February 19 to 22. Absentee registration and voting ballots are available at ASCS offices.

U of M Adds Phone Lines To 'Starwatch'

Because of the enormous response to the University of Minnesota astronomy department's taped phone message on the night sky, the service has been expanded from one phone line to three.

Starwatch is prepared by students and staff of the astronomy department and includes information on the season night-time sky along with brief explanations of some aspects of the universe.

Response was overwhelming, and the one-line system was unable to handle the influx of calls, according to Butler Burton, head of the astronomy department. Since its inception at the beginning of December, the longest time between calls was 10 seconds during periods when the system was minitored, Burton said.

Starwatch number remains the same: (612) 376-5587.

Putz Completes Training On Armor Crew

Pvt. Paul A. Putz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane H. Putz, St. Hilaire, recently completed training as an armor crewman at the U.S. army armor school, Fort Knox, Ky.

Training was conducted under the One Station Unit Training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training with advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

During the course, students received training in the duties of a tank crewman, including firing the tank's armament and small weapons. Instruction also was given in field radio operations, map reading, and tank maintenance and repair.

Skin Irritation Is Problem In Cold Weather

As Minnesota's weather becomes increasingly frightful, there is a predictable increase in the incidence of skin irritation, advises the Minnesota medical association.

The hands are the most likely site of the problem although any area of the body can be affected. This form of skin irritation is so common that it is referred to as "housewives' dermatitis."

During the course of her daily routine as a homemaker, the wife's chores may vary greatly to include such activities as washing dishes, scrubbing floors and polishing them, doing the family laundry, tending the baby, changing diapers, preparing and processing food.

Each of these activities also represents exposure to substances which are capable of irritating the skin. Consequently, the hands become increasingly vulnerable to housewives' dermatitis.

The onset of this problem usually occurs during the cold weather months when atmospheric temerpature as well as humidity is low.

"Sometimes the repeated exposure to water itself may cause the skin to become more susceptible to these common household substances which would not orginarily cause skin irritation.

This occurs when the natural defenses of the outermost layers of the skin are altered by the repeated wetting and drying process.

Pre-existing skin problems, minor abrasions, as well as bacterial and fungus infections are additional factors which play a role in housewives' dermatitis.

Although the combination of factors which contribute to or result in houewives' dermatitix may be complex, there are a number of measures which may be taken to prevent or minimize the irritation. Minnesota medical association suggests the following:

+ Look for early symptoms which may include small dry or red scaly patches. Frequently symptoms may be indistinguishable from chapping or there may be irritation beneath a ring or around the fingernails.

+ Avoid frequent wetting of the hands if these symptoms are apparent. Minimize the number of daily hand washings. Wear cotton gloves with rubber gloves over them for all wet work including dishwashing, laundering, scrubbing, and diapering.

If the hands are wetted, whatever the purpose, rinse them in likewarm water, dry them thoroughly and apply an emmollient hand cream or lotion frequently.

+ Guard the hands against minor injuries, cuts and burns.

+ Consult a physician if the skin problem persists, becomes worse, or does not respond to ordinary forms of treatment.

Some 1.1 million disadvantaged youths participated in a nine week summer jobs program during the 1978 fiscal year, according to the 66th annual report of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Take Caution With Winter Road Travel

Best way to avoid being stranded in a snowstorm is to stay home when the forecast is ominous. Sometimes, however, driving in blizzard conditions may be unavoidable, even for those in a non-snowbelt area who go on a trip.

If you must travel when a blizzard is forecast, try not to go alone, keep the gas tank near full, and stick to main highways, says the Automotive information council (AIC).

Common sense and precautions should get you to your destination, but sudden snowstorms have already claimed the lives of several stranded motorists this winter.

If you feel endangered by a storm, try to locate an inhabited building and seek refuge. A delay in the trip is better than losing a life, says AIC.

If you do become stranded in the "middle of nowhere," the best advice is to stay in the car to await a rescue. If you have a CB radio, put out a call giving your location. If you leave the car, you could get lost and freeze to death.

Tie a bright cloth to the radio antenna or clamp the cloth to a window. Run the engine only intermittently, with a window opened slightly for ventilation. Be thankful that you have an exhaust system in good condition to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning. Never sleep with the engine running.

If you live in a northern area where severe blizzards occur frequently you may want to carry emergency supplies. A key item is an empty coffee can with long-burning candles and matches. The can with the candle will serve as a heater. Container and candle also can be used to melt snow into drinking water. Carry along some high-energy snack foods, facial tissues, a pocket knife and a first-aid kit.

Pack a shovel, some flares, battery jumper cables, a blanket and possibly tire chains in the trunk, and in the glove box have a flashlight, compass, road maps and a windshield scraper.

Then hope you don't have to use any of them, said AIC.

Invite Area Participation In UND Chorale

Residents of the greater Grand Forks area are again invited to join the University of North Dakota collegiate chorale in performing several choral works Saturday, April 26, in the Chester Fritz auditorium.

The chorus, along with soloists and orchestra, will perform "Missa Sancti Nicolai," by Joseph Haydn, and "Magnificat" by Claudio Monteverdi. Rehearsals begin January 15 from 7-9 p.m. in the Edmond A. Hughes fine arts center on the UND campus, and will continue on Tuesdays until the performance. No auditions are required, and everyone is invited to participate.

Dr. Tamar Read, associate professor of music at the university, is director of the collegiate chorale. For more information about the performance, contact her at the UND department of music, phone 777-2644.

Farmers Are Consumers

Productive capability of the American farmer is well known across the land. As a producer the farmer has battled marketing problems, storage difficulties, price pressures and, because of his productivity, surpluses. This production provides employment for many thousands of people.

But the farmer is also a consumer — one of that group which is so often pointed to as the victim of big business and in need of special protection of one sort or another.

Information provided by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service indicates how great a consumer the American farmer is. Annually the farmers in America spend $10.9 billion for farm tractors and other motor vehicles, machinery and equipment, $11.7 billion for fuel, lubricants and maintenance, $17.4 billion for feed and seed, $6.9 billion for fertilizer and lime.

They buy products containing 360 million pounds of rubber — enough to put tires on nearly seven million automobiles. They use 33 billion kilowatt hours of electricity — more than the annual residential use in all of the New England states plus Maryland, Kentucky and Washington. The farm machinery, trucks, cars, fencing and building materials they buy takes six and a half million tons of steel.

Overall, the average cost of commodities, interest, taxes and farm wage rates have climbed 102 per cent in the last 10 years. When someone talks about the plight of the consumer, be sure to include the farmer.

Voice Out Of The Past

Just for fun, with a new year now upon us, we thought it would be interesting to take a look back at what editorial writers had in mind a quarter century ago. No surprise, government came in for its share of commentary. Following editorial is from the Jan. 12, 1955 issue of the Times:

"Here in Minnesota we are constantly being reminded about our excessive taxes. Seldom is anything said about excessive spending. Maybe we should check a little closer on our spending. Possibly the two are related.

"We are now being told that there must be further increases in our spending, and the proposed increases are substantial. The proposed increases are particularly disturbing this year because they come at a time when our ability to pay is down.

"The taxes that yielded so abundantly during the war years are now producing revenue in more normal amounts. Our spending has been geared to the abundant yields of the war years, and the present comparatively low normal yields are not sufficient to maintain our present spending program. Unless we reduce spending it will require higher taxes just to make both ends meet. If we spend still more then of course the new taxes will have to be still higher.

"Services for which the largest increases are being requested are education and welfare. These are services that have great emotional appeal. We must not deny our youth and certainly we should be generous in providing for the needs of our aged. But even for such desirable services we surely are justified in double checking to make certain that we are getting good value for the dollars we spend.

"During the past two years there has been no appreciable increase in the cost of living. During this period our welfare program has been expanded and we have spent a great deal more money for education at all levels. Possibly we could get along another two years just as we have been doing, without spending more than we have been. We think it would be worth trying.

"And by holding the expenditures in these fields down to their present level, maybe we could cut enough in other services to break even during the next two years without any tax increases.

"There are times when we have to make a special effort to keep our personal spending within the limits of our income. It often happens in the management of our homes and our farms and our businesses. Such a special effort might reduce good results in government, too."

The editor also commented on President Dwight Eisenhower's state of the union address and Gov Orville Freeman's inaugural address, noting that both were middle of the road efforts.

"These talks make it increasingly apparent that our political parties no longer represent any special political ideas or ideologies," he wrote. "The terms Republican and Democrat no longer have a meaning other than as they distinguish between the ins and the outs.

"This is not as it was intended to be. Political parties are an important part of our governmental structure. We need them as a vehicle for mass expression, providing leadership on clear-cut issues.

"Today there are conservative the liberal blocs within each party but the parties as such have no distinguishing charateristics. A realignment of parties under new names that indicate the common interest or at least the common point of view of their membership would probably make for better government."

In the following issue the editor commented on the general sales tax as becoming an inevitable in Minnesota. He pointed out that present taxes were at the point of diminishing returned — to increase the levy would reduce the yield.

"The sales tax probably will not reach us this year and maybe not for several years but it is sure to come," he wrote. "It will come because we will spend ourselves into it."

Expensive. . . Compared To What?

Electrical costs are rising, finally surpassing the point where expanded use was able to compensate for increasing expense. For many years the cost of electricity to the consumer was constant or perhaps even declined. Now capacities are being reached, new generating facilities are horrendously expensive and costs are climbing.

Home-owners who opted for electric heat may be heard to grumble on occasion about the costs of electricity. Any increases, of course, are not met with favor. But a recently published article in a rural electric cooperative publication points out that electric costs are not the only item on the rise. The article follows:

How do you answer a friend's question about how expensive electricity has become!

You might say, "Expensive compared to what?"

Next, you could compare the price increases for electricity to the price increases for a number of other consumer products from a list recently compiled by Loeb, Rhodes and Hornblower, a national stock brokerage firm.

For example, did you know that McDonald's quarter pounder hamburger with cheese has gone from 79 cents to 99 cents in the last four years — a 25 per cent increase.

Chew gum? Four years ago a pack of gum cost 10 cents. Today, it costs 20 cents, a 100 per cent increase, with fewer sticks per pack!

Remember the panhandler's request, "Hey, buddy, can you spare a dime?" Not anymore. Now they're asking for 25 cents.

Own a dog? In four years a box of dog biscuits has risen 65 per cent, from 49 cents to 81 cents.

Getting the message? Don't want to hear any more? You'd rather watch television? Well, that TV Guide you just picked up cost 15 cents four years ago. Now it is 35 cents.

So you'll read a magazine. How about Newsweek or Time? Both have doubled prices in four years.

Want to write your congressman about this? The eight-cent stamp of just four years ago has increased 87.5 per cent and now costs 15 cents.

All this leaving a bad taste in your mouth? You might want to choose something other than a package of Clorets. They've gone from 20 cents to 27 cents for a 35 per cent increase.

Getting depressed and want to cry? Don't reach for a Kleenex packet. It's gone from 10 cents to 20 cents.

So you'll drown your sorrows in a drink. Better think twice. Most drinks have climbed from a dollar a glass to $1.75.

Getting nervous? Need a smoke? Yep, you guessed it. They've gone up, too, from 55 cents per pack four years ago to 75 cents, a 36 per cent increase.

Electricity expensive? Compared to what?

Borrowed Nonsense:

Three little boys had gathered in the back of the classroom with their heads together, whispering quietly.

"What's going on back there?" demanded the teacher.

"We're telling dirty stories," one of the boys replied.

"Thank goodness," the teacher sighed. "I was afraid you were praying."

HEAVY FROST continues to cling to branches and other objects left exposed to the outside air, especially with the arrival of lower temperatures witnessed throughout the area. This frosty creation remains motionless in the back yard of Mrs. Marie Anderson at 928 North Arnold in Thief River Falls.

1980 — A Time For Political Action

A new year, a new decade, and a chance to make a fresh start. Heaven knows we need it. But let's not delude ourselves into believing we can escape our problems by making a clean break with the past; that we can, in the words of America's famous poet, Robert Frost, "...get away from earth awhile, And then come back to it and begin over..."

We cannot. What's done is done. Now we must live with the legacy of our past, and of our mistakes, of which we have made quite a few. Those mistakes will weigh heavily upon us during the 1980's — a decade that already promises to be difficult, if not dangerous.

We should be confronting the new challenges with a dynamic economy; instead, we risk falling into the same trap of great athletes who live off yesterday's glories, laugh at tomorrow, refuse to train and carouse into the wee hours each morning. When the moment of truth arrives, the old heros can no longer deliver. They have grown too flabby to compete, perhaps too satisfied to even care.

America need not go that route, but the risk is real if we continue abusing our economy as we have. Actually, abuse is probably too mild a description for policies that have led to: A quadrupling of the federal budget since 1962 . . . a doubling of the national debt in just the past eight years. . . a budget that involves spending more than $1 million a minute in 1980. . . regulations that have multiplied out of control. . . a trade balance that has been in the red for 42 straight months . . . a tax system that discourages incentives, personal savings, risk-taking and investment, while encouraging idleness, consumption and mediocrity, and that combines with inflation to provide windfall revenues to the governments by automatically pushing more and more Americans into steeper tax brackets . . and, of course, a double-digit rate of inflation that is destroying the value of our currency and lowering our standard of living.

Ironically, these policies are always promoted under the guide of "helping" people of modest means and of extending their "rights." But look what's happened to our rights in terms of individual freedom. In 1980, the average American will have to work the equivalent of nearly five months just to pay his taxes. The average person's share of the national debt and other obligations already run up by the federal government has now reached $46,000.

There is one hopeful sign emerging from this mess: The growing consensus No 240 12-31-79 that fog-bound thinking in Washington, D.C., is, in fact, the principal source of our economic problems. Unfortunately, many politicians know what they are doing is wrong, but they cannot help themselves. They suffer from Potomac Fever, from an addiction to the power that comes from being able to solicit votes by spending other peoples money.

That is why the great economic challenge of the 1980's — our ability to restore real economic growth and make headway against the growing problems of inflation, recession, taxation, regulation and energy shortages — will untimately be determined by the willingness of individual Americans to engage in decisive political action. The election of 1980 offers an ideal time to begin, and there are a number of things you can do.

You can learn about the issues. Read accounts in your local newspaper and in national magazines. Check with groups you may belong to for information. Then take a position and communicate it to your elected representatives. Should you find your representatives favor more government and higher taxes, be sure to tell them you will vote against them, and might even work against them in future elections.

Speak out for your beliefs to others as well. Let your friends, neighbors, local media and elected representatives at all levels know that we all have a common stake in slowing the growth of government. Your voice will be even stronger if you join a sympathetic group active in politics. It could be a trade or industry group, a local chamber, a Political Action Committee, the political party of your choice, or a particular candidate you admire.

Ultimately, of course you could become a candidate yourself. Whatever you do, and however you do it, why not make up your mind that this year, you will take a stand and make a difference? Why not ensure that you never have to hear your children ask:

"Why didn't you tell us?", or even worse. . .

"Why didn't you care?"

Farm Security Loans Continue At High Level

Ninety six farm purchase loans totaling $17,473,145 were approved for the state guarantee under the national model Minnesota farm security program during 1979 by agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

This was more than the volume of farm security approvals during the previous 21 months the program had operated, and boosted accumulative totals for the 33 months to date to 186 loans totaling $31,098,509 on 30,663 acres of Minnesota farm land placed under the state guarantee.

In December the farm security advisory council recommended and commissioner Seetin approved three loans totaling $546,599 for the purchase of 614 acres.

Commissioner Seetin said that a growing file of applications and new inquires on the Minnesota farm security loan guarantee program indicates that 1980 will be another busy and potentially high volume year. He also noted that the 1979 legislature improved program incentives for both sellers and buyers of farm real estate.

"This program now has acceptance in rural Minnesota with farm sellers and with commercial lenders. It is working according to design, helping to preserve family farm agriculture and helping otherwise fully qualified farm operators lacking the financial assets to become farm owners," Commissioner Seetin commented.

Since Minnesota launched its farm security program in 1976 with a $100 million loan guarantee authorization, three other states — Iowa, Texas and North Dakota — have established similar but smaller scale programs.

Commissioner Seetin praised the cooperation of rural bankers, vocational agriculture instructors and county agricultural extension service personnel in making the Minneosta farm security program a success. He said that these local specialists are the key to counseling and assisting both potential sellers and buyers in preparing loan application, the farm plans, and financial statements required with each application.

He also commended the seven member farm security advisory council for its expertise, time and dedication in examining all applications for the state guarantee and determining those that qualify for Council recommendation for approval. Council meets two days each month to review applications. Some of the individual loan applications have been considered several times before a final determination is made.

Farm security advisory council members donate their time and expertise. They are compensated only for their actual out of pocket expenses incurred.

A review of the total farm security loan volume shows its flexibility. Individual loans approved for the state guarantee have ranged from a minimum of $18,000 to a maximum of $460,000. Acreages financed have ranged from a minimum of 7 to a maximum of 486, in 51 of Minnesota's 87 counties.

Livestock farming enterprise has dominated the new farm owners established under the Minnesota Farm Security program. Among the 186 total loans, the principal farming enterprises of the successful applicants included 59 dairy farms, 56 hog farms, 19 beef farms, one poultry operation, and 39 cash crop enterprises, with the remainder combining livestock and crop farming.

Sellers of farms have sponsored 144 of the farm security loans. Commercial lenders have sponsored 21 of the loans and joined with sellers in co-sponsoring the other 21 of these state guaranteed loans

Statement of Nondiscrimination

Red Lake Electric Cooperative Association, Red Lake Falls, has filed with the federal government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subject to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of the operations of this organization.

"Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20252, or this organization or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 180 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purpose of the rules and Regulations."

Bible Society Finds Demand In Germany

Demand for Bibles in East Germany far outweighs the supply, according to a prominent Bible society official.

Rev. Keith Brinknell, Queensland state secretary for the Bible society in Australia, stated this to American Bible society officials at their headquarters in New York City, after a recent tour through East Germany.

While in that country, Brinknell visited Bible society officials and toured their offices. He observed there were no Bibles to be seen and asked why. "We can't show you our stock because it is sold out before it is printed," a Bible society official told him.

"The demand for Scriptures is overwhelming. While there may be a shortage of Bibles, there is no shortage of Christians," observed Bricknell.

He said that on one Sunday he was taken to the provincial city of Cottbus where he attended an Evangelical church service in the morning and an ecumenical service in the evening. There was an evident joy in the way people worshipped and served God, he observed.

Bricknell said the shortage of Bibles in East Germany parallelled other situations around the world. "Many countries are suffering shortages of Scriptures. Many people long to know the Word of God for themselves," he said.

The American Bible society together with its partners worldwide, work under the aegis of the United Bible societies to provide Scriptures for anyone who desires them.

Last year the Bible societies distributed more than 500 million Scriptures, more in one year than at any time in its 164-year history.

Bricknell said the need is limitless, and Christians everywhere have yet to fulfill their mission to place the Word of God in the hands of people in such diverse countries as East Germany of Malaysia.

Purpose of ABS and UBS is to translate, publish and distribute the Holy Scriptures in the languages of the world's peoples.

For the past 164 years, the ABS has pursued that goal of sharing God's Word without doctrinal note or comment, and without profit.

UND To Offer Afternoon And Evening Class

Center for teaching and learning at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks will be offering a number of late afternoon and evening courses in education, for the benefit of teachers and administrators within driving distance of Grand Forks.

Registration for those wishing to enroll in courses in early childhood education, educational administration, elementary education, foundations of education, secondary education, special education and business and vocational education, will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, January 12, in room 414 of Twamley hall on the university campus.

Graduate tuition is $31.38 per semester credit for residents, $63.38 per credit for non-residents. A reciprocity agreement between Minnesota and North Dakota allows Minnesota residents to attend UND and to pay resident tuition. Reciprocity forms may be obtained from the office of admissions and records at UND.

Teachers or administrators who were not registered this past fall semester, or who have never registered in the graduate school, should contact the graduate school (777-2784) as soon as possible to fill out the necessary registration forms. This must be done prior to receiving a registration packet.

A complete listing of courses available may be obtained by contacting the dean's office in the center for teaching and learning, 777-2674.

Gaven, Tasa On State-Aid Rules Group

Statewide state-aid rules advisory committee will hold its second and final meeting Friday, January 11, at the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) headquarters in Golden Valley.

Interested citizens and government officials should contact an advisory committee member before January 11 to express their concerns relative to municipal and county road, street and bridge activities.

Municipal committee member for the Thief River Falls district is James Gaven, St. Hilaire. County committee member from this area is Glenn Tasa, Trail.

City and county representatives from each of Minnesota's nine Mn'DOT construction districts and from the cities of Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul will recommend changes in rules and proposed standards.

The advisory committee, upon completion of its work, will submit proposed rules changes to the transportation commissioner to be placed in the state register. A public hearing will then be held by a state hearing officer so the public can express its concerns about proposed changes.

BSU Releases Fall Quarter Dean's List

Fall quarter dean's list was released recently by Dr. Willard Borschlegl, vice president for academic affairs at Bemidji state university, and included a number of students from this area.

Bemidji state students carrying 12 or more quarter hours during any one term and earning a "B" or better average are listed on the Dean's list which is published quarterly. Students from this area are:

Linda-Rae-Bernhardson, William Dunn; Gary Halvorson, Karla Nygard, Jeff Oseid, Paul Phelps, and Brian Wheeler, all of Thief River Falls.

Also Bruce Jelle, Grygla; Nancy Cwikla, Middle Rivr; Deborah Graham and Marcy Reierson, Newfolden; Jerome Hrury and Kimm Larson, Oklee; Jon Anderson, Plummer; Diane Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls and Steven Hjelle, Viking.

Mrs. Ron Moe Given Award By CowBelles

Former area resident and former member of the Northwestern CowBelles was honored at the annual meeting of the Minnesota CowBelles in Minneapolis recently as she received the "CowBelle of the Year" award.

Mrs. Ronald Moe, now of Dalton, is the second member to receive this award, which is made from a selection by the 1978 winner, Mrs. Bud Wishard, Trail, of the Northwestern CowBelles, and the executive committee acting on nominations from the membership.

Barbara Moe was the 1979 state beef cook-off director, a post she will occupy again this year; past state vice president; promotional director for two years; established "Hands Across the Red" with the North Dakota CowBelles, a first time program in Fargo-Moorhead; is active in all local projects in beef education and promotion; and is helping to form the Minni-CowBelles, a local in her area. She is an active partner in the operation of Moe farm and mother of three children.

Minnesota CowBelles will now be asking all beef producers to "take charge", to register and vote on the beeferendum at their ASCS offices, January 28 - February 6. For more facts contact Bud Wishard, Trail, Minnesota beeferendum chairman.

North Half Region 8AA Basketball

December portion of the 1979-80 high school basketball season produced few surprises in the new North Half Region 8AA alignment, a combination of the eight teams that played in the Sub Region 3 and Sub Region 4 divisions of Region 8AA the past five years.

To the surprise of no one, a tall Moorhead team is the early season North Half leader with a 5-2 record and a .714 winning percentage. There are few who don't expect the Spuds to be at the top when regular season play is completed in mid-February.

Rest of the North Half Region 8AA December standings, based on percentage, included Thief River Falls at 3-2, .600; Fergus Falls 5-4, .556; Crookston, 3-3, .500; East Grand Forks, 3-3, .500; Detroit Lakes, 3-3, .500; Bemidji, 3-4, .429; and Park Rapids, 0-8, .000.

Those eight teams will compete in the 1980 North Half Region 8AA basketball tournament at Moorhead State University. First round doubleheaders will be played Tues., Feb. 19, when it'll be No. 1 vs. No. 8 and No. 4 vs. No. 5, and on Thurs., Feb. 21, when it'll be No. 2 vs. No. 7 and No. 3 vs. No. 6. Semifinals will be played Fri., Feb. 22, with the championship game scheduled Sat., Feb. 23.

Those tournament pairings will not be based on season records because all eight teams won't face each other during the year. A coach's seeding meeting will be held Fri., Feb. 11, at Mahnomen to decide the tournament pairings.

Thief River Falls faces all North Half Region 8AA teams except Moorhead this winter. The Prowlers play two games each against Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji, and will play single games against Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids.

The North Half winner will square off against the South Half champion Fri., Feb. 29, in the 1980 Region 8AA championship game at St. Cloud State University.

South Half members are old Sub Region 1 and Sub Region 2 members of Region 8AA, including Alexandria, Melrose, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech, Brainerd, Little Falls and Sauk Rapids, along with Region 8AA newcomer Cold Spring-Rocori.

Rocori, a third place finisher in last year's Class AA state basketball tournament out of Region 2AA, owns a recent 61-46 victory over Moorhead in the Granite City Classic at St. Cloud. The Spartans out-scored the Spuds 37-19 in the second half to win that one.

Tickets On Sale For Lakers-Japanese

Tickets are on sale now at TG Sporting Goods and Bjorkman's for the Fri., Feb. 8, exhibition hockey game in the Thief River Falls sports arena matching the Warroad Lakers against the Japanese Olympic team.

Advance sale tickets are priced at $1 for students under 15 years old, $3 for adult general admission and $4 for adult reserved seat. At the door, the student tickets remain $1, but adult general admission will be $3.50 and adult reserved seats will be $4.50.

After expenses, money from the game will go to the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), sponsors of the contest.

North Star Transport Overlooked

In a column last week we reviewed the Thief River Falls sports highlights of 1979. However, we inadvertently missed one of the feature teams and were quickly (and deservedly so) chastised for it.

Somehow we missed listing the Thief River Falls North Star Transport men's fast pitch softball team among the headline-makers of 1979.

North Star Transport, a second place finisher in the Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league during the summer season, made news in post-season competition by winning the Class B District 7 tournament, finishing second in the Minnesota Class B state tournament and placing fourth in the Class B Northern Region tournament.

In the state tournament at Hutchinson, North Star Transport beat the Elk River American Legion 9-3, handled the Prairie House Restaurant of Winthrop 15-1, lost to Windom 3-0, edged Frazee 5-4, knocked off the Reef Lounge of Duluth 4-3, reversed Windom 6-0 and bowed to Charlie's Dutch Room of Duluth 8-4 in the finals.

In the Northern Region tournament at Austin the following week, North Star Transport lost a 1-0 game to Hank's of St. Paul in the bottom of the seventh, shut out Miller High Life of Sioux Falls, S.D. 9-0 and beat that Charlie's Dutch Room outfit of Duluth 3-1 before losing to Windom 2-1 on a controversial play at the plate in the bottom of the sixth inning.

EGF Begins Month-Long Challenge For Prowlers

Off to a 5-1 start, including an 8-4 win over Lake of the Woods Friday at Baudette, the Lincoln high school hockey team will begin the toughest portion of its 1979-80 schedule Tuesday when the Prowlers host Section 8 rival East Grand Forks at 7:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

For sure the next two weeks will be the most demanding stretch of the season for the Prowlers who will follow Tuesday's assignment against East Grand Forks with a game Saturday against state-ranked Iron Range Conference leader Greenway at Coleraine; a Tues., Jan. 15, home game against perennial North Dakota state power Grand Forks Central; a Sat., Jan. 19, game on the road against defending Section 8 champion Roseau; and a Tues., Jan. 22, game here against top Section 8 challenger Warroad.

Whew!

Then comes a vastly improved Bemidji squad; a rematch with the Green Wave who figure to be serious Section 8 challengers this winter; Moorhead; a trip to Crookston where the Pirates are yet another contender in the most evenly balanced Section 8 field in years; and finally a rematch here against the Rams who have struggled at the start with the absence of all-state defenseman Mark Huglen, but who are expected to be in the thick of the race by the time that Sat., Feb. 9, contest rolls around.

That's a lot of great games in store for hockey fans.

Thief River Falls rebounded from its only loss of the year, a 5-3 upset at Fargo South a week earlier, with a 4-1 first period lead Friday at Baudette that led to an 8-4 victory.

It was the Prowlers' high-scoring Wade Hoppe - Jeff Ulrich - Jim Thompson line that did the most damage to Bears as those three collected 11 points to up their total to 54 points in six games.

Thompson scored four times in that one, with Hoppe collecting five assists and Ulrich getting two.

Paul Drees scored twice for the Prowlers who led 7-4 after two periods. Single goals by Steve Olson and Tom Bjorkman completed the Prowlers' scoring.

Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury kicked out 19 shots through the first two periods, with Jeff Mongoven needing just two saves to blank the Bears over the final 15 minutes. The Prowlers sent 34 shots at the Lake of the Woods net.

GUARDED CLOSELY by Mahnomen's Mark Schafer, Thief River Falls center Greg Miller tried to go to the basket after receiving a pass in the first half of Saturday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The Indians edged the Prowlers 53-49.

Bemidji Wins Fosston Meet

Bemidji was an easy winner Saturday in the ten-team Fosston Classic swimming meet.

The Lumberjacks finished the day-long meet with 169 points, followed by International Falls 134, Thief River Falls 107, Fosston 101, Grand Forks Red River 92, Grand Rapids 81, Grand Forks Central 64, Staples 63, Park Rapids 60 and Moorhead 11.

Steve Soll of Grand Forks Red River, one of the meet's two double event winners, was named winner of the most valuable swimmer award after winning the 200-yard individual medley and 100-yard butterfly.

Mike Barker of International Falls also won two events — the 50 and 100-yard freestyle sprints.

Jerry Will was Bemidji's only individual winner, taking the 200-yard freestyle, as the Lumberjacks relied on team depth for the title. They did close out the day with a win in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Thief River Falls came up with two wins, including a meet-opening 1:50.8 in the 200-yard medley relay by Dan Schoonhoven, Steve Poissant, Keith Grochow and Jon Pinkerton. Poissant and Grochow later finished 1-2 in the 100-yard breaststroke, with Poissant swimming a 1:11.2.

Another invitational meet awaits the Prowlers this week, a Saturday trip to International Falls.

Indians Edge Prowlers 53-49 By Getting Late-Game Rebounds

Both coaches agreed Saturday, "It ain't necessarily the number of rebounds you get; it's when you get 'em that's important." And Mahnomen, out-rebounded badly at the start and a 27-23 loser on the boards for the game, came up with a handful of key caroms at the end to edge Thief River Falls in an entertaining 53-49 high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

"Mahnomen got some key rebounds at the end that won it for them," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters whose Prowlers collected 14 of the game's first 17 rebounds. But with a 49-45 lead and 1:46 remaining, they came up empty-handed in the battle for the ball.

"We did not rebound very well in the first half," acknowledged Mahnomen coach Ken Pierce. But he too said the Indians came up with the ball when they needed it at the end to improve their season record to 6-2. It was the third straight loss for the Prowlers who opened the year with three wins.

Thief River Falls, playing without starting center Todd Young who was forced to sit out the game with bronchitis, matched up well against the strong Mahnomen squad. There was never more than a four-point spread until the Indians ran off nine straight points late in the third quarter to open up a 40-32 gap.

Ahead 25-22 at halftime after a 12-12 first quarter draw, Mahnomen fell behind for the first time since the game's opening basket by Thief River Falls' Mark Schmitke when the Prowlers' Kyle Hams swished a jumper from the corner with three minutes remaining in the third quarter for a 32-31 Thief River Falls lead.

But the next nine points were scored by the Indians, including a three-point play by 6-2 Mark Schafer who then completed the scoring burst with a short jumper from the side on the end of a fast break to provide the winners with an eight-point cushion going into the final minute of the third quarter that ended 40-34 on a fast break bucket by Greg Miller.

It was Miller who spearheaded a Thief River Falls comeback at the start of the fourth quarter. Moved from forward to center to fill the vacancy left by Young, Miller scored five of his 11 points at the outset of the final period when the Prowlers out-scored the Indians 9-1 to regain the lead. Miller sank both ends of a bonus free throw opportunity to tie things at 41-41 with 5:35 remaining and Gregg Peterson, used as a starter instead of his usual sixth man role, put the Prowlers ahead 43-41 with an 18-foot jumper a minute later.

That lead lasted all of 10 seconds as 6-2 Mahnomen guard Murray Hanson quickly tied it at 43-43.

A super feed by Hams found a wide open Peterson under the Mahnomen basket with 3:43 to go and Schmitke followed with two free throws for a 47-43 edge — the Prowlers' biggest lead of the game.

Under heavy guard, Hanson still scored on a 15-foot jumper from the side for a 47-45 game with 2:11 on the clock.

Another outstanding pass by Hams found another open man—this time Jim Nyland, who scored from underneath with 1:46 remaining for a 49-45 Thief River Falls edge.

But that was all the scoring for the Prowlers who surrendered the final eight points.

It started with back-to-back three-point plays by the Indians. The first was an improvised three-pointer as Dave Muckenhirn made the first of a bonus free throw situation with 1:34 remaining. The battle for the rebound on his second shot ended as a jump ball under the Mahnomen basket. The Indians controlled the tip, with Schafer simply turning around for a quick score: four seconds after Muckenhirn scored, according to the game clock.

The second was a legitimate three-point play by all-state football lineman Tim LaVoy who used his strength to drive the middle with 51 seconds left. His lay-up and free throw made it 51-49 Mahnomen.

With 20 seconds on the clock, Nyland was sent to the free throw line for a pair of shots after being fouled underneath following yet another Hams feed. Nyland missed the opportunity to tie the game by missing both tosses that were interrupted by a Mahnomen time-out.

LaVoy latched on to one of those key rebounds both coaches referred to earlier on Nyland's second miss, a rebound that eventually led to a pair of game-clinching Schafer free throws with 10 seconds left.

"We should have had it," sighed Peters. "We gave it away. We were up by four and we let them back in it."

Hams, who suffered a painful ankle sprain in practice Wednesday, showed no ill effects with a 14-point night to go along with his assists. Nyland finished with 12 points. LaVoy led a balanced Mahnomen attack with 14 points.

Thief River Falls was 21-for-48 from the field for 44 per cent while Mahnomen struggled on a 22-for-59 night for 37 per cent. The Prowlers, who did not attempt a free throw in the first half, finished 7-for-12 from the line where the Indians were 9-for-18. The Prowlers committed 10 of their 13 turnovers in the first half to take away some of their early success on the boards. Mahnomen lost the ball just six times all night.

The Prowlers play at Climax Tuesday.

AN ALL-STATE football player, Mahnomen's Tim LaVoy showed his skill on the basketball court Saturday with a 14 point scoring effort in the Indians' 53-49 high school basketball victory over Thief River Falls. LaVoy muscled his way through the middle to score two points here, despite the defensive effort by the Prowlers' Greg Miller. Mark Schafer of the Indians tried to block out Miller for a possible rebound on the play.

Ron Jackson set a Minnesota Twins club fielding record for first basemen in 1979, handling 1,583 of 1,592 chances without error, a .9943 percentage. The previous mark was held by Rod Carew, who compiled a .9937 figure in 1977.

Northwomen Lose 45-44 Game At Itasca Friday

Looking for its first win of the 1979-80 season, the Northland community college women's basketball team will host Lake Region Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the Northland gym.

The Northwomen lost for the fifth time Friday when three shots at the end rolled off the rim before the buzzer sounded in a 45-44 loss to Itasca at Grand Rapids.

"We had our chances," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "The ball just wouldn't go through the hoop."

It was a close game for a full 40 minutes. Biggest point spread was six points, with Northland trailing 25-21 at halftime.

Hitting one of two free throws with two minutes remaining, Laura Hess of Itasca accounted for the final 45-44 margin. Both teams missed scoring opportunities in the last two minutes, with Northland coming ever so close at the end.

Freshman Julie Easton scored a game-high 20 points for the Northwomen, with teammate Julie Anderson getting 11. Hess led Itasca with 14 points.

Northland enjoyed a better shooting night, but scored just two points at the free throw line, sinking two of six gift tosses. Itasca, on the other hand, was 13-for-25 at the line. From the field, Northland was 21-for-64 for 33 per cent while Itasca was 16-for-66 for 24 per cent.

A 50-44 rebound edge also belonged to the Northwomen as Carrie Sollom grabbed 15 caroms for the losers. But they were also charged with 24 of the game's 39 turnovers.

"They put pressure on at half court that really bothered us," mentioned Jacobson. "It shouldn't have, but it did."

"We were playing well in that we were finding the open people with our passes," noted Jacobson, "but I was upset with the fact that we let that pressure defense get to us."

EGF Final NWAC Team To Begin League Play

East Grand Forks, the only Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball team yet to begin NWAC play, will end that hiatus this week when the Green Wave hosts Crookston Tuesday and plays at Thief River Falls Friday.

Current NWAC leaders Fergus Falls and Bemidji will be involved in nonconference weekend games when the Otters play at Wheaton Friday and host Detroit Lakes Saturday, while the Lumberjacks entertain Hibbing Friday and play at Duluth East Saturday.

Fergus Falls is 1-0 and Bemidji 2-1 in conference play, but the two teams are tied in the points department that will ultimately decide the NWAC winner with two apiece. When conference opponents meet twice during the year the games are worth one point apiece. A single meeting increases the point value to two points. The Otters have an edge over the Lumberjacks with six points remaining to be played for, to just four left for Bemidji.

EVEN THOUGH he was nearly smothered by the defensive efforts of Thief River Falls' Jim Nyland, Mahnomen guard Murray Hanson still went up and sank a 12-foot jump shot from the side late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's high school basketball game played here. Hanson's basket with 2:11 remaining brought the Indians to within 47-45 and they went on to claim a 52-49 win. Greg Miller (53) and Gregg Peterson of the Prowlers are pictured in the background.

A STANDSTILL developed between Mahnomen's Murray Hanson who looked for someone to pass the ball to, and Thief River Falls defender Jim Nyland who held his ground during the second half of Saturday's nonconference high school basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Mahnomen won the game 53-49. The Prowlers play at Climax Tuesday.

Turnovers Cost Huskies 47-41 Setback At RLF

Turnovers plagued Goodridge Friday as the Huskies handed over a 47-41 Polar Conference high school basketball decision to Red Lake Falls.

Struggling with a 1-9 record and saddled with a current eight-game losing streak, Goodridge turned the ball over 20 times to the Eagles who committed just 12 turnovers themselves.

"There's the story of the ball game," pointed out disappointed Goodridge coach Rich Nelson as he read off the turnover figures. "People like Carroll Bishop, Mark Grabowska and Kurt Wiseth really played well for us up front, but our guard play is what really hurt us."

Goodridge led at the start, owning a 13-9 edge at the end of the first quarter and holding on to a 23-22 halftime advantage. The Huskies trailed 36-35 as the third quarter ended and were down just 42-41 heading into the final two minutes when they committed four consecutive turnovers to fall behind.

"We had our chances down the stretch," sighed Nelson.

Rick Cullen of Goodridge and Kevin Erickson of Red Lake Falls shared game-high scoring honors with 13 points apiece. Wiseth and Grabowska both added 10 points to the Huskies' attack and Bishop pulled down 15 rebounds to help the visitors build a 35-25 edge on the boards.

Neither team shot well. Goodridge was 14-for-42 for 33 per cent from the field and 13-for-21 at the free throw line. Red Lake Falls was 18-for-60 for 30 per cent from the floor and 11-for-17 at the line.

Goodridge faces a challenge Friday when the Huskies travel to Warren to play the Region 8A champion Ponies.

Team Arctic Drivers Win Three Races

It was a clean sweep for Team Arctic Friday night as Bob Elsner and Jim Dimmerman monopolized Sno Pro professional snowmobile wins at Peterborough, Ont.

Elsner won the 340 and 440 races, with Dimmerman capping the strong Arctic Cat showing with a win in the 340-X feature.

In the 340, 55hp class, Elsner was followed across the finish line by Brad Hulings on a Scorpion and Steve Thorsen on an Arctic Cat.

Elsner headed the 440, 70hp competition, followed by Thorsen and Dimmerman.

In the 340-X event, it was Dimmerman taking the checkered flag ahead of Hulings and Alan Decker on a Ski-Doo.

Next scheduled stop on the 1979-80 Sno Pro circuit is this weekend at Montreal.

Sno-Drifters Meet Tonight

January meeting of the Thief River Falls Sno-Drifters will be held tonight (Monday) at 7:30 in the basement of Lon's Restaurant.

Sno-Drifters are currently planning activities for the 1980 season and invite anyone interested in snowmobiling to join their organization.

Dues are $10 for a family membership and $7 for a single membership. Included in the membership dues is a subscription to the Midwest snowmobiler magazine and membership in the state snowmobile organization, Minnesota.

Among the activities of the Sno-Drifters are weekend snowmobile outings, snowmobile trail work, I-500 assistance and a summer family picnic.

Sno-Drifters meet the first Monday of each month from December to March.

Registration For Skating Show Is Due

Registration slips for participation in the skating show of the Thief River Falls recreational skating association are to be turned in Tuesday or Thursday at the Thief River Falls sports arena office, according to show chairman.

Because of the advance planning and preparation necessary for the skating show, the January 8 and 10 deadlines must be observed and youngsters not registered by those dates will be unable to participate in the show.

Nordics 35

Poor 16-for-47, 34 per cent shooting from the field put a definite crimp in the upset hopes of Marshall County Central Saturday afternoon as the Nordics dropped a one-sided 61-35 decision to Lake of the Woods in a match-up of unbeaten North Border Conference teams.

"They're a very good team," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland whose Nordics needed a strong shooting performance to overcome a huge size deficit. "We have to shoot well to stay with them, and we just didn't do it."

Lake of the Woods built an 8-2 first quarter lead as Marshall County Central went just 1-for-10 from the field in the first eight minutes. It was 21-14 at halftime and the Bears pulled away 37-19 in the third quarter.

"We played a real good disciplined game," pointed out Ueland. "We got the good shots, but we just missed them."

Todd Robinsin led the Bears with 26 points, with Tom Omerza and John Koller adding 13 apiece. No Marshall County Central scorer reached double figures.

In contrast to the Nordics' shooting woes, Lake of the Woods shot at a 63 per cent clip, making 25 of 40 shots. From the free throw line the Bears were 11-for-14 and the Nordics were 3-for-12. Lake of the Woods built a sizeable 31-18 rebound advantage.

The loss snapped a five-game winning streak for the Nordics who had not lost in North Border play. Marshall County Central, 5-3 overall, will face rival Middle River Tuesday at Newfolden. The Skippers improved their record to 8-1 Saturday with a 78-72 win over Strandquist.

Northmen Rip Alumni 17-5 For 1st Win

A 17-5 winner over an alumni squad Saturday, the Northland community college hockey team is preparing to resume Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) competition this weekend when the Northmen will host Mesabi in a Friday-Saturday weekend series in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Game time Friday is 7:30 p.m., with Saturday's afternoon contest scheduled for a 1 p.m. start.

Northland picked up its first win of the still-young 1979-80 season Saturday by out-skating a collection of 20-or-so alumni who were overwhelmed 8-0 in the first period. It was a surprisingly easy victory for the Northmen who were shorthanded — just four players on the bench.

"We skated really well and passed the puck well," pointed out Northland coach Bob Lundbohm.

Northland is 0-2 in MJCAA competition after losing a season-opening series to Hibbing in mid-December, 12-7 and 16-3.

But Lundbohm is still optimistic. "We might be all right," he says. "If we just had a few more players — If we had just one more line this could be the best team I've ever had."

No scoring details were made available for the alumni game.

Mahnomen Is JV Winner Here, 59-52

Kevin Gieseke scored 21 points and Ken Muckenhirn had 17 for Mahnomen Saturday in a 59-52 junior varsity high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

Dale Doblas scored 11 points for the losers who led 16-12 at the end of the first quarter and were deadlocked 32-32 at halftime before falling behind 48-43 in the third quarter.

The loss evened Thief River Falls' record at 3-3 for the year.

Mrs. Alfred Solem, Rt. 2,
City, 681-3897

Sympathy is extended to the family of Seymore Nelson, who passed away Monday, December 24, unexpectedly at his home in Agder township. A large crowd attended funeral services at Silver Creek Lutheran church Friday morning.

An old fashioned Christmas with a tree trimmed with the old fashioned candles in candleholders clipped to the branches was enjoyed by a large number who gathered at the Sateedal church Saturday evening at five o'clock. A program was presented, after which apples were distributed and coffee served. Among those attending were Mrs. Margaret Pederson and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gustafson, Stacy, Susan and Tony and Mrs. Mrs. Elaine Ose and Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ose and family. The Gustafson family were supper guests at the John Sannes home later in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem were luncheon guests Sunday afternoon at the Ellsworth Blylie home. In the evening they visited Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg at Valley Home.

Thursday Mrs. Margaret Pederson entertained for afternoon coffee Mrs. Florence Frankenburger of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Pete Bradley, Mrs. Donald Jorde and Mrs. Larry Gustafson.

Mrs. Glen Davidson and Mrs. Vernon Malberg were Thursday afternoon callers at the home of Mrs. Clara Jaennette.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fredricksen, Vonna and Vicki of Minneapolis visited her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg Saturday and also attended the Christmas program presented by residents of the home. The Fredericksens left for Morris, Minn., Monday to spend Christmas with his folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Johnson, Steven and Kevin of Minneapolis came down from Roseau Monday to visit her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg at Valley Home. They returned to the home of his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, in the evening to spend Christmas.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg at Valley Home were Jerry Muzzy and his fiancee, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Muzzy and Laureen, Arthur Bredeson, Mrs. Anne Muzzy and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Muzzy.

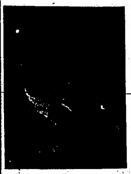
Gov. Quie Visits City During Whirlwind State Tour



Gov. Al Quie paused in Thief River Falls Tuesday afternoon as one of six communities visited during a whirlwind tour of the state and held a brief news conference at the executive suite of the Best Western Inn. A couple of dozen interested persons in addition to press representation attended the open session and several asked questions of the governor.

Governor Quie's emphasis was on four constitutional amendments he will ask the Minnesota legislature to place on the November election ballot, in 1980. The amendments he proposes to be presented to the voters would:

(1) Stop general fund state spending from rising faster than personal non-farm income of Minnesota resident;

(2) Require a 60 per cent vote by the legislature for approval of all tax increases;

(3) Allow the public to write or cancel laws through a program of initiative and referendum; and

(4) Establish a nine-member bipartisan reapportionment commission to rearrange legislative district lines after the 1980 census.

While the public seems genuinely interested in initiative and referendum, he said, legislatures have generally been reluctant to grant such opportunity to the voters. It is now available in 26 states, however, and Gov. Quie said he has included what he believes to be the best parts of those existing programs in preparing his proposal for the 1980 session.

He said safeguards such as requiring a certain number of petitions from each of the state's 87 counties to guard against legislation harmful to

Council Conducts Routine Business

Following two hours of discussion during the first regular city council meeting conducted in the new year, council members adjourned until Monday at 7 p.m. to resolve remaining agenda items and to finalize and adopt a 1980 budget.

Plaque was presented to former fifth ward alderman Milt Reierson for his 12 years of service on the city council from 1960 to 1963 and 1972 to 1979.

Alderman Ambrose Wysoski was elected to remain as acting mayor to preside in the absence of Mayor Bob Carlson, and the Thief River Falls Times was designated as the official newspaper. First Northwestern state bank, Northern state bank, and First Federal Savings and Loan association were selected as the official depositories for city funds.

Official bonds filed with the city clerk, Jerry Wigness, were approved following the introduction of the resolution from Alderman Ole Engelstad and a second from Alderman Dr. Don Goodrich, and Ken Froschheiser was named as chief of police to the city of Thief River Falls.

Board and commission appointments made by Mayor Bob Carlson and confirmed by the city council included: 1) reappointing Gene Gaer's three year term on the police civil service commission which expired January 31, 1980; 2) reappointing Ken Wiebolt's three-year term on the park and recreation board which expires January 31, 1980; 3) reappointing Myrtle Wilson's term of five years on the housing and redevelopment authority which expired December 31, 1979; 4) reappointing of Duane Walton on the planning commission and Edith Etter to replace Mayor Bob Carlson as a member of the planning commission, 5) reappointing Gretchen Beito and Carol Ihle's terms which expired December 31, 1979 for three years, to the Northwest library board.

Regular and special bills paid by the city include: 1) city attorney Robert Wurst's statement for the water tower painting dispute at $444.65; 2) paving the fire hall parking lot and overlay on the street at $5,457.00; 3) $60.45 for Wilson Brothers company, $287 for Wennberg Welding, and $701.90 for Peterson Lumber company for hangars at the Thief River Falls regional airport; 4) $20,194.00 to LaHass manufacturing of St. Paul for aerial units for the utilities department; and 5) $4,126.50 for Robert D. Milne and associates of Minneapolis for rate setting procedures for 1980.

Mike Mongoven, park and recreation direction, appeared before city council members to inquire if the city would accept an artificial ice plant if it was given to the city. Presently, artificial ice is being considered for the old arena in Thief River Falls, Mongoven said, with operating expenses running

Tasa Elected Chairman Of County Board

Glenn Tasa was elected chairman of the Pennington county board of commissioners at the organizational meeting held Tuesday at the courthouse in Thief River Falls. Don Grabanski was elected vice chairman of the board.

Bids were received on widening and surfacing of SAR 3 for a distance of 13 miles from highway 59 east to the River Valley road. Eight bids were received with recommendation that the low bid of $606,962.98 of Sellin Brothers of Hawley be accepted.

Swenson Hired As Assistant To Principal

Wilton Swenson of Owatonna has been hired by the Thief River Falls school board as assistant principal at Franklin middle school here. He began work with the start of school after the Christmas holidays last Thursday and was officially hired by the board Monday evening.

Swenson, 35, and his wife Cheryl have one son, David, age 10. Swenson has spent seven years in elementary teaching and one year in school administration at Owatonna. He spent three years in the U.S. army, including a year in Vietnam, and was discharged in 1971.

A graduate of Crosby-Ironton high school, he received an associate of arts degree from the University of Minnesota in 1965, a bachelor of science degree from St. Cloud state university in 1968 and a master of science degree from Mankato state university in 1978.

Swenson has been active in the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and Eagles organizations.

"I ENJOY THE FREEDOM and adventure in the wide open country of Alaska," says Tony Brosseau, 21, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Brosseau of Thief River Falls. Tony, who has been living in Alaska for the past 16 months, has grown to enjoy the "simple" life with nature since his move to a totally different type of country.

"WHEN THERE ARE TOO MANY people around you feel rushed to do things," according to Tom Brosseau, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Brosseau of Thief River Falls, as he spoke of his visit home after spending five months in Alaska. "I have dreamed of living there since I was a little kid."

Adult Evening Classes To Start On Thursday

Joint effort by Northland community college and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute has resulted in a large number and variety of adult evening education programs for 1980. Classes will begin as early as January 10 with others starting throughout January and February and into the months of March and April.

"The goal of community education is to bring together available resources of organizations, agencies and individuals within the area for the purpose of fulfilling the vocational, recreational, social and cultural needs and wants of citizens residing within the area while promoting efficient use of school and community personnel, buildings and equipment," state Bill Kottke, dean of instruction and community services director at Northland and Terry Lemer, adult education director at the AVTI.

Persons throughout the area may register by completing the form provided in an insert published with today's issue of the Times or included with this week's Northern Minnesota Shoppers Guide. Registration is not complete until course fees are paid and no refunds will be made after the first week of class, unless classes are canceled. Administration reserves right to cancel any course which does not have a minimum enrollment of 10

Senior citizens 62 years of age or older may attend any community education course without payment of course fees. Books and supplies, if needed, must be purchased by registrants. But transportation for senior citizens or handicapped is available by calling Arlyne Forsberg at Northland community college, 681-2181.

First class session on the schedule will start this Thursday. Adult basic education will run from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursdays on a continuous basis with no fee involved in room 116 at the AVTI. Lynn Turenne will be the instructor with training to prepare students for the GED class and tests leading to earning a high school equivalency certificate.

The GED class will be taught by Paul Vogt beginning Monday, January 14, in AVTI room 101 from 7 to 9 p.m. It will offer the math skills needed for general educational development math test for the high school equivalency certificate.

English, grammar and reading skills for the GED test will be taught beginning Thursday, January 17, in AVTI room 101 with Jim Goldesberry as instructor.

Brosseau Brothers Find New Freedom In Alaska

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

For most of us, living in a town the size of Thief River Falls (approximate population of 10,000), there is no problem with too many people. But for two former Thief River Falls residents who are now living in Alaska, the 10,000 figure is somewhat frightening.

"When there are too many people around, you feel more rushed to do things," according to Tom Brosseau, 19, and a resident of Alaska since last August.

His brother, Tony, 21, has been there since June of 1978. Their trip home for Christmas carried a contrasting atmosphere from the Alaskan life-style of which they have grown accustomed. The plane they chartered to come home, which was four days late because of the weather, picked them up near the Kandik river — the river that flows adjacent to the two cabins they occupy. It took half an hour to get to Eagle — the town nearest them, which is 50 miles away.

"We noticed how different things were as we got closer to home," Tony said, who has not been out of the small town of Eagle, which carries a population of about 150 people, for 16 months. "First we got to Fairbanks, then Seattle, then to Minneapolis and there were people everywhere."

The brothers share the same feelings about living in Alaska and enduring the hardships of "living off the land."

"There are lots of things that I like about living there," Tony said. "I like the freedom and the idea of being isolated. And, you don't have to work too hard," he added, laughing.

One of the boys' sources of income comes from Tony's job with the International boundary commission in Alaska where he and a friend, Monte Worner, also of Thief River Falls, who accompanied Tony when he first arrived in Alaska, worked last summer. The job involves working 10-hour days, six days a week, with very good pay, according to Tony. The boys are dropped from helicopters every morning to clear land with chain saws on the boundary between Alaska and the Yukon territory. And, during the winter, there is trapping, which, Tony admits, "You cannot make a living at." The boys, along with two friends, have done quite well during their trapping excursions this winter, in which they have trapped 30 marten and a few mink. After the animals are trapped, they are sent to Seattle, WA, where they are brought to a fur auction. They have received no money for the animals yet, since it takes two weeks to receive pay for them and auctions are only conducted twice all winter with the next one being in February. Price for one marten is about $50, Tony said.

"I don't know for sure, but I've heard mink are going for about $40," Tom said.

After 33 Years...

Stewart Resigns As Engineer For City

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

After 33 years of potholes, politics, paving and progress, D. H. Stewart has turned in his transit and shucked his sliderule as engineer for the city of Thief River Falls. Stewart's letter of resignation was accepted by the city council Tuesday evening.

During his service since August of 1946, the city has grown greatly in size, streets have been vastly improved, sanitary and storm sewers have replaced outhouses and open ditches, there is a more than adequate water supply and the city is served by a regional airport with exceptional facilities for a community of this size.

"If I have any regrets," Stewart mused while sitting in his comfortably furnished home office, "they would be in project as yet undone rather than the way in which any were done."

He considers such things as widening of First street and the First street bridge, signalization program for the city, Greenwood street improvement and surfacing as an in-town arterial and the proposed highway by-pass as programs which would be of exceptional community benefit.

Over the years he has openly promoted projects which he believed to be essential for health, safety or economic reasons. Admittedly, the projects provided his engineering firm with work for which a fee was paid. "But I think I am safe in saying that I never recommended a project that I wasn't convinced was needed and that in nearly all cases the results have been justified," he said.

Douglas H. Stewart was born on a farm near Gilby, N.D., a farm whose north line coincidentally is on a direct line with Greenwood street in Thief River Falls. He graduated from high school in Gilby, earned his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks in 1940 and married his childhood sweetheart, Lillian Wools of Forest River, N.D., the same year.

He went to work for the Great Northern railroad company in Willmar, then moved to California and was employed by the soil conservation service of the U.S. department of agriculture. In 1943 he joined Kaiser Engineers in steel mill and artillery shell manufacturing plant design for the World War II war effort.

Drafted in 1945, he sold his house in California and made arrangements to move back to the farm in North Dakota when the war ended and he was never inducted. He joined the Lium and Burdick engineering firm in Grand Forks, N.D., and was assigned to design work on a water plant for Thief River Falls.

Later in 1945 he appeared before the city council and talked about the need for a city engineer. Elections were coming up, however, and he was told that there was no way the city was going to put out a plush salary of $300 a month for a city engineer.

In the spring of 1946, following the elections, council members again met with Stewart and he was given the $300 monthly salary to become the city's engineer with offices in the city

CITY ENGINEER for Thief River Falls since August of 1946, D. H. Stewart resigned his position in a letter to the mayor and city council Tuesday. During his engineering career here he became involved in a vast number of community improvement projects in Thief River Falls and most smaller communities throughout the northwestern Minnesota area. He plans to continue residence in Thief River Falls but has made no immediate retirement plans.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Christian Women To Hear Special Education Teacher

All three groups of the Thief River Falls Christian Women's clubs will meet Tuesday with Karen Teigland of Moorhead, a special education teacher, as guest speaker.

The brunch group will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., at the Best Western. The theme of the meeting will be "Ring in the New Year," with Tom Bjorkman as guest musician and Pam Kolden presenting the latest fashions in jewelry. The cost is $3.00.

The luncheon group, which will be meeting at the American Legion club, will have as its theme, "January is for the Birds." As a special feature, Shelley Steva will give a bird feeder demonstration. Musical selections will be given by Carole Johnson. The meeting will be gin at 12:30 and conclude at 2:30 p.m. The cost is $3.00.

The council meeting, to be held at the Best Western from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., will center around the theme "Winter Wonderland." Tom Goddard will be in charge of the special feature on cross country skiing. Nancy Prichard will be the soloist and Jeanne Harger, the accompanist. The cost will be $3.75.

All women of the area are welcome to attend these meetings. A pre-school nursery, by reservation only, will be provided during the brunch and luncheon meetings.

Reservations to any of the three meetings are due by Friday, January 11. Concellations are also essential. For reservations, cancellations or further information, call 681-6311.

Mickelson And Burger Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Mickelson of Baudette announce the engagement of their daughter, Peggy, to Tom Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Burger of this city.

Miss Mickelson is a senior at North Dakota State University and her finance is a senior at Moorhead State University.

A June wedding is being planned.

Newfolden Senior Citizens Choose Board

Advisory board was appointed at the meeting of the Newfolden Senior Citizens held January 3 at the Newfolden center.

Appointed and agreeing to serve on the board were Rev. Earl Eveland, Mayor Stan Holmaas, Attorney Brian Rokke, local councilwoman Mrs. Vergil Mercil and local businessman Harvey Underdahl.

The possibility of making the center barrier free was discussed. Among the improvements deemed necessary was the enlarging of the bathroom doors to accomodate wheelchairs. Mayor Holmaas stated that the city council was applying for a grant to help pay for the cost of improvements.

Members were asked to attend an organizational meeting of the Minnesota Senior Federation organization for Northwestern Minnesota, scheduled for January 10 from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

President, Mrs. Henning Olson presided at the meeting. Reports were given by Secretary Mrs. Ruth Martin and treasurer Mrs. Art Skadsem.

Trinity Mothers Retreat Set At Rose Teie Home

"Let's Celebrate," will be the theme of the Trinity Mothers circle January retreat set for January 16 from 9:30 a.m., to 2 p.m., at the Rose Teie home at 317 Oriole avenue.

The event will include a brunch. Members are asked to note that no sack lunch is needed.

All members of the circle are encouraged to attend. Others interested are welcome.

Those wishing more information may call Carol DeLap 681-1340.

Oakland Park Nursing Home Notes Christmas

Preparations for Christmas, the celebration of the birth of Christ, highlighted the activities at Oakland Park Nursing home during the month of December.

Devotional programs, all based on the Christmas theme, were led by Nancy Lund, pastor of the Holt Lutheran parish; Rev. James Hagemeister of the Assemblies of God church, Rev. Carl Andersen of Trinity Lutheran church who, together with a youth group of sixth to eighth graders, gave a program; Rev. Earl Eveland of the Evangelical Free church of Newfolden, Rev. Curtis Anderson of the Evangelical Free church, Thief River Falls; and Rev. Julius Hovland of Trinity Lutheran church, who offered communion to the residents.

Also presenting programs to the residents were the Esther circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served a vareity of fruit breads; the Sunshine Singers, a group of eighth to tenth graders of the Viking Covenant church; "Back Behind the Barn Boys," who played and sang; the Good News Gospel Team which included Norris Trochmann and his daughter Laurie, Lowell Trochmann and his wife Lona, and Steve Jensen; and a group from Valley Home who presented a program of vocal and instrumental music.

Caroling groups visiting the Home were a group of Girl Scouts with their leader Mary Numedahl, Oakland Park's director of Nurses, in charge; the caroling group from the First Baptist church with Rev. Frank Armstrong leading; the residents of Hanson's and Johnson's boarding homes, 30 carolers from the Evangelical Covenant church with Mrs. Gary Anderson in charge; and carolers from the Silver Creek Sunday school.

Others entertaining the group were Bruce A. Tweten of Kensal, N.D., a son-in-law of resident Roy Adam; members of the Eagles auxiliary and the American Legion auxiliary, who assisted the residents in playing Bingo; and nine Boy Scouts with leader Jim Hoks, who played table games with the residents.

The monthly birthday party was held on December 18 with the women of the Oak Ridge Lutheran church in charge. McDonald's supplied the orange drink. Those honored at the party for having birthdays in December and the dates of their birth were: Adella Engen, Dec. 3, 1892; Andrew Hendrickson, Dec. 5, 1904; Emma Zinter, Dec. 9, 1898; Olaga Ellingson, Dec. 15, 1905; Lenora Silk, Dec. 17, 1882; and Minda Larson, Dec. 28, 1895.

Other special events were the Residents Tea, catered by the Residents Council; the Home's second annual "Tom and Jerry" happy hour Christmas party featuring fancy cookies, sandwiches and egg nog. Playing the piano and singing for the event was a music major at UND, Grand Forks, Bradley Almquist of Cummings, N.D.; a grandson of resident Mabel Swanson.

UMC Alumni Dinner Parties Are Arranged

Alumni, faculty, and staff from the University of Minnesota technical college — Crookston (UMC) and the Northwest School of Agriculture (NWSA) are invited to the alumni dinner party to be held Thursday, January 17, at the Legion club in Roseau, beginning at 6 p.m. with a social hour. Dinner at 7 p.m. will be followed by a brief program at 8 p.m.

Alumni dinner party provides an opportunity for faculty and staff to renew old friendships and find out what changes are taking place in the lives of former students, according to Don Cavalier, director of alumni relations. Alumni will be given a chance to meet new faculty and find out about the changes now taking place on UMC's campus.

Representatives from most divisions will be there to briefly explain the activities taking place in their respective divisions.

An alumni dinner party is also scheduled for Friday, January 18, at the Legion Club in Stephen.

"All interested persons are welcome to all or part of the evening's activities," said Cavalier.

Pre-Schoolers Learn Safety In Safety Town

A first grader recently was killed when the school bus she had just left rolled over her when she crawled in front of the rear wheels to retrieve a paper she had dropped.

It was that type of accident that prompted Dorothy Chlad of Cleveland, Ohio, to start the non-profit safety town program for pre-schoolers several years ago.

Safety towns now have sprouted up in many cities and towns across the nation under the sponsorship of local civic groups.

During a two-week program, the children learn to become safe citizens through their own involvement in simulated and actual life situations in miniature toy-town settings, reports the automotive information council (AIC).

"By reaching the children during the pre-school years we can help them build safety habits they can use their entire lifetime," Mrs. Chlad told AIC. She added that more children die from accidents than the next six leading causes combined — cancer, birth defects, pneumonia, homicide, heart disease and stroke.

Program originally was set up to help children learn traffic safety. Since then, the program has been expanded to cover all types of safety, including the home and playground.

"Some examples include why they should fasten their seat belts, how to cross a street safely, the proper way to ride a bicycle, rules of bus safety and a host of others.

"We often hear reports that our kids tell their parents to 'buckle up,' and to 'stop, look and listen'," said Mrs. Chlad. "We like that."

Parents, teenagers, senior citizens and businesses get involved as volunteers in the construction and design of the buildings and as instructors. Safety towns get support of local police, fire and medical personnel.

Parents or organizations interested in starting a safety town should write the National Safety Town Center, P.O. Box 39312, Cleveland, Ohio 44139.

City Council Holds Routine Session Tues.

between $14,000 and $16,000 a year. (Based on Crookston figures) Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Milan Borsheim, and a second from alderman Engelstad to supply interest and support of operational costs to the plant, the resolution carried.

Work study agreement between the city of Thief River Falls and Northland community college carried with the city to pay 20 per cent of the $2.90 per hour and up to a maximum of $2,000, and John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities, was appointed to act as representative to the municipal power agency.

Bids were agreed to be January 22, at 2 p.m. by the sanitation committee for garbage bags to be taken. It was resolved that Arnold Wiskow be interim water department supervisor until a class "A" license operator is hired; to receive $140 additional pay during the first year, $187, the second year and $280 the third year, on a monthly basis. Anderson will also secure a qualified operator with a class "A" license for the water plant and seek an electrician.

Council members granted raises to the following: Scott Maslowski, patrolman at $1,158 per month effective January 1, 1980, and Dione Lund, city clerk's office at $875 effective January 16.

Bids for the snowblower for use at the Thief River Falls regional airport were tabled, since it was resolved at the present time a recommendation is not ready to be made.

It was resolved that the street committees surplus property consisting of a 1958 truck without a box or hoist would be made available for purchase, since the city code provides for disposition of property if the city council declares it excess property.

Council members agreed to take action following a request from Ken Froschheiser, chief of police, over the matter of opening the downtown area of Thief River Falls for snowmobile use during the I-500 snowmobile race.

"I do not believe it is wise to open the downtown area one day and then not permit snowmobiles in the area after the race, especially since the citizens of the city have an understanding of the snowmobile regulations stressed," he said.

The resignation of Doug Stewart, city engineer was accepted by city council members following Mayor Bob Carlson's statement, "We only have to look around the city to see the results of the work done by Stewart, following his 33 years of service to the city of Thief River Falls."

MOTHER NATURE wrapped a frosty hula skirt around the post of this stop sign on Pennington avenue at First street last week, causing it to resemble a bright flower popping out of lush foliage. Since this photo was taken before temperatures plummeted to near 30 degrees below zero last night, the fractures visible in the painted surface of the sign were not caused by shattering in the cold.

School Board Hires Several New Employees

Thief River Falls board of education hired an assistant principal for Franklin middle school, a mechanic for the transportation department, two instructors, a management aide and several bus drivers at its regular meeting Monday evening.

Wilton Swenson of Owatonna was hired as assistant principal at Franklin and Russell Flaten of Newfolden was hired as mechanic. Sharon Humphrey was hired as a prekindergarten instructor in the "Children and Parents Learning Together" program at Mark Twain school, Elvera Cullen was hired as a long-term substitute at Lincoln, Ardelle Offerdahl as a management aide for the trainable mentally handicapped at Franklin and Gary Housker, Ted Anderson, James Hulteen and Sandra Somody as bus drivers.

Long-term substitute agreement with Galen Clow was terminated (he has accepted a full-time position elsewhere with an expression of appreciation for his services. Resignation of Barbara Larson as AVTI accounting clerk was also accepted, as was the resignation of Richard Fugere who has been on three-year extended leave of absence as a faculty member.

Named to the advisory committee for the Children and Parents Learning Together program were Muriel Olin, Diane Paulson, Sue Larson, Del Peters, Jan Nordin, Barrie Henke, Darwin Boutiette, Carol Wehage, Henrietta Ness, Peggy Johaningsmeir and Carol Ihle.

The board contracted with Northwest educational cooperative service unit for simulation services for the driver education program in 1980-81 and authorized the AVTI to seek a house remodeling project for the 1980-81 school year.

Doug Stewart Resigns City Engineer Post

The only surfaced streets in town at that time were downtown and the trunk highways leading into the city. Perhaps half the town had sanitary sewer service and the rest had septic tanks — "which didn't work any better then than they do now" — or outdoor privies. In 1948 there was a major street improvement program which involved highways 32 and 59 in the city.

Four years later Stewart had an offer to go to Little Falls at a big boost in salary to $6,000 a year. The local council decided it couldn't match the offer, but Stewart had put down some roots and was reluctant to leave Thief River Falls. He reached an agreement with the city to go on a consulting basis with a $100 per month retainer. For 27 years the retainer remained the same.

"I had a car that wasn't paid for and half of my last check from the city," Stewart said about his venture into private business. He was allowed to leave his offices in the city auditorium, but by 1955 had outgrown the space and moved into the former water plant building by the city fire hall. Offices have remained there since that time.

Area communities which had been mostly dormant in civic improvements since before the war years began to come to life. Stewart made his engineering services available to area communities and designed water, sewer, street, airport or other improvement programs for most of them, still maintaining his service to Thief River Falls.

Jim Walker joined him in the spring of 1956 and a branch office was opened in Grand Rapids with Walker as manager. In 1960 the two formed a corporation and the Grand Rapids office was moved to Bemidji to handle Bemidji and area accounts. Thus Stewart's company progressed through the stage from "Douglas H. Stewart, Consulting Engineer" to "D. H. Stewart & Associates" to "Stewart & Walker, Inc."

Two years ago Stewart sold out his stock in the firm to his partner and for the past two years has been an employee of the firm. He is presently undecided on his future plans, except for increased emphasis on such worthy projects as fishing, hunting and golf.

Fundamentals of engineering haven't changed during his tenure in the field, Stewart says, but the mechanics certainly have. Sophisticated equipment for distance measuring and surveying has been developed and is in common use and the computer has revolutionized the manual labor involved in computation.

The Thief River Falls regional airport project which his firm worked on for the state of Minnesota was one of Stewart's largest projects from a dollar standpoint, involving several million dollars of project work. A major improvement project for the city of Warroad is in the $2 and $3 million category and some earlier projects in the million dollar range when dollar value was greater involved large scale engineering effort.

"We did the Ely airport from scratch," Stewart recalls, "and I mean we started with a compass and aerial photos and grubbed it out of the brush to become a respectable facility."

Doug is a past president of the Minnesota society of professional engineers and served as a director on the national society for two years. The firm grew to employ about 15 full-time people at the time of his leaving.

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls is Wilton Swenson whose appointment was approved Monday evening by the local board of education. Swenson moved here from Owatonna and will be assistant to Dr. Milton Hoff at Franklin.

Doug and Lillian have three sons. Don is office manager for the Stewart & Walker office in Thief River Falls; John is an architect with Emil Madsen and Associates at Battle Lake (the firm which designed the Newfolden community center and fire hall); and Scott works with a surveying firm in Phoenix, Ariz.

Adult Evening Classes Start Here Thursday

Quie Visits City During Tour Of State

certain regions of the state are built into the proposal, and that 10 per cent of the number of voters casting ballots in the previous gubernatorial election would be required to petition for new laws.

His proposal for a reapportionment commission is that a nine-member group be appointed. It would include two Democratic Farmer-Labor legislators and two Independent-Republican legislators, two from the House and two from the Senate. These four legislators would select five independent members by unanimous vote to complete make-up of the commission. That commission would be empowered to accomplish reapportionment without an approving vote from the legislature.

"While the proposal appears extremely fair, reapportionment has most often been used by legislative majorities to attempt to manipulate district lines to their advantage whenever possible, Gov. Quie admitted.

The governor said a constitutional spending limit is needed as an imposed discipline for the legislature. "State spending can't go up faster than income — just as your family's spending can't go up faster than your salary," he said.

Accompanied on his visit by commissioner Richard Braun of the Minnesota department of transportation, Gov. Quie outlined a four-point proposal to fund highway improvement and construction under what he termed the "modified MnDOT plan".

He proposes to remove the exemption of gasoline from state sales taxes, raise the automobile registration fee, transfer the state sales tax on auto sales from general revenue to the department of transportation and issue bonds to complete the state's share of the interstate highway program. The sales tax transfer on automobile sales is proposed in four steps starting in 1982 with one per cent and adding one per cent of the tax each year until the full four per cent tax would be transferred in 1985.

Gov. Quie said he has had no second thoughts about leaving his U.S. Congress position to seek the governorship and that he believes it is now more productive to serve on the state scene than in Washington, D.C. He continues to support annual sessions of the legislature but oppose full-time legislators, believing in the importance of people contact through a citizen legislature.

Blood Pressure Testing Days Are Changed

Blood pressure screening clinics will now be held the first and third Thursday of each month in the Inter-County nursing service office from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Office is located in the basement of the courthouse. Blood pressure clinic at Skylite apartments will continue to be held the fourth Monday of each month from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Council On Aging To Meet

Meeting of the Pennington county community council on aging will be held January 14 at 10 a.m., at the auditorium.

Torjus Johnson, 64, Of Grygla Dies January 9

Torjus Johnson, 64, of Grygla died this morning (Wednesday) at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Torjus Johnson are pending. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements. A complete obituary will be published in Monday's edition of The Times.

Services Held Tuesday For Sophus Ness

Funeral services for Sophus Ness, 88, of Sanders township, Pennington county, were held Tuesday at 2 p.m., at the Belmont Funeral home. Ness died Saturday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. James Mattson, pastor at Zion Lutheran church, officiated at the services. Music was provided by Jerry Joringdal, organist, and Mrs. Curtis Ness, vocalist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers were Clarence Anderson, Vernon Anderson, Hans Newman, Roy Mehrkens, Herbert Swenson and Clarence Molskness.

Sophus Ness, a son of the late Peter and Mathilda Ness, was born July 31, 1891 in Sanders township. He attended school in that area and later farmed there for most of his working years. For a time in the 30's, he was a salesman for the Ford Dealership in Thief River Falls.

He was active in community affairs, served for a time on the Sanders school board and the ASC. He never married.

Surviving are two brothers and two sisters: Palmer, Melvin Ness and Millie Ness and Mrs. Iven (Nora) Miller, all of Thief River Falls, and a nephew, Gordon Miller, Stevens Point, Wis.

He was preceded in death by one nephew.

Alice Spray Services Set For Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Spray, 95, of this city will be held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Mrs. Spray died Sunday evening, January 6, at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital where she had been a resident since August of 1975.

Officiating at the service will be her grandson Earl Roberts of Grand Rapids, a Church of Christ pastor. Mrs. Sherman Idso will be the organist and soloist. Interment will be in the family plot at the North Kingston cemetery, rural Kimball.

Honorary pallbearers will be grandsons and great-grandsons.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home from Friday noon until time of services.

Mrs. Spray, the former Alice Hanora Magnuson, was born Dec. 3, 1884 at Dassel to John and Pauline Johnson Magnuson. She was the oldest of their eight children. As a child, she moved with her parents to the Kimball area where she attended school and grew to womanhood.

She was married at Kingston on June 15, 1904 to G. Clyde Spray. The couple farmed at Kimball. From 1924 until 1927, they lived and farmed at Goodrich, N.D., and from 1927 until 1936 at Erskine. They then moved to Warroad where her husband operated a grocery store until his death on May 27, 1937. Since then, she lived at Warroad, Erskine, Fosston and Thief River Falls, spending the last eight years in nursing homes.

She was a member of the Church of Christ.

Surviving are two sons: Alden V. Spray, Fosston; and Orville, Marysville, Wash.; a daughter, Mrs. Oscar (Arlene) Welby, Erskine; 13 grandchildren, 35 great-grandchildren, and two great-great grandchildren.

Also surviving are a brother, Archie Magnuson, Kimball; a brother-in-law, two sisters-in-law, and a number of nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by twin sons: M. Floyd and W. Lloyd Spray, who lived here; three sisters: Mabel, Agnes and Fern; and three brothers: Albert, Lawrence and Clarence.

Services Here For Monica Safford, 83

Mrs. Monica Safford, 83, of St. Paul and formerly of the Thief River Falls community, died Tuesday at the Bethesda hospital in St. Paul.

Funeral Mass for Monica Safford will be offered Thursday at 10 a.m., at the St. Stanilaus Catholic church in St. Paul.

Prayer services will be held in Thief River Falls on Friday at 7 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel, with Rev. James Bernauer officiating. Interment will be in St. Bernard's cemetery in the Spring.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home from Friday noon until 9 p.m.

Mrs. Safford, the former Monica Hofferth, was born May 5, 1896 at Carlsruke, Alberta, Canada. She was united in marriage to Louis Bimler on Oct. 23, 1916. They made their home in Thief River Falls from 1935 until his death on May 8, 1951.

In October of 1952, she married Herbert Safford in Thief River Falls. The couple made their home here. Following his death on Oct. 6, 1962, Mrs. Safford continued to live here until 1968, when she moved to St. Paul.

She is survived by two sons: Matthew Bimler, East Grand Forks; and James Bimler, Lindstrom; four daughters: Dorothy Hillyer, South St. Paul; Marjorie Hudson and Leona Meyers, both of St. Paul, and Mary Lou Berg, Oronoco; 18 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are two brothers: Dominic Hofferth, Osnabrock, N.D.p and John Hofferth, Grand Forks, N.D.; six sisters: Sister Mary Frances, Mankato; Tillie Dienert, Grand Prairie, Alberta; Agnes Schwartz, Wind Lake, Wis.; Teresas Bankowski, North Little Rock, Ark.; Mary Graveline and Rose Schwardtz, both of Langdon, N.D.; and several nieces and nephews.

Ester Coppen, Once Of Area, Dies In Mpls.

Mrs. Ester Coppen, 73, of Minneapolis and formerly of this area, died Sunday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ester Coppen were held this afternoon (Wednesday) at the White Bear Lake Mortuary. Interment will be in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Coppen, the former Ester Odberg, was born and raised in Spruce Valley township, Marshall county. She attended the Middle River high school; and for the past 50 years, she had made her home in Minneapolis.

She is survived by two daughters, one son, and eight grandchildren.

Also surviving are three sisters: Mrs. Oliver (Clara) Canty and Mrs. Hilda Ross, both of Thief River Falls, and Marie Peterson, Minneapolis; a brother, Hilmer Odberg of Newfolden, and several nieces and nephews with a number living in this area.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Allan Coppen, her parents, John and Bertha Odberg, a brother and one sister.

Wm. J. Mulry Dies Monday At His Home

William J. Mulry, 68, of rural Goodridge, died unexpectedly Monday afternoon at his home in Kratka township, Pennington county.

Funeral services for William J. Mulry will be held Friday at 11 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church with Rev. James Bernauer officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

A parish vigil service will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m., at the Belmont Funeral chapel where the body will repose from Thursday noon. The body will also repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in the Monday edition of the Times.

Minimum Wage Increases To $3.10 An Hour

Federal minimum wage increased from $2.90 to $3.10 an hour January 1, the U.S. department of labor reminds workers and employers.

More than five million of the 57 million workers covered by the fair labor standards act (FLSA) are eligible for pay increases because of the change.

These are workers covered by the act who are now making less than $3.10 an hour. The January 1 change in the minimum wage was provided for in 1977 amendments to the FLSA.

"The minimum wage law has continued to protect workers at the low end of the wage scale by providing a minimum standard of living and also by preventing these workers from shouldering an unfair burden in the fight against inflation," secretary of labor Ray Marshall noted.

He said the FLSA protects low-wage workers from becoming victims of substandard wage and working conditions. In addition, he said the act has protected the majority of employers from unfair competition by a small minority who do not maintain fair labor standards for their workers.

The wage and hour vivision, a part of the department's employment standards administration, is responsible for administration and enforcement of the FLSA which also sets overtime pay and child labor standards in addition to the minimum wage rates.

Under the 1977 FLSA amendments, the percentage of tip credit which can be applied toward the minimum wage for tipped employees will be reduced from 45 to 30 per cent, also effective January 1, 1980.

Tipped employees are those who customarily and regularly receive more than $30 a month in tips. The employers may consider tips as part of the wage, so long as the wage credit does not exceed the percentage of the minimum wage specified by law.

Employers who elect to use the tip credit provision must inform the employee in advance and must be able to show that the employee receives at least the minimum wage when direct wages and tip credit allowance are combined.

The FLSA amendments also include a three-step increase in the dollar-volume test for coverage of certain employers. These employers are required to pay workers minimum wage and overtime pay, in accordance with the FLSA dependent on the total amount of business done in a year.

The "dollar volume test" applies to employers or enterprises comprised exclusively of one or more retail or service establishments whose annual gross volume of sales or business done is not less than the amount specified by the act.

The current $275,000 test will increase to $325,000 on July 1, 1980, and $362,500 after Dec. 31, 1981.

During fiscal 1979, the labor department reached agreements with employers to restore a record $98.6 million to over 500,000 workers protected by federal wage and hour laws. Violations of the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA accounted for the bulk of underpayments.

Employers agreed to restore over $28 million to almost 309,000 employees for minimum wage underpayment and over $45 million to almost 234,000 workers for overtime underpayment.

Governor Quie Dinner Dance At Moorhead

Minnesota's governor and lieutenant governor and their wives will be in Moorhead on January 19 for a dinner and dance celebrating their first anniversary in office, according to Sylvia Eide, Hitterdal, who is a co-chairperson of the event. The dinner, which is at 7 p.m. at the Moorhead state university ballroom, will be followed by the dance at 9:30 p.m.

"Gretchen and I are looking forward to socializing with our many good friends in northwestern Minnesota," informs Gov. Albert Quie. "I know Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Lou Wangberg are as excited as we are to visit with our supporters across the state."

The governor's anniversary ball is actually four events, with others held January 5 in Minneapolis, January 18 in Duluth, and January 25 in Mankato. All are sponsored by Minnesota Independent-Republicans, with any profits used to defray the cost of activities at the governor's residence.

In addition to Eide, Martin Hololen, Moorhead, is co-chairperson. Other committee members are Don Loeslie, Warren, vice-chairman; Elaine Reeves, Bemidji, treasurer; Beatrice Aigner, Wolverton, decorations, and Karl Karlgaard, Fargo, N.D., publicity. Seventh District Congressman and Mrs. Arlan Stangeland are honorary chairpersons.

Moorhead high school's Apollo Strings will provide dinner music. A short program will follow the dinner, with the Moorhead state university stage band entertaining. Furnishing dance music for the evening are Myron Sommerfeld and the Bon Bon Brass.

Tickets for the dinner and dance are $12.50 per person, with the cost for just the dance set at $2 per person. They are available from county Independent-Republican chairpersons or by contacting Hololen at 218-236-2603.

USDA Begins Survey On Floriculture

USDA has begun canvassing the nation's floriculture industry on production and marketings. Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service in St. Paul will oversee the project on a statewide basis.

Floriculture survey is being combined with the 1979 census of horticultural specialties, a once-each-ten-years benchmark of the entire horticulture industry. Combining of efforts will not only save survey costs, but will avoid having growers contacted twice to provide similar information. Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service is responsible for contacting those growers usually contacted for the annual floriculture survey, while census will contact all other growers.

In addition to questions on those crops in the USDA program, data will be collected on other greenhouse products, nursery products, mushrooms, sod, energy usage, and labor usage. To hold down costs, USDA urges a prompt reply to the survey, since it will personally contact all non-respondents.

For more information on this survey, contact Bob Waldera at (612) 296-8401 or Sy Phillippi at (612) 296-7024, with the Minnesota Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in St. Paul.

Senator Hopes To Block Move On Gas Prices

About 60,000 Minnesota homeowners may be forced to underwrite the purchase of Canadian natural gas in the Pacific Northwest unless Senator Dave Durenberger is successful in blocking a proposed change in the price of the imported gas.

Senator Durenberger sent a letter to President Carter urging him to express to the departments of energy and state and the Canadian government his disapproval of "differential pricing." The pricing scheme would allow Canada to cut the price of natural gas it sells to Washington and Oregon while raising the price for purchasers in Minnesota and other states.

"Canadian natural gas is selling for $3.45 per million cubic feet. At this price, it's cheaper for people in the Pacific Northwest to switch to electricity for heating their homes. Because the Pacific Northwest relies on hydroelectricity, rather than the more expensive electricity from fossil fuels or nuclear, Canadian natural gas costs more than other forms of energy," Durenberger said.

"The departments of state and energy and the Canadian government are negotiating differential pricing. This would allow the Canadians to charge a higher price for its gas in states like Minnesota where alternative fuels are expensive and cut the price in Washington and Oregon. In effect, Minnesota homeowners would be subsidizing homeowners in another part of the country."

Durenberger said 60,000 Minnesota homes are heated by Canadian natural gas. Most are in northwestern Minnesota, in or near the Red river valley, and are served by Northern States Power company. Minnesota homes use about 200 billion cubic feet of Canadian natural gas per year.

"These people have already had terrible price increases this year. Just a few months ago, the price to the pipeline was $2.30 per million cubic feet. Now, it is $3.45 and if differential pricing is accepted the cost would jump at least another seven per cent — about 24 cents," said the senator.

Durenberger was the author in October of a successful amendment to the windfall profits tax to give Canadian natural gas users a tax credit to help cover the rapid cost increases. The amendment will give families with incomes below $20,000 a tax credit of up to $200. Durenberger had similar tax credits for persons who heat their homes with oil or propane.

No Recession, But Inflation Seen For Dist.

There will be no recession in the Upper Midwest in 1980, but inflation will be in double-digits again, researchers at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis predict.

In the bank's latest "Quarterly Review," researchers say businesses in the Ninth federal reserve district will add two per cent more workers to their payrolls in 1980. They say the district's unemployment rate will be only 4.5 per cent, about the same as in 1979.

The district includes Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota, northwestern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Prices in the area, though, will rise almost 13 per cent this year, two percentage points faster than in 1979, the Quarterly says. These forecasts are based on the bank's small econometric model of the Ninth district.

Two strong industries in the region are expected to be manufacturing and agriculture, according to recent surveys by the bank. In the first half of 1980, district manufacturers expect their sales to be up 11 per cent from a year earlier, the Quarterly says. And most rural bankers tell the Fed they think early 1980 farm income in their areas will equal or surpass that in early 1979.

Retailing and homebuilding are not expected to do that well, however. The bank's model predicts that inflation will offset any increases in retail sales. And indicators of future residential building activity point downward, the Quarterly says.

Headlights Required At Dawn And Dusk

If you drive to work before 8 a.m. each day and return after 4:30 p.m., you are required by state law to use your vehicle headlights, warned State Patrol Chief Roger Ledding, of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"We are now experiencing the darkest part of the year," said Ledding, "and state law requires that headlights be on until sunrise in the morning and after sunset in the late afternoon."

Ledding reminded motorists that the headlight requirement means full headlights and that using parking lights does not satisfy the requirements of Minnesota law.

"It is very puzzling why so many drivers refuse to use their headlights at dawn and dusk," said Ledding. "With the efficient electrical systems of today's vehicles, the use of headlights does not cause any real drain of battery power."

Profit Margin Of Republic Airlines Drops

Republic airlines recently reported record revenues of $558.1 million for the first eleven months of 1979, compared with $444.5 million last year.

"Operating expenses increased 30 per cent to $527.8 million from $406.3 million in 1978," said Bernard Sweet, president and chief executive officer. "Net earnings were $11.2 million, or 61 cents per share primary. This compares with $21.3 million, or $1.24 per share in 1978. Earnings per share on a fully-diluted basis were 59 cents, and $1.13 last year. Number of shares outstanding increased in 1979 with the conversion of debentures and the exercise of warrants to purchase common stock."

In November, revenues increased 27 per cent to $51.3 million from $40.3 million. Operating expenses rose 41 per cent to $52.6 million from $37.2 million. A net loss of $2.6 million was incurred, compared with a net profit of $1.4 million in November 1978. The net loss per share was 13 cents compared with eight cents profit in November 1978.

According to Sweet, financial results for November and those since July 1 have been adversely affected by nonrecurring merger expenses, an industry-wide softening of traffic, and rising fuel costs which were not fully offset by fare increases. Also, the earnings for the first eleven months of 1978 were favorably affected by a strike against Northwest airlines.

On January 15, Republic will inaugurate new nonstop service between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Las Vegas. With the new service, Republic will serve more cities — 158 — than any other carrier in the country on its 36,900-mile route system.

Loan Program To Small Banks Not Justified

A government loan program intended to help small rural banks that can't get funds any other way is probably "not justified," according to an economist at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

In a study published in the bank's latest "Quarterly Review," Stanley L. Graham says that the Federal Reserve system's "seasonal borrowing privilege" is being used mostly not by small banks but by large banks attracted by the Fed's low interest rates.

The Federal Reserve system introduced the seasonal borrowing privilege in 1973 to provide a source of funds for small banks which regularly face heavy loan demand, such as banks in agricultural areas. The assumption behind the policy, Graham says, is that these banks have no reliable access to national money markets.

Graham says that the evidence does not support that assumption. He studied the use of the Fed's loan program from 1973 to 1978 by banks in Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota, northwestern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, a highly rural area.

His results show the following:

+ Only 10 to 20 per cent of the eligible banks have borrowed from the Fed under this program annually, and the percentage has been declining, not growing.

+ A majority of the borrowers have been relatively large banks, or banks affiliated with large holding companies, which have also regularly borrowed in the money market.

+ Use of the Fed's program has been "closely correlated" with the difference between its interest rate and money market rates: when the Fed's rate was much lower than market rates, the number of borrowers has increased; when the difference shrank, so has the number of borrowers.

Graham concludes that small banks can probably "get along without" the seasonal borrowing privilege. If the Fed continues this policy in the chance that some cannot, however, he recommends that it charge market rates so at least "the privilege is not used simply because it is cheaper."

There were over 1 billion acres of land in U.S. farms, but only 379 million acres were actually listed as cropland at the beginning of 1979.

Asks Controls On Citizens' Foreign Assets

The United States should at least consider an explicit policy of intervening in foreign exchange markets or putting controls on the foreign assets that U.S. citizens may hold, according to Neil Wallace, an advisor to the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis and professor of economics at the University of Minnesota.

Writing in the Minneapolis bank's Quarterly Review, Wallace argues that these policies are the only feasible options. Without some type of government intervention, the international monetary system would not work, he says.

Although some economists believe that a free market can determine foreign exchange rates in the same way it determines the prices of goods, Wallace does not. He reasons that today's currencies are different from the goods traded in other markets and that currency markets are consequently different from other markets.

The supplies of today's currencies are [illegible] the governments that issue them. More important, today's currency is by itself useless — people want it only so that it can be exchanged for real goods or services. This distinguishes it from apples, shares of stock and other goods.

Because currencies are not like the goods traded in other markets, the Fed economist explains, markets in foreign exchange are different from other markets. In particular, in foreign exchange markets there is no well-defined demand for a currency without government involvement of some kind, either intervention in the market or legal controls on asset holdings. Without such involvement — that is, in a system of freely floating exchange rates — exchange rates could be anything and could fluctuate wildly, because they would depend entirely on speculation and not on any fundamental factors underlying the supply or demand of currencies.

The March of Dimes reports that 1980 marks the 25th anniversary of the announcement that the Salk vaccine was pronounced safe, potent and effective, ending the threat of epidemic polio.

Views On Dental Health®

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

WHY A "TEMPORARY" FILLING?

Have you ever had your dentist tell you he was using a "temporary filling" and wondered why? No, my friend, it is not a ploy so he can get a second crack at you. This is a perfectly proper dental procedure.

It is referred to as "indirect capping", and is used in cases where the nerve (or pulp) would be exposed if all the decay were removed from the cavity. Regarded as a conservtive treatment, the application of edicated cement in the temporary filling helps the pulp of the tooth to repair itself by containing the decay and allowing the buildup of a wall of tooth structure between the pulp and the decayed material.

This is a "holding action". When your dentist removes the temporary filling, he may take an X-ray to determine if the pulp has healed. If so, the balance of the decay is removed, and a permanent restoration, or filling, can be placed in the tooth.

In summary, your dentist is trying to keep your tooth alive, avoiding the need for a root-canal filling, pulp capping, or extraction of the tooth.

"NUISANCE SUIT"

This is the phrase one school board member used to describe the "Law Suit" filed against District 564 by the TRFEA two years ago. Let's examine the issue.

—Charges made against the board included:
1. Refusal to meet and negotiate salaries of certain employees.
2. Violation of contract provisions for the filling of vacancies.
3. Restraint, interference and coercion of employees.

—TEACHERS DID NOT CONSIDER THIS A MERE "NUISANCE SUIT" NOR DID THE DISTRICT COURT JUDGE WHO FOUND THE SCHOOL BOARD GUILTY OF ALL OF THE ABOVE CHARGES.

—In a strongly worded statement, the judge ruled that the "TRFEA has suffered irreparable harm and injury and will continue to suffer irreparable harm and injury as a result of defendant school district's Unfair Labor Practices."

—This was the first instance in the state of Minnesota where a school board was found guilty of an Unfair Labor Practice.

—If the TRFEA could have caused individual board members to have been found financially responsible for their irrational and illegal acts, it would have done so. However, board members could have paid fines out of district funds which should be used for educating children. The TRFEA was more interested in correcting the problem than in burdening the taxpayers or their children.

—The TRFEA sought to resolve the situation through every means possible including grievance and mediation. The board refused to consider these options which left the TRFEA with court as its only recourse.

—The board spent thousands of the taxpayers dollars defending their irresponsible, irrational and illegal acts in court.

—THIS COULD HAPPEN AGAIN. Board conduct during the present negotiations may result in a similar suit.

—Continued public concern and involvement are the only means available to prevent irresponsible board action

Thief River Falls Education Association

UND Receives Gift Of $6-7 Million From Hyslop

Largest gift in the history of the University of North Dakota — totaling between $6 and $7 million — has been made by a 1906 graduate of UND who in the depths of the Great Depression never lost faith in the black land of the Red river valley.

He is W. Kenneth Hyslop of Racine, Wis., 94-year-old retired top executive of Massey-Ferguson, Inc. On January 3 he transferred title to the University of North Dakota foundation of 4,196 acres of Valley farmland in Cass county in North Dakota and in Marshall and Polk counties in Minnesota. Gifts made previously but not publicized at Hyslop's request, include an additional 640 acres of Cass county land, 1,440 acres of land in Alberta, Canada, and corporate stock valued at $153,000.

According to Earl Stinden, executive vice preisdent of the UND alumni association, the land transferred to the foundation in January alone is conservatively valued at $5.2 million. It consists of 1,280 acres south of Mapleton, N.D., 1,392 acres northwest of Argyle and 1,524 acres west of Euclid.

Strinden said the foundation — the separately chartered legal entity of the alumni association designated to receive alumni and private contributions for the benefit and support of UND — would manage the gift in such a way as to maximuze annual income.

Strinden said Hyslop's gift is rare among large contributions in that he has not restricted the use of the funds, but rather has left this decision to the judgment of the foundation's board of directors for "the highest and most beneficial purposes consistent with language in the foundation articles of incorporation."

Strinden said the Syslop gift will provide an endowment from which the foundation board will annually fund special project and needs at the University.

Hyslop's gift is expected to be among the largest — perhaps the largest — gift made by an individual to higher education in 1980.

The previous largest gift to benefit the university was the 1971 bequest of just under $4 million by the late Bismarck, N.D., utilities pioneer Edmond A. Hughes. Chester Fritz, the UND alumnus and international financier who now lives in Monaco, made the first $1 million for an auditorium, and numerous other large contributions for scholarships, faculty awards and special projects.

Ken Hyslop

University of North Dakota president Thomas J. Clifford expressed the appreciation of faculty, staff and students, as well as of the taxpayers of North Dakota, for Hyslop's generosity.

"Ken Hyslop is a man who believes that through education and hard work every young person of ambition can achieve high standards of excellence. He learned this lesson from his parents, who made sacrifices so that their children could enjoy the best education available in a day when our state was very young. His philosophy resulted in success for Ken Hyslop. He started with a UND degree and a $3.50-a-day job in a copper mill. But through his own efforts he retired as the respected head of one of the country's largest companies. Up to this very day, Ken's life has been varied, active and productive. The fact that he has chosen to invest his personal wealth in the future of the University of North Dakota is a tremendous demonstration of Ken Hyslop's faith in young people and in education."

W. Kenneth Hyslop was born at Inkster, N.D., on May 19, 1885. His family moved to Grand Forks during his childhood so that he and his three sisters could receive a better education. He attended UND from 1902-1906, graduating with a B.A. degree.

Early in 1907, Hyslop joined two UND classmates in New Mexico to work in the mining industry. A small scale prospecting enterprise of their own became financially successful, enabling Hyslop to purchase land in Alberta, part of the holdings he would donate to the UND foundation more than 70 years later.

Hyslop was farming his land in Canada in 1910 when International Harvester hired him to work as a collector in the winter season. In 1914, the company put him on full-time and, impressed with his knowledge of Spanish learned during his time in New Mexico, sent him to Spain.

He was a manager for International Harvester in that country until 1924, when he joined the Ford Motor company, representing it both in Spain and France. He joined Massey-Harris (now Massey-Ferguson) in 1931 as its European manager based in Paris.

In 1938, after he had spent 24 years abroad, the company brought Hyslop back to Racine, Wis., to serve as president and general manager of the U.S. operation of Massey-Harris. In 1948 he became chairman of the board of the U.S. company, and was named first vice president of the muntinational parent company, Massey Harris Ltd., headquartered in Toronto.

Hyslop remained in Recine after his retirement in 1950, although he traveled widely, both for pleasure and to pursue his business investments. His most recent trip to North Dakota was this past August, when he finalized details of his gift to the UND foundation.

Alcohol Fuel Seminar Topic At Farm Show

Over 10,000 farmers from the Upper Midwest are expected to attend an energy related conference at the St. Paul civic center January 9-11. The three-day event will host such speakers as Bob Soleta, director of renewable fuels, National Corn Growers association, who will moderate the panel.

Also included will be Dr. Harbans Sraon, a private consultant for industry and government, who has done extensive research on alcohol and stills, and Dr. Alvin Rusk, a Southwest state university professor who is currently in charge of the upper midwest's alcohol information center. Wednesday's (grow your own fuel day) discussion will include information on how to stretch our diminishing fuel supplies by producing gasohol from a corn alcohol and gasoline mixture.

Farmers who currently produce alcohol on the farm will be invited to attend the show. A survey will be taken to forecast the numbers of farms expected to be producing alcohol by 1981.

Thursday's theme centers on livestock and the production of methane gas from animal waste.

Friday's solar day will focus on alcohol production from the solar still, along with other methods of producing alcohol. Invited to speak are Ken Schmitt, director of research and development, Alternative Energy LTD, Colby, Kansas and Lance Crombie, inventor of the solar still, Webster.

The energy programs are being held in conjunction with the 1980 Midwest livestock equipment show. Many other programs, exhibits and seminars will be offered during the three-day event.

Gas Prices In Nation Average $1.09

Bureau of labor statistics of the U.S. department of labor reported that the U.S. average price for all types of gasoline was $1.09 in November, 1.3 cents higher than in October. November prices of leaded regular gasoline averaged 99.4 cents; unleaded regular $1.041; and leaded premium, $1.056.

In the 28 cities for which gasoline prices are published, prices of all types of gasoline averaged highest in Honluly, Anchorage and Chicago and lowest in Dallas and Houston.

The U.S. average price per gallon of fuel oil was 86.7 cents, 1.1 cents higher than the October price and 33.4 cents higher than the November 1978 price. In the 15 cities for which fuel oil prices are published, the average price per gallon ranged from a low of 79.9 cents in Baltimore to a high of 92.6 cents in Buffalo.

The U.S. averaged price for 500 KWH of electricity was $25.90, down 44.0 cents from the October price. This was the second consecutive monthly decrease resulting from changes to lower winter schedules in some areas.

In November, the U.S. price for 40 therms of natural gas was $15.54, up three cents from October. The U.S. price for 100 therms was $34.21, a monthly decrease of 51 cents.

These averaged prices are compiled from data collected by BLS in conjunction with the consumer price index.

'U' M Regents To Receive Ethics Code

The student board that publishes the Minnesota Daily will recommend a journalistic code of ethics and a plan to reorganize itself when the University of Minnesota board of regents meets Friday at 8:30 a.m. in 238 Morrill hall.

The regents asked the board last August to prepare such a report for the January meeting after members of several groups criticized a June humor issue published by the Daily.

The regents also will take their first look at a proposed six-year plan for building and remodeling projects at the university. The plan was requested by Gov. Al Quie. That discussion will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday in 238 Morrill hall and will continue Friday morning at 8:30 a.m. in the same room.

The schedule of committee meetings and key agenda items follows:

Legislative coordinating and budget committee, 9 a.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. Discussion of the six-year capital request plan.

Educational policy and long-range planning committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. Roger W. Staehle, dean of the institute of technology, will describe recent developments in the institute and plans for change.

Student concerns committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 300 Morrill hall. A project to survey former students will be described by vice president Frank Wilderson, along with a report on students who are older than average.

Faculty and staff affairs committee, 3:15 p.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. President C. Peter Magrath will describe the search process used to fill major positions at the university. The discussion was requested by the regents after St. Paul regent [illegible] criticized last month's selection of Nils Hasselmo as vice president for administration and planning. Schertler questioned the affirmative action efforts made in that search.

Physical plant and investments committee, 3:15 p.m., 300 Morrill hall. Reasons for delay in collecting clear information on the way university buildings are used day to day will be described by vice president Donald Brown. A report on space utilization at the university has been requested by vice president Donald Brown. A report on space utilization at the university has been requested by the legislature.

Committee of the whole, 8:30 a.m. Friday, 238 Morrill hall. Board of student publications recommendations, proposed budget principles for 1980-81, and six-year capital request plan. Full board, 10:30 a.m. Friday, 238 Morrill hall.

At 12:15 p.m. Friday, the regents will hold a luncheon meeting with the university hospitals board of governors planning and development committee at which they will hear a progress report on plans to remodel and rebuild parts of the old hospital complex.

A non-public meeting of the regents is set for 4:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss a case currently under litigation.

Horror stories about playing rugged Iron Range Conference hockey teams on their home ice, with their home officials, are circulating in Thief River Falls this week as the Lincoln high school hockey team readies itself to face one of the state's top-ranked teams — Greenway-Coleraine — Saturday night on the Raiders' ice.

But other than the fact that the Prowlers will be skating against a very strong opponent, there shouldn't be anything extraordinary about playing at Coleraine. At least that's what Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand will tell you. And he should know since he served as an assistant coach at Greenway for six years before he became head coach of the Prowlers for the 1976-77 season.

"It is very difficult to win at Greenway — every coach on the Iron Range will attest to that," admitted Grand. "Nobody wants to go there. But that's not unique to Greenway or the Iron Range; nobody in Section 8 wants to go to Warroad."

But coach, won't the Prowlers run into a bunch of head-hunting, high-sticking, contact-hungry maniacs over there?

"I think that's overdone," answered Grand. "We use to wrestle with that image as coaches at Greenway. You could have 15-16 kids playing a good, clean hockey game, but people would always remember the one or two that got out of line. They've got a very successful program there, and I don't think they would have won as many games as they have if they had nothing but a bunch of goons running around."

BUT, it could be a little rough, admitted Grand. "They (officials) do definitely allow you to play the body a little more over there. When I was on the Iron Range we played more physical hockey than we do in Section 8. But maybe that's changed since I left," said Grand, who might have had his tongue planted firmly into his cheek at the time.

Officiating shouldn't be a problem, though. Two or three of the best hockey officials in the Iron Range live in Coleraine and as a result don't work Greenway games against IRC foes. But chances are the people like Mike Tok and Bob Zuehlke, both of whom have worked Section 8 tournament games here in the past, will be on hand to call Saturday's contest.

It won't be an easy week for the Raiders who played neighboring rival Grand Rapids Tuesday and will face a surprisingly strong Chisholm outfit Friday before meeting the Prowlers.

"They have a tough week," said Grand of his former team. "Hopefully we can make it tougher."

Pirates Show Well at Moorhead

Crookston raised a few eyebrows Friday when the underdog Pirates challenged North Half Region 8AA basketball favorite Moorhead before losing a close 54-49 decision on the Spuds' court.

It was a condifence-builder for the Pirates, said Crookston coach Marshall Olson who told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "I was really scared of them," going into the game.

But the Pirates played the favored Spuds even, turning in their best performance of the season enroute to a 25-22 halftime lead. Crookston still led, 35-32, as the third quarter ended, but Moorhead forced three quick turnovers to start the final period to grab a five-point lead that proved to be the margin of victory.

"Those three turnovers killed us," said Olson.

Still, Crookston had a chance at the end. Trailing 52-49 with 30 seconds left, the Pirates could have narrowed the gap to a single point, but Tim Knotek, the game's high scorer with 19 points, missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation. The Spuds then added a final bucket.

It was at the free throw line where the Pirates lost it, according to Olson. Both teams connected on 23 field goal attempts, but the Spuds were a perfect 8-for-8 at the line while the Pirates were just 3-for-10.

"We had a good shooting game overall, except at the free throw line," mentioned Olson.

It was one of those games where you can apparently be satisfied with a loss.

"We played really well. I was pleased with our consistency, and the defense was just super," praised Olson. "I think the kids are at the top of their game now. I just hope we can continue in this way."

The Pirates, who began Northwest Athletic Conference play last night (Tuesday) at East Grand Forks, will be in Thief River Falls Fri., Jan. 18, a week after the Prowlers host the Green Wave. Crookston beat Thief River Falls earlier this year 62-55, ending the Prowlers' season-opening three-game winning streak.

Moorhead, meanwhile, showing the strength that has made it an odds-on favorite in North Half Region 8AA baseketball, came off that struggle against Crookston to drill Detroit Lakes 80-64 Saturday to improve its record to 7-2.

Crookston surprisingly out-rebounded the taller Moorhead outfit, which features a pair of 6-5 performers in Chad Sheets and Lawson Stephenson by a 41-38 margin. But the Spuds killed the Lakers on the boards.

"The whole difference was on the offensive board," explained John Erickson, coach of the Lakers who will be in Thief River Falls for a Feb. 15 game to end the regular season schedule for the Prowlers. "If you're 6-foot and they are 6-5, they are going to get the boards," Erickson told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record in Detroit Lakes.

SPARWLING ON THE ice, Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury came up with a third period save against East Grand Forks during Tuesday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. Defensemen Dave Geatz (4) and Steve Olson (5) of the Prowlers were involved in the play, along with two East Grand Forks skaters, including Dan Gasperlin (21) who was anxiously awaiting a rebound. The Green Wave beat the Prowlers 4-3 in overtime, giving both teams a 5-2 season record.

Prowlers Lose Quick Overtime Decision To Green Wave 4-3

What looked like a new lease on life for the Lincoln high school hockey team turned out to be just a brief reprieve Tuesday as the Prowlers, who gained a tie in dramatic fashion with just seconds left in regulation time, lost a 44-second overtime quickie to East Grand Forks 4-3.

It was a top box-office draw matching two of the prime contenders in the balanced Section 8 race this winter. And for the now bragging rights belong to the Green Wave who remain unbeaten in Section 8 play, 5-2 overall.

"You just saw two of the finer hockey teams in Section 8," pointed out first-year East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno. "I thought it was a heckuva hockey game."

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand said he was "disappointed" with the Prowlers' first Section 8 setback of the year, but recognized the strength of East Grand Forks. "We feel East Side is one of the strong contenders in the section," he said. The Prowlers are also 5-2 for the year.

On two occasions the game looked like it belonged to the Prowlers who jumped out to a 2-0 first period lead with two early goals spaced just 45 seconds apart, and then after surrendering three goals, came back at the end to force overtime in the waning seconds of regulation time.

Trailing 3-2, Thief River Falls made it exciting at the end, beginning with a partial breakaway by Jeff Ulrich who slipped behind the East Grand Forks defense, but missed a game-tying backhand with just 2:58 remaining in the third period.

That started a flurry of activity around East Grand Forks goalie Mark Pagnac who was stripped of a pair of defenders when Jeff Strandell and Rick Carlveau picked up back-to-back penalties. The Green Wave, skating two men short for a 1:26, were tested further when the Prowlers pulled goalie Bill Jury with 51 seconds left for another attacker, giving them a 6-on-3 edge in manpower.

Defenseman Dave Geatz finally got the equalizer at the 14:43 mark. East Grand Forks was one man short when Ulrich put the puck in front from behind the net and Geatz, in the midst of a tightly bunched group of players, rammed it home.

That brought a huge ovation from the Thief River Falls crowd and a three-minute rest before the two rivals headed into a scheduled eight-minute sudden-death overtime.

The psychological edge should have belonged to the Prowlers at that point, but they never got the chance to prove it as the puck quickly went into their zone where they had immediate problems. Tim Mishler ended it in the first minute when he was allowed to walk in unmolested on Jury from the side, whipping a low shot into the net for the win.

Grand agreed the Prowlers' late-game score should have given them an edge going into overtime. "You definitely should have things going your way after a goal like that," he said. "We had opportunities twice to clear the puck at the end (overtime), but we mishandled it."

Palmiscno, too, was afraid Thief River Falls would pick up momentum from the tying goal. "Your first reaction is to panic," he admitted. "But the kids kept their cool and came right back to win it."

Thief River Falls started strong. Paul Drees, who had missed a golden scoring opportunity when he was set up in front in the first minute of play, didn't miss on a second chance when he tapped in a feed from the corner from Geatz at 3:29 of the first period.

Less than a minute later it was 2-0 when Tom Bjorkman came from behind the net and stuffed the puck past Pagnac at 4:14.

"We dominated the first period," acknowledged Grand. "We played very well and had numerous excellent scoring opportunities."

Palmiscno said, "We've seemed to have problems all year getting off to a slow start. But the kids knew if they didn't get their act together they were going to get blown right out of this rink."

The Green Wave did straighten things out for the second and third period, tying the 2-2 by capitalizing on a rare four-minute major penalty assessed against Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald for interference on Pagnac in the goal crease.

Myles Hart put the Green Wave on the scoreboard with an ice-higging slap shot from the point at 13:07 of the second period, and with Fitzgerald still in the penalty box at the start of the third period, Dan Gasperlin tied it at 1:05 by lifting up a quick rebound while standing in front of Jury.

Less than three minutes later it was 3-2 East Grand Forks as Dave Jerome skated by a defenseman on the right side and beat Jury cleanly to the far side.

"You have to be pleased with the win, but I don't think it was our best game because we didn't play 45 minutes of hockey," mentioned Palmiscno. "But if we can play the rest of the year like we did in the second and third period tonight we'll be all right."

Grand, who praised the play of Jury who had several outstanding saves among his 33 stops, said he was disappointed in the Prowlers' power play and their penchant for penalties. "We didn't advance the puck at the right time, and consequently we had problems on the power play," he expained, adding, "It's difficult to lose a game like this when you give up three power play goals. We've got to stay out of the penalty box."

Thief River Falls will be at Greenway-Coleraine Saturday to face the Raiders, who dropped a 3-2 Iron Range Conference showdown with Grand Rapids last night.

John Helley of Plummer . . .

Northmen Have A New Coach

John Helley of Plummer has been named as the new Northland community college head football coach, succeeding Irv Smith, who resigned at the end of the 1979 season.

Northland president Alex Easton announced the appointment of Helley as the school's third head coach in the four-year-old history of the program.

Helley, who retired in 1978 as a lieutenant commander in the medical service corps after 24 years of Navy service, returned to the Plummer community where he graduated from high school in 1955. The 42-year-old Helley, who is a substitute teacher at Plummer and the Cardinals' assistant basketball coach, served as an assistant under Smith last fall.

He had previous coaching experience in the Navy with football, basketball and softball teams, and also served as recreation officer aboard the U.S.S. Kittyhawk.

Helley, who held part-time teaching positions at Los Angeles community college in 1976 and Chapman college in Orange, Calif. in 1977, will not be on the Northland staff. He is, in fact, still a student — in the carpentry program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school.

Previous schooling include a B.S. degree from Roosevelt University in Chicago, a Masters degree from the University of San Diego, additional school while in the Navy and a stint at Bemidji State University in 1978.

"We're happy to be able to have a person of his caliber in the area who is interested in our program," said Easton when he announced the appointment of Helley as head coach this week. "We're pleased with the appointment because we think he's the kind of person who will do a very fine job for us."

Helley, who has been associated with athletics most of his life, is looking forward to the opportunity to coach the Northmen who have a 7-26 record in four years of interscholastic football under the two-year coaching reigns of Chet Engelman and Smith.

"I'm excited. I'm looking forward to the challenge," offered Helley who said he took the position because, "I just really like working with the athletes."

Helley takes over a football program that received a great deal of publicity this fall for its recruiting that brought in a bundle of Miami-area players, many of whom left shortly after the football season ended.

"It's a high visability, though. My goal is to start off with a clean slate. There's been a lot of controversy lately, but I just want to start with a new record and run a good program."

First order of business for Helley will be recruiting. "I plan to meet shortly with the ball players in this year's team who will be back next fall," he said. "Then I plan to recruit all over northwestern Minnesota. I have no plans to recruit out of state."

The new Northland coach would like to have a 44-man squad on hand at the start of practice next August. "For a real manageable, I think 44 would be just right — four 11-man squads," explained Helley who will try to use the newly adopted MJCAA eligibility rules for AVTI students to his advantage in recruiting.

A coaching staff to assist Helley will be named later.

"The coaching staff and what kind of players we can recruit will determine what kind of football we'll play," mentioned Helley. "You've got to be flexible and adapt to what you have."

Lincoln Girls Challenge Spuds, But Lose 52-45

Moorhead turned back the challenge of upset-minded Thief River Falls Tuesday to come away a 52-45 winner in a girls high school basketball game hosted by the Spuds.

It was a strong showing by the Prowlers whose record slipped to 2-3 in their first start after a lengthy holiday break. Thief River Falls will host McIntosh-Winger Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

"I wasn't unhappy at all," was the way Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg described last night's game. "We're improving. Give us a little more time and we'll be able to play with anybody."

The two teams played to an 8-8 first quarter draw before the Spuds pulled away from the foul-plagued Prowlers 23-14 at halftime. Playing Moorhead on even terms for most of the first half, Thief River Falls lost ground when forward Tara Nicholson and guard Ann Goodrich, who finished with 12 points apiece, were taken out of the game after accumulating three second quarter fouls.

Still, Thief River Falls battled back to within one point midway through the third quarter when Moorhead solved the Prowlers' zone defense with passes into the middle to Lori Larson who hit three consecutive short turn-around jump shots to expand the lead to seven points — the spread at the end of the third quarter, 39-32.

"We played a pretty good ball game," praised Sjoberg.

Becky Marx of Moorhead took game-high scoring honors with 15 points. Roberta Engel led the Prowlers with 14.

Statistics were pretty even. Moorhead was 23-for-60 for 38 per cent from the field and 7-for-20 at the free throw line. Thief River Falls was 18-for-50 from the floor for 36 per cent and 9-for-14 at the line. The Spuds held a slight 33-31 rebound edge.

Moorhead took both preliminary games, winning the junior varsity contest 53-26 and running away with the freshman game 63-20. Lincoln junior varsity is 3-2 for the year and the freshmen at 1-3. They'll both be in action against McIntosh-Winger Saturday, with the freshmen playing at 5:45 at Franklin middle school and the junior varsity playing at the same time at Lincoln.

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL hockey coach Wendell Grand gave his team instructions Tuesday during a three-minute rest period between the end of regulation time and the start of a scheduled eight-minute sudden-death overtime period against East Grand Forks in the sports arena. Whatever the instructions, they didn't work. The Green Wave scored just 44 seconds into the extra period to come out a 4-3 winner over the Prowlers in the match-up of top Section 8 contenders.

Nordics Defeat Skippers 55-42

A new angle for Marshall County Central — a zone defense — paid dividends Tuesday as the Nordics knocked off rival Middle River 65-42 in a key North Border Conference high school basketball game played at Newfolden.

The Nordics, who rarely leave their full-court pressure defense, enjoyed success with the use of the zone that allowed them to bounce back from a 61-35 Saturday afternoon drubbing at Lake of the Woods and take over second place behind the Bears and ahead of the Skippers in the North Border Conference standings.

"We shut off their inside game," said winning coach Ron Ueland when describing the use of the zone. "This was a big game for us, bigger than the Baudette game in the overall scheme of things — looking at things realistically and trying to get in the best possible position for the tournaments."

Closing down the inside game, Marshall County Central shut off the Skippers' Jon Nuemann, who was held to four points. He entered the game with a 14-point average. Scott McKeever hit that figure for the Skippers, but it wasn't enough as they lost for only the second time in ten starts.

Marshall County Central enjoyed an edge in shooting, hitting 23 of 44 shots for 52 per cent. Middle River made 18 of 42 shots for 43 per cent.

"It was a well-played basketball game," mentioned Ueland. "Basically the difference was in the shooting percentage."

In other areas, the Nordics were 9-for-18 at the line where the Skippers were 6-for-11 and Marshall County Central held a 25-21 rebound edge as Scott Peters grabbed eight rebounds to go along with his 10 points. Dan Engen led the Nordics with 12 points.

Marshall County Central, now 6-3, led at every quarter stop, 14-8, 26-19 and 42-31.

Friday games will find Marshall County Central at Badger and Middle River at Grygla.

Grygla 51

In a scoring duel, Grygla's Randy Larson edged Badger's Bob Dostal 30-28 Tuesday, but on the scoreboard, Dostal's Rockets defeated Larson's Eagles 62-51 in a North Border Conference game played at Grygla.

"Those two really hustled their butts off," said Grygla coach Jerry Maki of the Larson-Dostal performance. "Now if I could just get a few points out of my guards we'd be all right."

Badger led 16-11 at the end of the first quarter, and took a 35-27 lead into intermission. Grygla cut it to 38-35 as both offenses slowed down in the third quarter, but the Rockets pulled away at the end.

"If my guard would have been scoring, we could have sucked them out of their zone," pointed out Maki. "But when they didn't score, they (Badger) was able to sit back."

Grygla, 1-9 for the year, shot 37 per cent from the floor, hitting 23 of 62 shots. The Eagles were just 5-for-13 at the free throw line where Badger was 12-for-27.

A North Border Conference assignment awaits Grygla Friday at Middle River.

Basketball JV Wins By 76-32 Over Climax

Lincoln high school junior varsity high school basketball team pushed its record above .500 at 4-3 Tuesday with a one-sided 76-32 win at Climax.

The hosts, who trailed 34-23 at halftime after ending the first quarter down 13-11, scored just nine second half points. Thief River Falls led 57-28 at the end of the third quarter.

Dave Kays scored 12 points for the winners, with Rick Trontvet and Mark Lundin scoring 10 points apiece.

Lake Region Drills Northland 102-45

A strong Lake Region ball club routed Northland 102-45 Tuesday in a women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls.

The Royals led 52-24 at halftime.

"They are very good," confirmed Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "Even if we played our best game and they played their worst, I don't know if we could beat them."

The Royals, who scored a bundle of points on fast breaks thanks to a 63-44 edge on the boards, had six double figure scorers, led by Paulette Huber's 21 points. No Northland scorer reached double figures.

Lake Region shot at a 46 per cent, 43-for-93 clip while Northland shot 25 per cent on a 19-for-76 showing. From the line, Lake Region was 16-for-27 and Northland was 7-for-14. The Northwomen topped the turnover charts 25-18.

The Northwomen, winless in six starts, begin conference play this weekend with a weekend trip to the Iron Range to play Mesabi at Virginia Friday at 6 p.m. and Vermilion at Ely Saturday at 12 noon. Lake Region plays the University of North Dakota varsity tonight (Wednesday).

Prowlers Beat Vikings 68-47

Five Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures and the Prowlers shot 64 per cent from the field Tuesday in a 68-47 high school basketball win at Climax.

The win snapped a three-game losing streak for the Prowlers who will return to Northwest Athletic Conference play Friday when they host East Grand Forks, a 59-49 loser at the hands of Crookston last night.

"We're pleased," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters after the win. "It was a real team effort. We had very balanced scoring, and that's what we're looking for."

The game, nearly an hour late getting started because of the failure of scheduled officials to show up for the contest, was deadlocked 10-10 at the end of the first quarter. But Thief River Falls ran up a 31-23 halftime lead and pulled away 48-35 in the third quarter.

Center Todd Young, who missed last Friday's game, a 53-49 loss to Mahnomen, because of bronchitis, returned to the Prowlers' line-up with a 15-point performance against the Vikings. Guard Kyle Hams, who handed out nine assists, added 14 points, Greg Miller had 13, Jim Nyland 10 and Mark Schmitke 10. Mark Landgaard led Climax with 13 points.

Thief River Falls' strong shooting performance found the Prowlers hitting 30 of 47 field goal attempts and eight of 12 free throws. Climax was 20-for-50 from the field for 40 per cent and 7-for-14 at the line.

The Prowlers finished with a 20-19 rebound advantage, but also topped the turnover figures 22-16 — their only negative aspect of the game, according to Peters.

"We've got to cut down our turnovers," said Peters. "Other than the turnovers, we're playing pretty good ball right now."

It'll be a doubleheader weekend for the Prowlers who will be at Roseau Saturday night for an 8 p.m. game. The Prowlers opened the season with a 67-49 win over the Rams.

DNR Reports Increase In Deer Hunters

There were approximately 16,000 more firearms deer hunters in the Minnesota woods this fall than in 1978, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

A preliminary count of firearms deer license sales reveals that 325,000 were purchased in 1979. This figure is subject to change when all duplicates and voided licenses can be accounted for.

Firearms deer license sales in 1978 totaled 309,686.

Bow and arrow license sales for the 1979 season have a preliminary total of 36,000 compared to 33,022 the previous year.

These totals include non-resident licenses.

Department announced earlier that approximately 54,000 deer were taken by firearms hunters this fall. This means that roughly 17 per cent of all firearms hunters succeeded in bagging a deer this past season.

Boosters Will Meet Thursday

Bob Lundbohm, coach of the Northland community college hockey team, will be the guest speaker Thursday at the weekly 12 noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Northland Opens MJCAA Schedule . . .

Chris Kneen Adds 6-7 Height To Northmen

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman received a late-arriving Christmas present Monday with 6-7, 210-pound Chris Kneen reported for basketball practice with the Northmen.

Kneen, a four-year starter at Mariner high school in White Bear Lake, has been a standout performer the past two years with the Northland football team. And Engelman has been trying to coax him into the basketball court since his arrival in Thief River Falls.

Engelman's hallway recruiting was unsuccessful, though, until Kneen's recent change of heart.

"We hope Chris will be a valuable addition to us," said Engelman. "We expect he will definitely help us on the boards and on defense. He will score some, but scoring isn't his strong suit."

Kneen will get his college basketball baptism under fire this weekend when the Northmen open their 1979-80 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) schedule with an Iron Range road trip that will have them playing Mesabi at Virginia Friday at 8 p.m. and Vermilion at Ely Saturday afternoon at 2.

The games against the two Northeast Division favorites count in Northland's Northwest Division standings.

"It's going to be two toughies," warns Engelman. "Vermilion and Mesabi would have to be the favorites over there again. We must win one of them; that's all there is to it. We'd like to win two, and if we put a couple of things together we could. But I don't think we've every done it (a sweep on the Iron Range) before."

"We'll definiately take a look at Chris this weekend," said Engelman who doesn't plan to change his set starting line-up that includes freshman Dave Spilde and sophomore Vince Parker at the guards, freshman Tony Smith and sophomore Mike Carriere at the forwards and sophomore Terry Harris at Center. Kneen will join Craig Pietruszewski, Dave Furbish, Chris Kays and Darryl Robinson as top reserves.

Northland is 1-8 for the year, but that record includes six forfeits for the use of an ineligible player, along with the last-second 76-75 loss to Bottineau in the finals of Northland's Arctic invitational tournament back on Dec. 22 — the latest outing for the Northmen.

EGF Is 3-1 JV Winner

Thief River Falls' six-game unbeaten string in junior varsity high school hockey came to an end Tuesday in a 3-1 defeat at the hands of East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, jumping in front with a first period goal, went up 2-0 in the second period, but that goal was answered quickly as Jeff Imgrund scored just 16 seconds later in an assist from Dean Dokkin for a 2-1 game.

The well-played contest remained a one-goal game until the winner added a clinching goal in the final minute of play.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

Thief River Falls Squirt A hockey team opened the new year with a tournament title at Fergus Falls.

In opening round play, Thief River Falls defeated St. Paul Woodbury 3-1, followed by a 4-0 semifinal victory over St. Paul Westside. In the championship game Sunday, it was Thief River Falls beating host Fergus Falls 8-5.

Then because of the weekend blizzard, the Thief River Falls team was forced to stay an extra night. Making the best of the situation, Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls got together to play two more games, coming up with a split as Fergus Falls won the first one 7-6 and Thief River Falls took the second contest 7-1.

Earlier in the week the Squirt A team lost to Warroad 3-1, bringing their record to 7-4.

In other action involving Thief River Falls teams, the Squirt B team finished a 2-0-1 week with a 6-2 win at Roseau, a 4-4 tie at East Grand Forks and a 4-2 win over Bagley.

Bantam A team improved its record to 11-3 with a 9-0 shutout over Warroad.

Pee-Wee A team lost four times during the week, beginning with a 10-4 Wednesday setback at Warroad, followed the next night by a 5-3 defeat here at the hands of Roseau. They completed the week with a tournament outing at Bemidji.

International Falls won the Bemidji VFW Pee-Wee tournament played this past weekend. The champions stopped the Assiniboine Park Rangers 7-2 in the Sunday title game after wins Saturday over Thief River Falls 17-2 and the Duluth Stewarts 3-2.

Duluth took third place with a 4-3 win over Bemidji while a fifth place game went to Fergus Falls, a 17-1 winner over Coleraine.

In Saturday's first round, Bemidji beat Coleraine 13-2, Assiniboine Park Rangers downed defending champion Virginia 6-1, Duluth shaded Fergus Falls 3-2 and International Falls handled Thief River Falls 17-2.

In the semifinals, the Rangers sidelined Bemidji 6-3 and International Falls got by Duluth 3-2.

Consolation play Saturday found Coleraine knocking off Virginia 4-2 and Fergus Falls beating Thief River Falls 4-1.

Schedule

East Grand Forks will form the opposition for three Thief River Falls home games Saturday. In the old arena, the Squirt B game starts at 1 p.m. and the Pee-Wee A game is a 2:30 affair. In the sports arena, the Bantam B teams meet at 4 p.m.

Thief River Falls Bantam A team, at Grafton for a 10:30 a.m. game Saturday, will be back in town Sunday to face Fargo South at 3:15 p.m. in the sports arena.

Sunday's road schedule will find the Squirt B team at Hallock at 1 p.m., Pee-Wee A team at Moorhead at 1 and the Bantam B team at Hallock at 2:30.

HE HAD THE puck on his stick, but this East Grand Forks skater had a tough time getting off a shot after being tied up by Thief River Falls' Dave Geatz during Tuesday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Green Wave got by the Prowlers 4-3 in sudden-death overtime.

Goodridge Girls Rally To Edge Eagles 51-49

Goodridge, down 20-4 at the end of the first quarter and trailing by 17 in the third quarter, came back to stun undefeated Grygla 51-49 Monday in girls high school basketball.

It was the first loss in seven starts for the host Eagles, while Goodridge ran its current winning streak to five games after absorbing a season-opening loss.

"Goodridge played a good game," praised Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "We played in the first half, but we didn't play a very good second half. We just turned the ball over too many times in the second half. They (Goodridge) switched to a man-to-man and it forced us into a lot of turnovers."

Poor second half shooting didn't help matters any for Grygla, either, as the Eagles hit just four of 28 field goal attempts after intermission.

"The ball wouldn't go in for us," noted Radeunz. "We had good shots, but we missed."

A pressing defense produced that first quarter bulge for the Eagles who appeared on their way to an easy win over the rival Huskies. Without the press things evened out, but Grygla still maintained a 31-22 spread at halftime and sat on a 43-32 cushion as the third quarter ended.

That's when Goodridge began dominating things, going ahead 50-49 as the final minute appeared on the clock.

Grygla came up with a couple of steals at the end, but ended up turning the ball over themselves. The Huskies' Angie Berndt finally decided the issue by making a free throw with six seconds left.

"I've learned two things the last two years," mentioned Radeunz. "Last year we had a lead late in the game against Roseau and tried to stall. We lost. This time we had a 16-point lead in the first quarter and I took the press off. I won't make those mistakes again," he promised.

Mary Jo Kiesow scored a game-high 20 points for the Huskies and teammate Peggy Poppenhagen collected 16. Jill Saurdiff scored 17 points for the Eagles.

Poor shooting also hurt Grygla at the free throw line where the Eagles were just 15-for-25. The Huskies were 17-for-28 at the line. From the field, Grygla was 17-for-52 for 33 per cent and Goodridge was 17-for-58 for 29 per cent.

Grygla will try to regain its winning touch Thursday at home against Roseau. "We won't do anything different," said Radeunz. "We just have to play better."

Goodridge entertains East Grand Forks Sacred Heart that same night.

Idle since Dec. 17, Marshall County Central didn't let the long lay-off affects its play Monday as the Nordics, remained unbeaten with a 58-47 win over Warroad at Newfolden.

"It was a long lay-off," noted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "but I was really pleased with the way we played."

A three-pronged Marshall County Central attack featured Rosalyn Knutson with 17 points, Lisa Busch with 15 and Sue Olson with 16. Janet Marvin led Warroad with 19 points.

Marshall County Central took a 17-12 first quarter edge and expanded it into a 30-19 halftime cushion. It was 44-28 after three quarters.

Neither team was hesitant about shooting as they put up 162 shots. The Nordics were 26-for-77 from the field for 33 per cent while Warroad was 16-for-85 for 18 per cent. From the free throw line, Marshall County Central was 6-for-15 and Warroad was 15-for-28.

The 6-0 Nordics will be at Middle River Thursday and at Plummer Monday.

Lakers Have Three-Game Win Streak

Warroad Lakers senior amateur hockey team has had trouble scoring and winning with consistency this season, reports Cal Marvin of the Lakers. "But maybe all that has changed for player coach, Scott Marvin, and his teammates," says Marvin.

Warroad received outstanding goaltending from Peter Waselovich in recent games. In the last game of 1979 he held the number two small-college team in the midwest to just one goal as the Lakers scored a 4-1 victory over Bob Peters's fine-skating Bemidji State University team.

Warroad then followed the Bemidji victory with two wins on the road in the CASH League play — a 7-2 win at Steinbach and a come-from-behind victory at East Kildonan, where Lakers trailed 3-1 going into the third period and then scored four straight goals to win it 5-3.

The task doesn't get any easier this weekend as Warroad plays three games — vs Winnipeg University in the Gardens Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Winnipeg on Saturday, and vs Steinbach on Sunday at 2 p.m. In a crucial Cash league game Steinbach is one of the teams Lakers have to defeat to win a playoff spot. The Huskies are in a must situation for Sunday's game — facing three opponents all on the road — Thursday at St. Boniface, Sunday at Warroad and Wednesday at East Kildonan.

Issue $10,000 Fines Against FWS Violators

Following a lengthy investigation by special agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) 13 defendants received over $10,000 in total fines for violations involving the illegal possession and sale of protected birds.

The Gold Anvil jewelry store, Franklin, Mich. came under investigation for the illegal buying and selling of federally protected birds. On May 7, 1979, the Gold Anvil became the focal point for the seizure of approximately 250 birds from several locations.

As a result of the Gold Anvil case, special agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the U.S. Customs Service launched an investigation into the smuggling of birds and the theft of a large number of birds from the University of Michigan's museum of natural history at Ann Arbor.

Cross Country Ski Clinic Sat.

A reminder is given that Northland community college, in cooperation with the regional environmental education council, will sponsor a cross country ski clinic on the Northland community college campus at no charge this Saturday at 10 a.m. Registration of participants will be in the student commons.

Tom And Tony Brosseau Like Alaskan Life

This was the boys' first year at trapping, since Tony's first winter in Alaska was spent just a short distance from Eagle. He plans to make a cap out of the martens that have been damaged, which will not be the first article of clothing Tony has made for himself. He has a pair of pants made out of moose hide, a beaver skin cap, and boots made out of moose hide and horse hide which he bought at an auction.

It does not snow heavy in Alaska, according to Tony, especially since the snow is so dry and powdery that it settles soon after it falls. Last year eight feet of snow fell but that was an exception, Tony said. Average snowfall is usually three or four feet.

For traveling in Alaska during the winter on trap lines or on hunting trips the voyageurs dress in big parkas, heavy wool pants and mukluks.

"You dress like you would for 40-degree below weather here," Tony said. "Once it gets to be that much below zero, all the cold feels the same."

Winters there are longer and colder than here, with the coldest temperature Tony has witnessed being 65 degrees below zero. The coldest it has been, according to Tony, is 70 degrees below zero. Winter begins in October and usually lasts until May. The sun is lost for six weeks during the winter — the time when it travels above the Arctic circle. It actually never comes up in the winter in Alaska, but the eight-hours of daylight that do exist appear as cloudy days, Tony said. Then, in the spring and fall, there are 12 hours of daylight, with the sun not setting at all on June 21 of each year. Temperatures sometimes rise to 86 degrees on an extremely hot day, and lower to 40 degrees at night.

But, with no contrast between light and dark periods during the day, how does one know when to perform the routine activities each day? Easy, according to Tony.

"We know when it's night and day and that's good enough," he said. "There's sort of a red glow at noon from the sun which almost comes up over the mountains but never makes it. That helps us out a little. When you wake up and you're not tired anymore, you may as well get up; when you're hungry you eat; and when you're tired, it must be evening, so you go to bed. The sun is our only schedule to gear our activities around," he said.

The boys used to have a watch — until Tom's stopped, Tony said. But, it hasn't bothered them at all not doing duties by the hour like people usually do.

Tony explained one incident where his friend told him it was morning and that he should get up because it would be light in an hour. Tony went outside and looked up at the sky and couldn't tell what time of the day it was, but figured it was morning, so he got everyone else up before he realized it would not actually be morning for about five more hours.

Tony claims he spends every minute he can outdoors because he gets bored inside the cabin. For entertainment the boys sit by their tiny stove and read or Tony provides music with his banjo.

The boys live in two cabins which are 25 miles apart, and in a tent between the two cabins for resting when hunting or trapping. They have had to sleep in the tent in below freezing temperatures but have kept warm with a small stove, Tony said. The first year Tony was there, he camped out all summer, then moved into a cabin in August. Tony and a friend constructed one of the cabins which is situated near the Yukon river on the boys' trapline, while two of the boys' friends — Randy and "Little John" — built the other one.

"They're both pretty small," Tony said. "One of them is 8x10 and just has a big bed and a stove in it. The other one is a little bigger (9x12) and has a bed, stove, table and a bench that Randy found in a cabin that was used in the 1940s."

The boys burn kerosene in their cabins for light and they get their water out of the Kandik river for drinking and washing. Water from the Yukon river is too muddy and cold to use.

And what about washing clothes?

"Well, our clothes don't get very dirty," Tom said, laughing.

"And we don't have to do dishes very often either," Tony added. "We either eat right out of the frying pan, or we let the dogs lick them clean. I've never gotten sick from it yet, so it doesn't bother me."

No special permission is needed to place a cabin on a section of land — as long as no one else has one there, Tony said. But a person has to reside in an area for at least a year before he can obtain a resident hunting license to hunt game.

The small game found in Alaska is similar to the animals that are found here, Tony said. There are mink, marten, beaver and muskrat. But the big game is somewhat different with many black bear, grizzly bear, dall sheep, which are large white wild sheep similar in size to the bighorns of mountainous western North America, and a few moose, occupying the land with the settlers.

"Everyone hunts up there, but there isn't nearly the game there as there is here," Tony said. "There are hardly any moose. I've only seen three so far, and Tom has only see one since he's been there. The game isn't as concentrated as it is here."

However, the hunting results don't seem to be too terribly disappointing. Tom's first moose had a 58-inch rack on it, he said.

TRAPPING IS A COMMON duty for Tony (left) and Tom Brosseau who have trapped at least 50 marten and a few mink this year while living in Alaska. The boys' beaver skin caps, Tony's moose hide pants and moose and horse hide boots keep them warm during the winter when temperatures often fall to 65 degrees below zero.

The experiences in Alaska and the encounters with various animals could easily fill up an entire newspaper, Tony said, so his stories were kept to a minimum. His most terrifying experience was when he and Monte were coming home from work with the International Bounty commission when Monte spotted a brown-blond object near their tent which had been torn down. Their first thought was that it must be a grizzly, Tony said, because it seemed so aggressive.

Since they had no guns with them, they ran to the nearest friends' house half a mile away to get guns and upon returning, discovered the animal was only a 150 pound cinnamon black bear.

"We chased it away because we didn't want to eat it since we had just shot one a month earlier. Well... really we shot at it and missed," Tony confessed later. "But he came back later that night and we shot him and ate him."

The bear they had shot earlier was a 200 pound black bear, Tony said. The boys were sleeping one morning last spring when they heard something "big" outside so they gathered their rifles and shot him.

"It's just like eating beef," Tony stated.

This year the hunters are on a straight meat diet, Tony said, chowing-down on moose and bear.

"We eat about 10 pounds of meat a day between all of us," he said. "I suppose there is a lot of cholesterol in all that meat and fat. I don't know if it's hurting us or not. As long as we feel okay that's what matters."

"You get cravings for other foods at first, but they go away," the boys agreed. "We've been eating a lot of different foods since we've been home that taste pretty good."

When Tony first arrived in Alaska, his diet consisted of beans, rice, powdered milk and various dried foods. They also canned their own salmon last year and ate that.

"We caught the fish last year as sport fishermen with rods and reels," Tony said. "You can net them in the Yukon river if you want to. Salmon are good to eat when you have them once in awhile, but after awhile if you eat them enough you get sick of them."

When the question was posed of how the boys learned to prepare and cook the foods they ate, Tony simply replied, "I just read the directions on the pressure cooker. I don't know much about cooking."

"We fry everything we eat," Tom said. "And if the meat's too tough, we boil it."

Limitations put on the number of bear shot is three a year for black bear; while you can shoot one "big 'ole grizzly bear every four years," Tony said. They haven't been lucky enough to get one yet.

"One of the things I miss the most is hunting with my friends," Tony said. "It's entirely different hunting here than it is there. Hunting here is more of a sport; hunting in Alaska is a job."

The boys' main means of transportation is their feet, they said. But they are working on getting two dogs so they can use sleighs for traveling. In the summer they often travel by canoe. Eagle is 100 miles by water, Tony said, and a canoe trip taken there one time lasted five days. They camped and ate along the shore of the Kandik and Yukon rivers.

But they are 50 miles from Eagle by foot, which means 50 miles from the nearest telephone or newspaper, or any type of communication with anyone back home. The high school paper is the only paper in Eagle. Fairbanks has a regular newspaper but that is 400 miles by road from Eagle or 200 miles by air, resulting in almost a two-hour flight. So far this year, Tony wrote only one letter home, he said. And when he arrived in the larger cities on his trip home, he was surprised at the news he heard, especially the situation in Iran.

"It makes a guy wonder what's going on," he stated. "I've obtained a more pessimistic outlook on the world since I've been living in Alaska. I don't know how to explain it, but to me, it seems strange to have everyone working at jobs that don't relate to the earth."

The nearest doctor is in Fairbanks. Last winter Tony hurt his knee while skiing, and would have gone to the doctor if he would have been closer. Another time, Tom and a friend ate moose ribs that left them sick for four days.

What would you do if you got really sick and needed the care of a doctor?

"I reckon we could die," Tom said, who admitted often being afraid of death out in the wilderness. "If you got really sick you wouldn't have a chance out there."

But there is a positive side to the issue too, both boys admitted. There are no viruses because there are no people, and since they have been back home, both Tom and Tony have been ill with colds — something they have never experienced while living in Alaska.

"And you never have to worry about getting lost and freezing to death when you're out walking because you just follow the rivers," Tony said.

When Tony first arrived in Eagle a year and a half ago, he said he felt unwelcome in Eagle. "In a small town, there's gonna be some that don't like newcomers," he said. "I didn't feel welcome there at all."

But most of the people are quite easy to get along with. The people there are very individual — probably more so than anywhere else in the world, he said. They are people who believe in the simple life.

Tony has seen a lot of people come and go, he said. Most of them end up leaving at the end of the summer or they live in towns.

"You've got to settle for the simplicity of that type of life," Tony said. "I guess most people aren't as simple minded as me!" he joked.

Tony stated that the length of a trip to get home from Alaska depends on "how many times your car breaks down," but on the average, with no stops, the trip would take just a few days.

"I don't think anyone would want to make the trip without stopping, though. There's too much to see. Then you have about a 1,000 mile stretch on the Alaskan highway that slows you down some. We made the trip the first time in a few weeks and we still missed a lot."

Tony's final comments during the interview came from his option to comment on the topic of death in the wild, and of how so many people think it inhuman to trap and hunt animals.

"I don't think people realize that animals are being torn apart all over in the wild. Trapping is a harvestable resource that is not anymore inhuman than slaughter houses. I believe that critters were put here for man's use and he should use them."

Even though both boys believe that Alaska is a lean state and that it is very difficult to make a living out there, they have both always [illegible]

"I like the mountains and wanted to live on the Yukon river ever since I read Jack London's, "Call of the Wild" in eighth grade. Even though I don't plan for the future, Alaska is a good place to get away, and I plan on staying there," Tony said.

And how long do you plan on staying in Minnesota?

"About a month. It depends upon things in Alaska — if the caribou are migrating there, for one thing. No one's been there long enough to know if they'll be there. Some years they come through and some years they don't. You just have to take a chance. I haven't seen any tracks yet."

And for Tom, well, he'd like to stay here "until most of the winter goes by."

Tony and Tom's parents do not especially enjoy seeing two of their six children so far away from home.

"We worry about them," they said. "There is quite a gap between letters so we don't hear from them very often. I guess we kept hoping they'd change their minds when we first heard the news. But we know we have to let them grow and we have to trust their judgment."

The boys understand their parents' feelings, but continue to yearn for their freedom and adventurous life in doing what they believe is best.

Heavy Fines Are Delt On Deer Charges

Three Chisago City men received heavy fines and suspended jail terms when they appeared in court at Center City Dec. 20 to face various charges for illegal deer hunting.

All three pled guilty to the charges after being arrested earlier by state conservation officers.

Charged with deer shining, Scott Lendt, 24, was fined $750 and received a 90 day jail term that was stayed by the court for two years on condition of no further violations.

Roy Lendt, 51, was charged with transporting an illegally taken deer and received a fine of $750 and a 90 day stayed jail term. He also pled guilty to illegal possession of deer and was given a 30 day stayed jail sentence and a fine of $100 on that charge.

Mark D. Miller, 29, received a $750 fine and a 90 day stayed term for deer shining plus a $100 fine and a 20 day stayed term for taking a deer in closed season.

Eagle River Races Slated January 18-20

Despite bad weather throughout the U.S. the high banked oval at Eagle River is in perfect condition for the 17th annual World's Championship snowmobile derby January 18-20. Workers removed the snow several weeks ago, and the track is prepared with water added to the sawdust, creating an 18-inch frozen base.

When the races open this year Bombardier will attempt to unseat last year's champion, Bob Elsner of Team Arctic with two highly regarded drivers. Allen Decker from Marshfield, Wis. will be returning after a third place finish last year. Jacques Villeneuve, brother of famed Grand Prix driver, Gilles, will be competing on a Ski-Doo this year.

After an impressive start at Grand Forks, N.D. the racing circuit has hit bad weather, but the drivers have their sights set on the World Championship at Eagle River.

A crowd of over 25,000 is expected for the 17th annual running of the racing classic at Eagle River. Information bureau directors in the area have reported reservations for the derby already ahead of the past two years with most places of accommodation within 15 miles of Eagle River already filled.

Registration chairman Bud Rismon, also confirmed that driver interest appeared higher than usual, possibly because a number of other races in the midwest were canceled earlier this winter because of poor weather conditions.

Last year over 300 drivers competed in the World's Championship derby, many of them entered in several events, providing three full days of racing.

About 6,700 cases of poisonous snake bites are treated annually by physicians in the United States, reports the National Wildlife Federation. Of these, fewer than 20 are fatal. Rattlesnakes are responsible for most of the bites and for nearly 90 per cent of the fatalities.

Notice of Informal Probate of Will and Appointment of Personal Representative and Notice to Creditors
STATE OF MINNESOTA
COUNTY OF PENNINGTON
PROBATE COURT
COUNTY COURT
PROBATE DIVISION

In Re: Estate of Albert W. Johnson, Deceased
TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS

Notice by publication is hereby given, that an application for informal probate of the last Will of the above named decedent, dated May 16, 1974, has been filed with the Registrar herein, and the application has been granted in formally probating such Will. Any objections may be filed in the above, and the same will be heard by the Court upon notice of hearing fixed for such purpose.

Notice by publication is hereby further given that informal appointment of Ardith Johnson, whose address is 1213 North Knight Avenue, Thief River Falls, Minn., as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent, has been made. Any heir, devisee or other interested person may be entitled to appointment as personal representative or may object to the appointment of the personal representative and the personal representative is impowered to fully administer the estate including, after 30 days from the date of issuance of his letters, the power to sell, encumber, lease or distribute real estate, unless objections thereto are filed with the court (pursuant to Section 524.3-607) and the court otherwise orders.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

DATED December 28, 1979
s Ardith Johnson, Clerk

Advertisement For Proposals
Plastic Refuse Bags

The City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will receive sealed proposals for PLASTIC REFUSE BAGS for the City Sanitation Department until 2:00 p.m., January 22, 1980, at the office of the City Clerk, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, at which time all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

Specifications covering items to be furnished are on file at the office of the City Clerk, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and may be obtained from that office upon request.

The bids shall be unconditional and accompanied by a certified check or bidders bond in the amount of at least five per cent (5%) of the amount of the proposal, payable without condition to the City Clerk of the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota. Said check shall be forfeited as liquidated damages in the event said bid shall be accepted and the bidder shall fail to enter into a contract and give performance bond as required by law.

The City Council reserves the right to hold all bids for a period of thirty (30) calendar days after the dates set for opening bids and to reject any or all bids, to waive any irregularities, and to award the contract as it deems to be in the best interest of the City.

Dated this 9th day of January, 1980.
City of Thief River Falls.

Gerald A. Wigness
City Clerk-Treasurer

NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Wennberg Welding, Inc. of 1002 Oakland Park Road, Thief River Falls has applied to the Zoning Office for a variance to the non-conforming use section of the Municipal Zoning Ordinance.

Granting the variance would allow the property owner to build an addition to the current structure in a R-1 Residential Zoning District.

A public hearing will be held on the above request on the 21st day of January 1980, at which time all persons desiring to be heard on this subject may be heard. Property owners within 350' of the request will be notified by mail and may direct any questions they have to the City Planning Office at 681-6780 or in writing City Planning, Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

The hearing will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

Dated this 8th day of January 1980.
s John F. Quinlivan
Zoning Administrator

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our most sincere thanks to our relatives and friends who were so thoughtful and kind to our beloved mother and grandmother, Mrs. Gunde Hamberg during her illness and stay at the hospital.

A special thanks to Dr. Peter Johnson and all the nursing staff on first floor for their wonderful loving care given her. Also Pastor Keith Prekker, Pastor Don Knutson and Pastor Henry Moyer for their daily visits.

Our thanks to all who sent cards, memorials given, flowers and the Salem LCW for serving lunch; Pastor Henry Moyer and Pastor Don Knutson for their words of comfort; Mr. Ivar Anderson and Mrs. Bruce Jensen, the soloists; Mrs. Casmer Troska, organist, for their beautiful songs and music; the honorary and active pallbearers and the Collins Funeral home for their kind services.

God bless you.

Public Notices

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our most sincere thanks to our relatives and friends who were so thoughtful and kind to our beloved mother and grandmother, Mrs. Gunda Hamberg during her illness and stay at the hospital.

A special thanks to Dr. Peter Johnson and all the nursing staff on first floor for their wonderful loving care given her. Also Pastor Keith Prekker, Pastor Don Knutson and Pastor Henry Moyer for their daily visits.

Our thanks to all who sent cards, memorials given, flowers and the Salem LCW for serving lunch; Pastor Henry Moyer and Pastor Don Knutson for their words of comfort; Mr. Ivar Anderson and Mrs. Bruce Jensen, the soloists; Mrs. Casmer Troska, organist, for their beautiful songs and music; the honorary and active pallbearers and the Collins Funeral home for their kind services.

God bless you.

The family of Gunda Hamberg 113p

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Robbin Jean Olson. She would have been 21 years old today, January 9. God bless her memory.

Sadly missed by parents, Robert, Shirley, Orrin, Susan, Ross, Bryan and Kristie Olson. 113p

Card of Thanks

The staff and residents of Oakland Park nursing home would like to express their sincere gratitude to everyone who took time out to make our Christmas rich and full. Although we have tried to personally acknowledge ever gift and visit, we know because of the hustle and bustle we've missed some.

Thank you from all of us. May you have a blessed New Year.

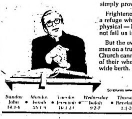
TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT

COPYRIGHT 1980 KEISTER ADVERTISING SERVICE P.O. BOX 8024 CHARLOTTESVILLE, VIRGINIA 22906



Here's a photograph taken from a kayak. You don't bring a ship this close to an iceberg! For underwater the tentacles of this cruel, cold monster may reach out a mile or more.

Life for some folks is a succession of narrow escapes. But these are adventures we can do without. They don't prove us bold sailors. They simply prove us poor navigators.

Frightened men sometimes turn to religion as a refuge when dangers — moral, spiritual and physical — loom too close for comfort. God does not fail us in crisis.

But the every-day function of faith is to pilot men on a true course through the sea of life. The Church cannot sweep away icebergs. It warns us of their whereabouts and helps us give them a wide berth.

Genetic Counseling Aids Family Plans

Making a decision about having a child can be difficult under the best of circumstances. Becoming a parent is always a big step.

But especially hard choices face the prospective parent with a history of inherited disease in the family. There may be a chance that the disease will be passed on to a child, and it may be impossible to properly weigh the risks involved without the help of a professional.

Providing such help is the job of a genetic counselor. Health authorities are currently emphasizing the importance of genetic counseling services, in connection with the United Nations' International Year of the Child (IYC) observance.

Much of the demand for counseling services centers on a few "relatively common" problems, according to Dr. Lee Schacht, of the state health department's human genetics unit. List includes cleft lip and palate, diabetes, hydrocephaly (an accumulation of fluid on the brain), and congenital heart defects. When a family member has one of these problems, the chances that a child will inherit it do increase, said Dr. Schacht, but the risk remains small if there is little or no other history of the problem in the family.

People may also seek genetic counseling for problems like muscular dystrophy or cystic fibrosis, which are always inherited, for chromosome abnormalities, which usually occur more or less at random, or for problems which have no genetic basis at all.

Genetics unit offers counseling services at its office in Minneapolis, and at genetic counseling field clinics throughout the state. Before the counseling process can begin, the unit must be provided with the most accurate possible diagnosis of the problem at hand. It's also important to take complete medical histories for the affected individual and the entire family, Dr. Schacht noted.

A precise diagnosis is important, said Dr. Schacht. Some genetic disease — muscular dystrophy, for example — can take several different forms, and the various forms of a disease may not be inherited in exactly the same way. Laboratory work is sometimes necessary to pinpoint a diagnosis, and the unit offers a variety of laboratory services.

Family medical history usually includes brothers and sisters, nieces and nephews, uncles, first cousins, grandparents and great-grandparents. Whenever possible, any reported occurrence of the problem under investigation is confirmed through medical records.

Using this information, the unit can review current medical knowledge and determine the odds that a given problem will be passed on to a child. A counseling session can then be arranged for the person who has the inherited health problem, or other affected members of the family, or both.

Unit makes every effort to ensure that its clients understand the information provided during a counseling session, said Dr. Schacht. While a single, brief session is usually adequate, the counseling process can take up to several hours and involve several members of the unit's staff. Actual counseling may also be done by the doctor who refers a patient to the unit. Besides explaining the genetic risks faced by the client, the counselor will also provide information about community resources like family planning clinics, mental health centers, or educational facilities.

Unit's services are available to anyone concerned about passing a health problem from one generation to the next, but you must be referred by a physician before the unit can help you, Dr. Schacht cautioned. Goal, he said, is to provide the client with "accurate, understandable information" about the risks associated with inherited disease, so they can make "responsible decisions about reproduction".

Household Hints

Working wife and mother? Adding to the family income is great, but at-home chores still must be done. Speed-up dishes-to-laundry routines by enlisting your family's help. Example: make laundering a family project by doing a load at dinnertime. Then while the coffee brews, everyone can fold their own clothes—and engage in a group gab-fest at the same time!

Encourage kids to re-use still-clean towels by putting up kiddie-height towel racks. Nagging your Little Leaguer about grimy baseball uniforms won't help; instead simply add a cup of Lestoil along with your regular detergent — and see tough laundry loads come out sparkling clean! Another workload lightener: Laundry bags or baskets right in the kids' rooms.

Weekly jobs like vacuuming, scrubbing floors and woodwork can become family affairs, too. Husbands are more apt to tackle tough cleaning tasks when you provide man-size equipment along with Lestoil, the heavy-duty cleaner that eases so many household chores. One husband teamed up with a 1/4 cup of Lestoil in a gallon of warm water adds up to gleamier kitchens, bathrooms, walls.

Send 25¢ for a handy new booklet, "How To Make Light Work of Laundry and Other Tough Jobs," to Lestoil Homemaker Service, 370 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Unusual Incident

Three Bemidji juveniles who broke into a fish house on Lake Bemidji only to find the owner inside and armed with a shotgun have filed a complaint against him at the Bemidji law enforcement center.

At the time a Bemidji Pioneer report of the incident was printed, it had not been determined what charges might result, but it seems strange that a person attempting to defend his property finds himself on the short end of a criminal complaint.

According to the report, Joe Tesar of Bemidji had his wife lock him in his fish house after having the house burglarized previously. At 3 a.m. the next morning three juveniles broke the lock on the house and entered, only to find Tesar inside armed with a shotgun. They reportedly ran to their truck and Tesar fired two shots, one of which blew out a tire.

Tesar then reported helped the youths change the tire and later the same day (December 28) they filed a complaint against him. They told law enforcement officials that they had heard a noise coming from Tesar's fish house and had broken in to see what it was. They reportedly gave no indication that they tried to communicate with Tesar before breaking in.

If the circumstances are correct as reported, it is perhaps questionable if Tesar should have fired his shotgun. It would appear, however, that the shots were intended to disable the escape vehicle rather than harm the culprits who had damaged his property. Indeed, it appeared that once he had determoned who the youths were, he helped them get their vehicle in condition to leave.

One must also question the likelihood of three juveniles driving around lake Bemidji at 3 o'clock in the morning listening for noises coming from fish houses. It would seem that their actions in breaking and entering speak louder than their alleged motivation.

Whether Tesar acted wisely or not may eventually be up to the courts to determine. From a practical standpoint, we sympathize with his efforts to protect his property against those who would damage and steal from it.

A Pertinent Point

In the preparation and selection of editorial comment for each issue of the Times, we are often well aware that what is printed will not meet with the approval of some of our readers. We do not apologize for this state of affairs, no do we back away from the risk.

One of this nation's most noted printers, Benjamin Franklin, summed the situation up quite eloquently in the following statement:

"Being frequently censured and condemned by different persons for printing things which they say ought not to be printed, I have sometimes thought it might be necessary to make a standing apology for myself and to publish it once a year, to be read on occasions of that nature.

"I request all who are angry with me on any account of printing things they don't like, calmly to consider these following particulars:

"That the opinions of men are almost as various as their faces; an observation general enough to become a common proverb. So many men, so many minds;

"That the business of printing has chiefly to do with men's opinions; most things that are printed tending to promote some or oppose others;

"That hence arises the peculiar unhappiness of that business which other callings are not in a way liable to;

"That it is unreasonable to imagine printers approve of everything they print;

"That if all printers were determined not to print anything until they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed."

Consumer Price Index Not Accurate View

Following editorial is from the Minneapolis Tribune:

You would think it odd if your livingroom thermometer measured temperatures as though your house had no storm windows. All winter long, both you and your furnace would be misled. The thermometer would say the house was too cold, and the thermostat would push the temperature too high.

Measuring inflation by the consumer price index poses similar problems. Like a thermometer that ignores storm windows, the avidly watched index overlooks somw important features of how consumers actually live. It exaggerates inflation's temperature, giving numbers which then are used to trigger wage and pension increases. One result if that the consumer price index may itself be a factor in pushing prices higher. Here is how it happens.

When the index for November is released this morning, it will tell the price that people would pay now for a mix of goods and services that was typical for consumers in 1972. Since the marketbasket as measured has not changed, the index cannot notice that people's buying habits have. Altered prices have led to altered shopping. Since 1972, for example, preferences have shifted from beef to eggs and poultry, and from energy products to clothing and shoes. Buying less of what costs more and more of what costs less is common sense — in economic jargon a "substitution effect." But the consumer price index assumes that it doesn't happen. The index measures inflation as though consumers now bought beef and gasoline exactly as they did seven years ago. It thus reports a higher cost of living then people are actually paying.

Besides ignoring substitution effects, the index has a technical quirk which particularly overemphasizes housing costs. New-home prices and mortgage rates count as consumption expenses, even though relatively few people either buy or refinance their homes in any given month. The statistical result drives the whole price index too rapidly up when mortgage rates are rising, and too rapidly down if mortgage rates should fall. In the past two years this feature alone has pushed the index two percentage points higher than it otherwise would be. It significantly distorts the perceived rate of inflation.

Such subleties do matter. They are quickly translated into higher Social Security and federal pensions and into pace-setting adjustments negotiated as part of major labor contracts. The increases are a boon to those who receive them, but they inevitably add momentum to the upward spiral of prices.

Further, by its high visibility and hold on public attention the consumer price index can itself become a deterrent to anti-inflation policies. High interest rates, for example, despite their importance in slowing inflation, are often argued against on grounds that they push the price index up. Similarly, oil-price rises intended to discourage inflationary imports are apt to be denounced for their effect on an index which excludes recognition of the very changes hoped for in oil consumption.

When policy debate is thus diverted by misleading statistics, it is time for a change. The House Budget Committee and the Council on Wage and Price Stability are working now on ways to gauge inflation more accurately. Both groups are looking at other price measures which avoid the weaknesses of the consumer price index, but have flaws of their own. Both groups face the problem of political resistance to any change and of possibly appearing to be tampering with the numbers. But when thermometers and thermostats don't work as they should, they need to be fixed. It is foolish to have an inflation index which may contribute to making inflation worse.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Friends," stated the town's leading citizen at his testimonial dinner, "I came to our city with one suit of clothes, one pair of worn shoes and all my earthly possessions wrapped up in a handkerchief. Now, as you know, I'm president of the largest bank, own 10 business buildings and head several thriving companies. Such is opportunity in our town and in America."

A standing ovation following his speech and at the conclusion of the dinner, an awed youngster sought out the honored guest, seeking advice.

"All you need to succeed is what I had," the millionaire advised. "A desire to succeed, a willingness to work hard and long, a firm belief in your fellow man, and a handkerchief containing about 130,000 in cash and $850,00 in securities."

Interesting Opinions:

"If we want to maintain the diversity of American agriculture, if we want to protect a place for family farming in the fabric of rural soceity, if we want to promote an agricultural system that will use our natural resources wisely, then we must commit ourselves now to developing policies that will be in our best long-run interests."

—Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland

Household Hints

By Samantha of Lestoil Homemakers Service

It's a do-it-yourself age, but did you realize how many household chores will almost do themselves if you'll give them the chance? Get into the habit of soaking things clean rather than scrubbing. Make it a practice to soak dishes, pots, silverware in sudsy water right after they're used—that way, food particles won't have time to harden. Rinse in hot water later, then set aside on a rack to dry.

Stove cleaning's easy when you soak burners, grill, drip pan, racks—everything that isn't plastic—in a solution of one cup Lestoil to one quart hot water. Lestoil's special grease-dissolving ingredients immediately go to work to cut through burned-on food and grease. After half an hour, just rinse and wipe clean. Same half-hour soak principle applies to venetian blinds: pop them into a tub filled with one to two cups of this heavy duty cleaner and enough warm water to cover. Rinse and drain right in the tub.

Give vinyl shower curtains a bright new lease on life by getting rid of stubborn grimy build-up from hard water, soap, bath oils and such that can dim their good looks. They'll whisk themselves clean if you simply add a cup of Lestoil to a tub one-third full of hot water—unhook curtains and drop them in. Swish through the water for a few minutes, then rinse thoroughly in clear water and rehang. Be sure to spread curtains out full-length so they'll dry without wrinkles.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — My friend received claims forms for collecting the GI life insurance based on her former husband's death. She was reluctant to apply because she thinks she lost the right to the insurance due to divorce. However, I persuaded her to fill out and return the forms. Was I correct in persuading her to do this?

A— Yes. Divorce does not affect an individual's right to insurance proceeds. Whoever is properly listed as beneficiary by the insured veteran will be paid the insurance proceeds.

Q — I have a service-connected disability and was discharged prior to World War II. Does service during this period qualify me for an automobile grant?

A — The Veterans Administration automobile grant is available to veterans who are entitled to VA compensation for loss or loss of use of a hand or foot, or who are blind, regardless of the period of service.

Q — I am being transferred to Australia because of my job. I have a home I purchased with a Veterans Administration guaranteed loan. If I sell my present home, may I get a loan to buy a home in Australia?

A — No. GI loans are granted only for property in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands or Guam

Spotlight on HEALTH

A major cause of visual disability, macular degeneration is still a mystery to most Americans. The area of the eye affected is the macula—a tiny part of the retina lining the back of the eye. In normal vision, light passes through the eye and strikes the retina, a sensitive network of nerves. In macular degeneration, the macula loses its ability to function efficiently, affecting central vision. In most cases the process is not sudden, but progresses gradually.

People affected by the disease find it difficult to see at long distances such as when driving, to do close work, to see faces clearly or distinguish different colors.

Anyone experiencing a loss of vision should have a thorough eye examination.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Self-Medication: The New Era

Self-medication is becoming increasingly popular in America.

Since the beginning of recorded history, mankind has been known to seek good health and the means to cure itself of illness: in ancient India thousands of years ago, the first known medical texts were written and the first physicians' oath introduced.

It is only in modern times, however, through improved education, mass communication and the advances of medical science, that people have gained the knowledge and ability to become effective participants in their own health and well-being.

This new emphasis on self-care, the trend toward self-reliance in matters of health, has become an increasingly important aspect of modern society and America's attitudes toward health maintenance.

This philosophy is also the basis of a day-long symposium on self-medication and its growing role in American health care to be held next spring.

The seminar—"Self Medication: "The New Era"—will explore the American trend toward greater self-reliance in matters of health, the increasing use of nonprescription medicines in self-care and the impact these practices have on various sectors of the U.S.

Sponsored by the Proprietary Association, representing manufacturers and distributors of nonprescription medicines for 99 years, the symposium will be held March 31, 1980, at Stouffer's National Center Hotel in Arlington, Virginia.

"We see this symposium as a unique opportunity for health professionals and others...to meet and analyze the changing role of self-medication in our health-care system," said James D. Cope, Association president.

The symposium will examine self-medication and self-care as they relate to the consumer, the economy, the government, the private health-delivery system, social trends and health professionals such as pharmacists and physicians.

Because space is limited, free registration is on a first-come, first served basis. For a free booklet about the symposium, write Ms. Jacqueline Maio, The Proprietary Assn., 1700 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Suite 700, Washington, D.C. 20006.

When you thump the bottle and catsup finally starts to flow, you've won a minor victory over friction.

Crude oil is now flowing faster through the Alaskan pipeline, thanks to a new chemical additive that lowers friction between the oil and the metal pipe. By making oil move faster, the additive—Conoco Drag Reduction Agent (CDR)—increases the capacity of pipelines.

CDR, developed by Conoco, Inc., reduces crude oil's resistance to flow by creating a temporary change in the oil's physical properties. It has no permanent effect on the chemical make-up of the oil.

Area Agencies On Aging Get $10 Million

Grants totaling nearly $10 million were approved by the Minnesota board on aging at its December meeting.

Most of the money went to 12 area agencies on aging (AAA) for planning, coordinating, funding and evaluating services for older Minnesotans.

Area agencies on aging plan to spend the largest share of their budgets 48 per cent) on congregate (group) meals for the elderly. In-the-home services for older persons will take the second-largest share of their budgets (12 per cent), while senior center, transportation, outreach, and information and referral (I & R) efforts will receive another 15 per cent. Approximately five per cent of AAA budgets will go for legal services for the elderly.

Area agencies on aging were awarded funds as follows to carry out their plans: Northwest regional development commission, Crookston, $169,457; Headwaters regional development commission, Bemidji, $245,402; Arrowhead regional development commission, Duluth $972,335; West Central regional development commission, Fergus Falls, $627,351; Region V regional development commission, Staples, $487,213; Region VIE regional development commission, Willmar, $331,768; Upper Minnesota Valley regional development commission, Appleton, $273,849; East Central regional development commission, Mora, $816,001; Southwest regional development commission, Slayton, $461,654; Region IX regional development commission, Mankato, $637,148; Southeastern regional development commission, Rochester, $1,041,892; Metropolitan council, St. Paul, $3,443,717.

Area agencies on aging submit work plans yearly to the Minnesota board on aging for approval. Plans list goals, objectives and priorities for developing services for older persons in each region.

A sample objective from each of the plans is listed below. Copies of entire plans are available from each AAA.

—Region I - Evaluate home delivered meals programs in the region and determine appropriate future home delivered meals strategies.

—Region II - Help senior organizations develop senior citizen centers.

—Region III - Hold two roundtable meetings at which professionals in the field of aging will hear expert guest lecturers and discuss aging programs, issues, and problems.

—Region IV - Review a regional study of ombudsman services and analyze the study's implications.

—Region V - Provide older persons with education and information about Medicare, Medicaid, and supplemental health-hospitalization insurance.

—Region VIE - Develop legal services for all eligible senior citizens.

—Region VIW - Develop an adult day care program in the region.

—Region VII - Review existing transportation programs and resources in the region and develop a plan for providing senior citizens with adequate transportation.

—Region VII - Develop and fund a new or expanded in-home services program in at least one county.

—Region IX - Assess employment opportunities for older persons and propose ways of improving opportunities.

—Region X - Provide senior citizens with information on energy assistance programs.

—Region XI - Adopt a plan for providing appropriate housing and service arrangements for metro area senior citizens.

Board on aging awarded approximately $380,000 to four Minnesota nutrition projects that provide noon meals to older persons Monday through Friday as well as a number of other services. All congregate dining projects for the elderly will be directly administered by area agencies on aging rather than by the MBA by the end of 1980.

Receiving MBA nutrition grants were the Region VII Nutrition program for the elderly, $72,745; Leech Lake reservation elderly nutrition program, $98,803; Minnesota Chippewa Tribe elderly nutrition program, $135,854; and White Earth reservation elderly nutrition project, $74,103. Projects plan to serve more than 160,000 meals by the end of 1980.

[illegible] Acidity Found In Test Area Of Minn.

Is air pollution causing "acid rain" in Minnesota? A University of Minnesota researcher says that less than 10 per cent of the rainfalls he has studied in the last three summers contained significant amounts of acid resulting from pollution.

Sagar Krupa has researched the chemical nature of rainfall in central Minnesota since 1976. He and his laboratory workers collected samples from each rainfall at seven locations in Sherburne, Wright and Stearns counties. They tested nearly 300 samples for acidity and charted [illegible] of each rainfall using weather maps.

In other studies, Krupa has found significant air pollution in rural Minnesota. In this study, the pollutants thought to cause acid rain — sulfur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide — were found in a neutral (non-acid) form in all but 10 per cent of the 282 rain samples.

"We hear about lakes in Scandinavian countries and the Adirondack mountains of upstate New York that are so acidic they no longer support fish populations," Krupa says. "The general theory has been that coal-burning and automobile emissions release compounds which form acids and fall to the earth dissolved in rain."

After four rainfalls during 1977 and two in 1978, Krupa [illegible] acidic substances such as sulfuric and nitric acid in his teflon samplers. Weather maps indicated that the pollutants carried in those rains probably originated in the Twin Cities. This small amount of acidic precipitation is not enough to adversely affect agriculture, says Krupa, plant pathologist.

Neutral sulfate and nitrate compounds found in other rain samples were probably imported from such areas as the Ohio river valley.

"Most of the sulfates and nitrates we found probably traveled a long way," Krupa says. "My results suggest that up to 90 per cent of these pollutants were imported from outside Minnesota during the summer. Highly acidic substances may have time to neutralize during the two or more days of transport before being carried to the earth in rain."

Krupa's research shows that samples from individual rainfalls in central Minnesota has pH values ranging from 3.76 (highly acidic) to 7.90 (alkaline) with 10 per cent of them below 4.5 since 1976. A much smaller number of samples from northern Minnesota showed a similar acidity range.

"Many scientists believe that the pH of unpolluted rain would be 5.7," Krupa says. "Some acid is formed from the natural carbon dioxide in the atmosphere." Any pH value below 7 is acidic.

Krupa's other studies show that at least 60 per cent of ozone pollution found in central Minnesota during the summer originated outside the state. "Ozone appears to be the most harmful air pollution problem affecting agriculture in this state," Krupa says.

He is project leader of the air pollution program in the department of plant pathology. His research has been funded by government agencies and power companies through the University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station.

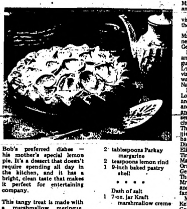
A Slice Of Life



A modern day Phileas Fogg (Remember him? He went around the world in 80 days.), Bob Hope has logged more miles than anyone, with the possible exception of S. Claus. Throughout World War II and the Korean conflict, Bob traveled more than a million miles entertaining more than ten million troops — appearing at almost every military base in the world.

But, home to Bob is Palm Springs, California, where the enjoyment of good food and good company plan an important part in his life. Although he does not consider himself a gourmet, Hope says that food and entertaining are "both necessities in life."

Hope says he likes everything except okra, with his favorite foods being lemon pie and ice cream. When he's on the road, he says, "there's nothing better than ice cream between rehearsals and a show."

Bob is currently rehearsing for his next TV Special presented by Kraft on NBC-TV, Monday, January 21 from 9-10 EST.

Here is a version of one of Bob's preferred dishes — his mother's special lemon pie. It's a dessert that doesn't require spending all day in the kitchen, and it has a bright, clean taste that makes it perfect for entertaining company.

This tangy treat is made with a marshmallow meringue. Adding marshmallow creme to the meringue makes it not only fluffy and smooth, but also stable, since meringues made only with egg whites can be sensitive and tend to weep. The marshmallow creme also gives the pie a delectable, glossy sheen. For a pretty slice, cut the pie with a wet knife. Serve to anyone who travels to your home — whether from work, school or a million miles away.

Hope's Lemon Pie

1-1/3	cups sugar
6	tablespoons cornstarch
	Dash of salt
1-1/4	cups boiling water
3	eggs, separated
1/3	cup lemon juice
2	tablespoons Parkay margarine
2	teaspoons lemon rind
1	9-inch baked pastry shell

• • • •

1	7-oz. jar Kraft marshmallow creme

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan; gradually add water. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Cook 1 minute or until mixture is clear and thickened. Stir small amount of hot mixture into beaten egg yolks; return to hot mixture. Cook over medium heat 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in lemon juice, margarine and lemon rind. Pour into pastry shell.

Beat egg whites and salt until soft peaks form. Gradually add marshmallow creme, beating until stiff peaks form. Spread over filling, sealing to edge of crust. Bake at 350°, 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Mrs. Clayton Johnsrud and Randy were Saturday evening visitors at the Carl Ekwall home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wally Byklum, Wayne and Darin and Bobby Zavoral, Marion and Steve of Goodridge visited Friday afternoon at the Galen Englund home of rural Grygla.

Sunday afternoon Norman Adams, Jodi, Jami and Darin were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Larry Kotrba home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mordy Morrison were supper guests on New Years day at the Gene Feidler home.

Volume 69 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, January 14, 1980 Number 4

SENIORS FROM SURROUNDING counties gathered in the Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday afternoon to discuss issues for the northwestern Minnesota area, to adopt a constitution, and to nominate people from the area for the Minnesota senior federation, as they began organizing a ninth chapter.

Seniors Helping Seniors Is Aim Of MN. Federation

Three members of the Minnesota senior federaion and senior federation services were available to help seniors organize a Northwestern Minnesota chapter of the federation at a special session conducted in the Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday afternoon.

Pat Kelly, St. Paul, staff member from the Minnesota federation; Clifford Anderson, president of the seven-county chapter of the federation and a representative of the senior federation operating out of Mora; and Gladys Deadrick, president of the senior federation services and a member of the central senior federation operating out of St. Cloud, were available to help organize the seniors and answer any question they raised.

Presently, the Minnesota senior federation is organized in all areas of the state except in the Northwestern section and in Region 8 (the southwestern section of Minnesota). But the northwest and southwest areas are organizing. Group action was begun in December to establish a new region encompassing the northwestern counties of the state. The federation's work in this area is being aided by a 13,000 grant from the L.B. Hartz foundation in Thief River Falls.

Purpose of the Minnesota federation is to enforce the idea of seniors helping seniors, and to strive to attain better living, better health care and affordable utilities for seniors, along with any other area concerns they may have, according to Gladys Deadrick. Senior federation services sponsors groups to aid in the organizing process for the senior federation.

Eight counties are represented by the Minnesota senior federation including Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Polk, Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake and Norman. Aim of the federation in these counties is to work with agencies in various areas for the betterment of senior citizens, Dendrick said.

"By the end of 1980 we hope to have the seniors in this area organized well enough so they may work as a state group," Deadrick said.

Seniors were divided into four groups to organize the Northwest chapter of the federation during the session. Groups included one to discuss issues for the area, one to adopt the seniors' own constitution, the third one for nominating people from the area for the Minnesota senior federation, and the fourth for making and organizing plans for a first convention that will hopefully be conducted in April, according to Deadrick.

LAVERNE SWAN (left), member of the Northwestern community action council (NWCA) and senior coordinator of the Minnesota senior Federation from Badger, was one who assisted seniors from area counties during their special meeting Thursday in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Purpose of the meeting was to organize a Northwestern chapter in the Minnesota senior federation.

Others involved in the Minnesota senior federation who were available to aid seniors at the organizing session include LaVerne Swans, member of the Northwest community action council (NWCA), and senior coordinator of the federation from Badger; Gladys Loeffler, Thief River Falls, and a member of the Inter-County community action counsil; Verla Asselin, Brooks, member of the senior outreach program; and Morris Owen, president of the community council on aging.

Other federation members involved in the organizing process were Lana Sandahl, Thief River Falls, senior meals and activities coordinator; Kay Kaatz, who works out of the university of Crookston and is a member of the retired senior volunteer program (RSVP; and Helen Janowski, a member of the senior meals from Warren.

Approximately sixty-five seniors attended the meeting to help organize the Northwest

Conservation Speech Contest Set At Grygla

"Clean Water — Who Needs It?" is the topic of this year's conservation speech contest sponsored by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district. Contest is open to all area students from the seventh through twelfth grades. Two age groups in the contest include students in grades seven through nine who are in the junior division and students in grades 10 through 12 who are in the senior division.

Junior division speeches should be between four and six minutes long and senior division speeches should be between five and seven minutes in length. Local contest will be conducted March 25, at 1 p.m. at the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district office (north end of Motel 89). First place prize will be $10, $5 for second place and two $2.50 consolation awards will be given in each division. Top speakers in both divisions will go on to compete in the area contest conducted at Thief River Falls. Transportation will be provided if necessary.

Meeting Here For Sunflower Growers Tues.

A meeting for sunflower producers to determine what interest they would have in participating in the sunflower crop pest management program during the 1980 crop year is scheduled for tomorrow (Tuesday) at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Pest management program is being offered by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service in cooperation with the USDA and the environmental protection agency (EPA). It is a program designed to assist producers in making timely cost efficient decisions on pest control problems in sunflowers.

Farmers in the southern Red river valley area who participated in the program on sunflowers and potato growers in the northern area of the valley indicated it was a very helpful program for them during the 1979 crop year. Many of them stated that the cost of the program was more than recovered by reductions in amount of chemical controls they would normally use.

Mike Hutter, University of Minnesota crop pest management specialist from Crookston, will be present to explain the program.

County extension director Terry Courneya indicated that the cost of the program for farmers is minimal because of special appropriation funding from the federal government.

Area Farmers May Apply For FmHA Loans

Farmers in six northwestern Minnesota counties may apply for emergency loan assistance from the Farmers Home administration to recover losses caused by natural disasters, according to Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

Damages were caused by excessive rainfall, insect infestation in sunflowers and a snow and ice storm. Emergency loans are made to qualifying farmers who lack other sources of credit for loans for damages or losses to crops, property, machinery and equipment caused by the natural disaster.

Loans for the farmer's total losses are made at five per cent interest. Amounts in excess of the loss needed to restore production or to make major adjustments in farming operations are available at nine per cent interest for real estate purposes and nine and one-half per cent for annual operating and chantlel purposes.

Applications for physical losses should be filed in Farmers Home administration county offices. Applications for physical losses will be received until September 29 and applications for production losses will be accepted until December 29.

In Pennington County, farmers are eligible as a result of damages and losses incurred to crops from excessive rainfall during the period of June 20 to July 6 and on July 30, 1979, and ice and snowstorm on October 31.

Red Lake county farmers are eligible as a result of the October snow and ice storm, as are Kittson county farmers.

Marshall county farmers may obtain loans if damage was received as a result of excessive rainfall from June 20 to July 6 and on July 30, or from the insect infestation of sunflowers during the July 4-15 period.

County Board Conducts Annual Business Tuesday

Glenn Tasa
Chairman

Don Grabanski
Vice Chairman

In addition to electing Glenn Tasa, fifth district commissioner from Trail, as chairman and Donald Grabanski, second district commissioner from Thief River Falls as vice chairman, the Pennington county board of commissioners conducted a number of other business matters at the annual meeting last Tuesday.

Bids for widening and surfacing about 13 miles of SAR 3 from highway 59 east to the River Valley bridge were opened with eight bidders submitting bids for consideration. Low bidder at $806,962.98 was Sellin Brothers of Hawley.

The commissioners acted on wages for county personnel for the 1980 work year, granting an increase of 14 per cent for all workers with base pay under $8,000 annually, 12 per cent for those with $8,000 to $12,000 annually and 10 per cent to those with earnings of more than $12,000 annually in base pay, with the exception of the county engineer.

A meeting was held with the engineer in a closed session, at which time the board read a list of grievances to engineer Arvid Olson. Review was ordered by the board following a six-month period.

At its meeting in December, the board set commissioner salaries at $400 per month and increased the per diem from $25 per day to $35 per day.

The category of investigator was approved for the Pennington county sheriff's department with a three per cent wage differential allowed for that position. The post is presently held by Bob Wold.

Sheriff Charles Richards also discussed the 911 emergency phone service being planned for statewide use and the board authorized county participation in the program. Agreement was also signed for care and upkeep of a portable breathalyzer provided by the state department of public safety for use by the law enforcement center.

A grant for an education and treatment program at the law enforcement center was also implemented from the crime control commission. A jail coordinator and counselor is to be hired with $14,510 available for the program.

Highway engineer Bob Wolfe of the district Mn-DOT office in Bemidji was present to discuss highway financing and ask county board advice and assistance. He outlined the governor's four-point plan to raise funds for highway use and the board adopted a resolution of support with the exception of adding the four per cent sales tax to gasoline.

The board entered into an agreement with Northwestern hospital for ambulance services, subsidizing the service at $14,302.

Regular meeting date was set as the first Tuesday after the first Monday of each month. Elected and appointed officials of the county were designated as representatives of the county in their respective state associations and eligible for reimbursement of expenses.

Chairman Tasa and Roger Hoffman were named to represent the board on the county extension committee for 1980. Tasa will replace Albert Koop in that position; Hoffman also served last year. Earl Miller and Mrs. Ernest (Lois) Swanson were reappointed to the committee.

The county welfare board will again be comprised of seven members, including all five members of the county board of commissioners. The board will also serve in total on the road and bridge committee and Tasa will represent the board on the highway committee of the association of Minnesota counties.

Commissioner Otto Stenberg was appointed to the law library committee and Dr. F. W. Hazard was reappointed

Grain Dryer, Chimney Fires In 1979 Report

Fires in nine grain dryers and a near tripling in the number of chimney fires from three to eight were among the 103 fire calls answered during 1979 by the Thief River Falls fire department, according to chief Duane Noel.

The 103 calls were the most since 1976 when an extremely dry fall resulted in a rash of grass and brush fires and the year end fire call total was 120. There were 80 calls in 1978 and 81 calls in 1977, chief Noel added.

Of the total calls received, 82 were in Thief River Falls and 21 in the five townships served by the department. These included six in North township, 10 in Rocksbury, two each in Smiley and Norden and one in Silverton township.

Twenty-seven of the total calls were to home and 16 were a result of fires in cars. There were eight chimney fires, primarily in homes where wood was being burned, and nine grain dryer fires, due in most part to the late sunflower harvest and resulting high moisture content of sunflowers.

Two fires were in hotels or motels. In 20 calls answered there was no fire found but callers reported smelling smoke. There were 10 false alarms.

Largest amount of damage as a result of fire last year was the estimated $70,000 loss of flax straw in piles owned by Olin company south of Thief River Falls on the airport road. The fires were believed to have been deliberately set. Largest house damage was to a residence in North township where the loss was estimated at $50,000.

Penny Orloff

Penny Orloff To Sing For Concert Series

First artist of the new year to appear in the Thief River Falls concert series will be soprano soloist Penny Orloff of the New York City opera. Her performance will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Miss Orloff has a Russian-Gypsy heritage but was reared and educated in Los Angeles, Calif. She began her vocal studies after a dozen years of training in classical ballet and a short career as an actress, moving to New York City where she was a scholarship student at the Juilliard school.

During the time she was studying at Juilliard she often supplemented her income by singing a program of art songs, accompanying herself on the guitar. For several years she performed with the American opera theatre at Lincoln center, and was engaged to sing at the Metropolitan opera.

She chose instead to go with the New York City opera with the opportunity to do more important roles. Audiences have also seen and heard her in oratorio, recital, off-Broadway and in the exacting field of 12-tone chamber music, much of which has been written for her.

In the coming season at New York City opera she will sing the role of Frasquita in "Carmen" among other roles.

Register Tues. For Ice Show

Ice show registration will be accepted until noon tomorrow at the park and recreation department. After noon January 15 there will be no further registrations accepted and no exceptions will be made.

Invite Cuppett To Maryland

James P. Cuppett, AVTI welding instructor, has been invited by the U.S. office of career education to participate in an expense paid conference at Silver Springs, Md., on February 5-6.

Purpose of the conference is to devise a plan for effective delivery of career education from the state to the local level.

Benefit For Eldon Swenson Slated Jan. 27

Fund raising benefit program for Eldon Swenson of the Middle River community will be held Sunday, January 27, at the Meadowbrook ballroom west of Middle River.

Swenson, 42, had brain surgery for removal of two abscesses on October 30 at United hospital in Grand Forks and was in the hospital's intensive care unit for 72 days. He is presently still hospitalized in Grand Forks.

The Swensons have six children ranging in age from six to 19 years of age and operate a dairy farm. Eldon has been employed at Arctic Enterprises in Thief River Falls for about 12 years.

Entertainment program at Meadowbrook January 27 will begin at 2 p.m., followed by a community auction with items donated by area business places. A dance will follow the auction. Cash donations may also be sent to the Eldon Swenson fund at Marshall county state bank in Newfolden.

During Swenson's hospitalization the family has been assisted in the farm operation by Mrs. Swenson's brothers-in-law, Jay Garthus and Tom Fillmore, and neighbor Marvin Rostvet, with other neighbors also providing help when needed.

Youth Day At Winter Shows Slated Feb. 23

Saturday, February 23 is youth day at the winter shows in Crookston. A thousand or more 4-H and FFA youth and leaders will assemble from about a 16-county area to participate in livestock and crops judging contests, a talent festival, demonstration, FFA cow clipping contest, a photography workshop, a horticultural show and workshop, a meats judging clinic, a grain clinic, a public speaking contest, and a dairy futurity show.

Any questions about participating in the many youth events at the Red River valley winter shows should be raised with a vo-ag instructor or with county extension director.

A significant contribution on the part of FFA chapters from Climax and Crookston is to plan and conduct a children's barnyard scheduled for Sunday, February 24, commencing at 12 noon. Farm animals are displayed especially for young children of the Red River Valley.

A dog show for youth is scheduled for Monday, Feburary 25 at 6 p.m.

Livestock futurity show is part of the Red river valley livestock association's livestock show.

A horse judging contest, showmanship, and competitive events are set for Friday, February 29.

CHARTER PRESENTATION to the newly-organized Thief River Falls Evening Lions club took place at the charter night banquet held Saturday evening at the Best Western Inn. Ellsworth Jorgenson of Thief River Falls, District 5M-11 governor, made the charter presentation to club president Byron Bengston (right). Guest speaker for the evening banquet was Vaughn Bein, past district governor.

Fourteen Valley Home Residents Note Birthdays

Fourteen residents at Valley Home observed their birthdays during the month of November, according to Ella Overum, a resident, who reports the Home's monthly activities. Residents noting their birthdays and the dates were Halvor Nomeland and Carl Cleven, both December 1; Hans Hanson, December 6; Olga Grothe and Ola Christianson, December 10; Hjalmer Rafteseth, December 12; Myrtle Curtis, December 17; Fanny Burrell and Milda Christenson, December 18; Pete Sorter, December 21; William Pesek, December 25; Carl Bloom, December 28, and Ole Sovde, December 30.

The monthly birthday party was held Tuesday evening, December 4 with the Kingsmen presenting the program. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Brekke, administrators, and Margaret Johnson, secretary, were in charge of the program. They also served doughnuts, coffee and juice to the honored guests, residents, visitors and the residents of the Skylite apartments, who came to enjoy the program. Later in the month, birthday cards and cash gifts were distributed to the birthday celebrants. They also received birthday cards from the Catholic Daughters.

Those treating ice cream on their birthdays to residents and staff were Olga Grothe, Ruth Aaras and Fanny Burrell. Relatives of Myrtle Curtis hosted a party in her honor and served ice cream cups and birthday cake for the afternoon coffee. Hjalmer Rafteseth's family serviced birthday cake on his birthday, and the Carl Bloom relatives served birthday cake and cookies.

Regular devotional services during the month included Mass every Saturday at 9 a.m.; Bible Study on Tuesdays at 9 a.m., with Mrs. Knute Jore as leader, and Wednesday afternoon services with Rev. J. Hovland of Trinity Lutheran church, who offers Holy Communion the last Wednesday of the month.

Devotional programs were also given by Lester Brekke; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dyrud and Mrs. Merle Knutson of Newfolden; Rev. and Mrs. George DeWall and family of the Bible Baptist church who are in charge of services every Sunday at 3 p.m.; Rev. and Mrs. James Mattson of Zion Lutheran church; LeRoy Knutson, his mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Percey Stokke of Newfolden; Rev. Eugene Enderlein of Our Saviour's Lutheran church, who served communion; Rev. Dualne Esepseth of Faith Lutheran Brethren church; and Rev. John Kleinwachter of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

In charge of Tuesday evening devotional programs were Dave Crowser, Dean Paskewitz, the Don Johnson family and the Lowell and Norris Trochmann families of the Faith Lutheran Brethren church.

Other groups from various organizations in the community that visited the Home in December and presented programs were: the Sunday school children from the Evangelical Free church, the Northland Community college choir, and two groups of Girl Scouts and Cub Scouts, who sang Christmas carols and distributed banners which they had made;

Also the Miriam circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served lunch following their program; the Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union, who presented a Christmas program and served assorted Christmas breads and cookies; the Middle River Junior Legion auxiliary; and a group of young people from the Gatzke community, who presented a musical program. A large number of carolers also visited the home during the month.

Several residents of Valley Home attended the funeral services held Tuesday, December 11, at Our Saviour's Lutheran church for Ruth Cleven, a resident at the Home. Those attending, together with Lester Brekke, were Olga Christianson, Mrs. Vernon Malberg, Irene Anderson, Ella Overum, Tammy Rude, Mary Hanford, Shirley Lindeman and Tammi Lindeman.

Memorial services for Ruth Cleven were held at Valley Home the following Friday morning. Rev. Eugene Enderlein officiated at the services. He was assisted by Rev. Paul Abel, who sang two selections, accompanied by Mrs. Lester Brekke. The members of the Valley Home choir participated in the service by singing the hymn, "He the Pearly Gates Will Open."

During the month, members of the choir and band went caroling at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital and at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Mrs. Knute Jore was honored at a farewell party on Tuesday, December 18, following Bible study. She was presented with a gift in appreciation for the many Bible studies she had given. Coffee and cookies were served. Mrs. Jore and her husband moved to McIntosh before Christmas to make their home near their son and family.

One of the highlights of the month was the six o-clock supper served Saturday December 22 for all the residents, and the staff workers and their husbands. The supper included lutefisk, ham, lefse and other goodies. The annual Christmas program and exchange of gifts was followed by a social coffee hour for the staff and their spouses. Lunch featured Christmas goodies brought by the staff. Hjalmer Rafteseth won the teddy bear door prize.

Other events in December included the showing of the film, "My Son, My Son;" Bingo games every Monday with Tammy Rude in charge; visits from the cosmetology girls, who gave perms and styled hair for the residents; and a Christmas program given by the CAP students with Fanny Burrell winning the door prize. It was also noted that many of the residents spent Christmas with their families, relatives and friends.

MARSHAL ENGLE, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Engle Jr. of Wolfe City and former residents of Thief River Falls, has been selected to be a finalist in the ninth annual 1980 Miss Texas National Teen-ager pageant at Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, Texas, June 6, 7 and 8. Winner of the pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship, a modeling scholarship and an expense-paid trip to compete in the nationally televisted Miss National teen-ager pageant in Atlanta, GA.

Chat And Chew Club Hosted By Hilda Wennberg

January meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Hilda Wennberg. Eight of the 11 members attended the meeting and answered roll call by telling which Christmas gift they enjoyed most.

President Wanda Murphy presided at the meeting. Pauline Aubol reported on the recent meeting of the Pennington County Homemakers council; and she instructed the members to check the local paper for complete details. A novel kitchen spice hanger which may be made at the next meeting was displayed by Mrs. Murphy. Louise Nereson read the homemakers creed and Geneva Overum gave the secretary's report.

Members signed a get-well card which was to be sent along with an arrangement of red silk roses (made by Pauline Aubol) to treasurer Betty DeHahn, who was hospitalized. Other cards signed with sentences of greetings were for former members Lena Hayes, Alexandria and Laurel Joyner. —

A dessert lunch was served by the hostess.

Help Given To Women-Owned Businesses

National association of women business owners (NAWBO) reported an overwhelming response to its search for women-owned business to enroll in the procurement - automated source system (PASS). PASS enables government agencies and private industry to locate eligible businesses so they may bid on contracts in the areas of service, manufacturing, construction, research and development.

NAWBO's contract with the Small Business administration is to make women business owners aware of opportunities available to them. Marlene Johnson, president of the Minnesota chapter of NAWBO, said "Many women in business are already taking advantage of the program, although some still don't realize there's government business to be had."

PASS program is free and the form takes less than half an hour to complete.

National association of women business owners provides technical assistance and other learning opportunities specifically oriented toward the needs of women in business.

For more information on the PASS program, please contact the NAWBO office at 400 Sibley Street, St. Paul, MN 55101 or call 612-291-7400.

Families Speak Out Meeting At Crookston

Crookston is one of seven Minnesota communities which will conduct a White House conference on "Families Speak Out" at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, February 2.

Purpose of the "Speak Out" is to examine the strengths of Minnesota's families, the difficulties they face, and the ways in which family life in our state is affected by governmental policies.

"Speak Outs will give citizens across the state an opportunity to air their feelings on family issues," says Barbara Oseth, Polk county extension agent. "The public is invited to give testimony during the day either verbally or in writing."

Hearings will be conducted throughout the state in January and February in preparation for the regional White House conference on families in June of 1980 in Minneapolis.

Other Minnesota communities also having speak outs include Rochester, Marshall, Minneapolis, White Bear Lake, Alexandria and Grand Rapids.

For more information interested persons may contact Glenice Johnson, UMC instructor in home and family services, at 218-281-6510, extension 296, or Barbara Oseth, county extension agent, at 218-281-1751.

Propose Food Stamps For SSI Recipients

Elderly and disabled people would be able to apply for food stamps at the same time they apply for supplemental security benefits (SSI) under rules proposed recently by the U.S. department of agriculture.

New rule would make it possible for the social security administration, which administers SSI benefits, to also accept food stamp applications. People applying for SSI would be able to apply for food stamps simultaneously if everyone in the household is applying for or receiving SSI benefits, and no one is already receiving food stamps.

Proposed rule, which implements a provision of the 1977 food stamp act, could take effect as soon as next summer.

Currently, SSI recipients who want to apply for food stamps must make a separate trip to their local food stamp office. "This has placed a real burden on people who are elderly or disabled," said assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman. "It may also be a reason why many elderly and disabled poor do not currently participate in the food stamp program. Processing food stamps and SSI applications jointly should be of real assistance to these people."

Proposed regulations were published in the Federal register Friday, December 7. Comments on the proposal must be received by January 22, 1980 and should be sent to Claire Lipsman, director, program development division, family nutrition programs, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Carlson Cited As St. Cloud's Most Influential

The next few years will be one of the most interesting periods in the interesting life of Glenn Carlson. He must decide:

(1) If he ever will retire from his job as EVP of the St. Cloud (MN) Area Chamber, a job he has held since 1953. "There's still work to do here. . .Why should I leave?"

(2) If he does retire, whether to run for elective office. If he does run, it will be a reversal of decision made many years ago when he decided not to understudy a then congressman with the goal of replacing him when he retired. Or. . .

(3) Retire, packup, and tour the country sharing experiences with other chamber executives.

Whatever the decision, it is a pretty sure bet that Carlson will (a) be surrounded by family and (b) be managing by motivating others.

These are the essences of what Carlson boils down to as contained in an article published by the Daily Times in St. Cloud. The story was one of 10 profiles on the community's most influential people. It is significant that the Carlson profile was the third printed.

A clue to the option among the three above that Carlson probably will not choose is given by this: after he turned down the understudy job with the congressman, he became manager of the Thief River Chamber from 1950-53. He moved to St. Cloud, and he's been there ever since. He is not a nomad, which goes against the stream in a profession that seems to produce nomads.

Carlson, who just turned an energetic 59, except for a couple of years during World War II, has stayed close to home. He was born in Thief River, which is only a skip and a jump from St. Cloud.

There was another brief excursion. That was when, after the war, that Congressman Harold Hagen was looking for someone to run his Washington office staff. Hagen was looking ahead to retirement and so his AA ideally would be someone to understudy him and then offer to fill the office. Carlson was recommended and accepted the job.

He stayed in Washington all of a week. It was too far from home and family. He quit to return to Thief River and, soon, the CEO job at the Thief River Chamber.

Love of family is still in evidence: note the annual snowmobile tournament for family on his farm; the annual golf tournament for family; and the 11 season Vikings tickets the clan shares.

It was not love of home and family, however, that prompted the Daily Times to highlight Carlson's influence in St. Cloud. That selection is probably rooted in his ability to motivate himself and others.

He motivates without putting himself up front (he even dislikes to occupy the headtable at chamber functions). "If you put yourself in front too much, you'll find out you lose your following," he says. Whatever success he has had, he says, that may have led him into a position of influence is to motivate others rather than push his own concepts and proposals.

His community leaders gratefully acknowledge Carlson's motivational leadership. Says a former president: "Board members are part-time chamber executives but they are full time businessmen." Therefore, they must rely on Carlson to guide them.

A former mayor says in a book he wrote about St. Cloud, "Micropolis in Transition," that Carlson, influence rises from both his position and his ability. The author named Carlson St. Cloud's No. 2 influential.

Other chamber leaders credit him with the drive that has resulted in St. Cloud undergoing considerable industrial expansion over the years. For example, he was a sparkplug in the formation of St. Cloud Opportunities, Inc. — a non-profit industrial development entity — in 1955. He was elected its executive director then, and he still is. SCO now is completing the filling of its second industrial park and is looking for more growth room.

Motivation has always been a key to Glenn Carlson. At age 16 he was agency manager for the Minneapolis Star & Tribune. At the same time he published a semi-weekly advertising sheet for which he sold the ads, did all production work, and distributed.

This very naturally led to later involvement in community endeavors, which led to membership in the Thief River Jaycees (of which he ultimately became president and then regional vice president), and that led to his 1949 selection as the "Outstanding Young Man of the Year. He later was founder of the Minnesota Amateur Baseball Hall of Fame, for which he was rewarded with its secretary; treasureship for 17 years."

It was with equal enthusiasm that he became involved in the chamber movement when he assumed the Thief River managership. Three years later he was elected president of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce Executives. He studied his through Institute, and served it as a Board of Regents member 1961-63. He was chairman of the Colorado Institute board in 1962.

He pushed on from Institute to become a Certified Chamber Executive, that ACCE-conferred designation attesting to the excellence of Glenn Carlson the professional. He is a member of ACCE's 25-Year Club. He has served as a state delegate, chairman of the District 5 Nominating Committee, and on its Program Committee.

When he retires — IF he retires — Carlson admits that the attraction of the understudy, elective office job he accepted so briefly those many years ago still is there. But not for a national office, only local. That is where his heart is, at the local level helping to solve problems by motivating people.

Holding the trash can into which smokers toss their cigarettes, is Carl Knutson, Ph.D., general chairman of Minnesota D-Day. D-Day is Thursday, January 24, and promoters are encouraging smokers to "Join the crowd. Quit smoking January 24." The Minnesota Lung Association and American Cancer Society, Minnesota Division, sponsor this project.

Smokers Urged To Kick Habit January 24th

Urging smokers to "join the crowd and quit smoking January 24" is Mrs. Leo Ellingson, Goodridge, who is a local Minnesota lung Christmas seal association chairperson of the 1980 D-Day project.

"We are very encouraged by the results of the survey of pledge signers from the 1979 D-Day. It revealed 17 per cent of the signers were still off cigarettes about 10 months after D-Day," she said.

"In 1980, I'd like to see more smokers from my community try to quit for one day, at least," she added.

This year Minnesotans will have the opportunity to pledge to quit smoking at many physicians' and dentists' offices, businesses, hospitals and schools across the state.

If local persons cannot find pledge cards, they should print their full name, address, and zip code on a piece of paper and state, "I promise not to smoke on D-Day, January 24, 1980." Mail the pledge to D-Day headquarters, 614 Portland avenue, St. Paul, MN 55102.

"I encourage local puffers to join the growing crowd of quitters on Minnesota D-Day," Ellingson said.

D-Day co-sponsors are the Minnesota lung association and the American cancer society. Supporting this year's stop smoking campaign are a variety of organizations including the Minnesota dental and medical associations and state departments of education and health.

5 TRF Board Members At MSBA Meet

Fifty-ninth annual Minnesota school boards association (MSBA) convention will be held today through Wednesday in the Minneapolis auditorium and Leamington hotel.

Attending the convention from Thief River Falls are board chairman Larry McDowell and members Bob Sorvig, Ken Wiebolt, Maynard Wedul and Harry Sjulson. Sjulson is a member of the MSBA board of directors.

Governor Al Quie is the keynote speaker and Minneapolis mayor Don Fraser was also scheduled to speak at the opening session.

Over 3,000 school board members, administrators and guests will be in attendance for the three days of in-service training. Four general sessions and over 30 workshops are scheduled, along with one of the largest educational exhibits in the nation.

MSBA's 1980 legislative positions will be established on Wednesday during the association's business meeting. Delegates will be considering over 40 resolutions in addition to electing a president, vice president and four directors.

Ag Olympics Featured At Winter Shows

Ag Olympics will again be featured at the 1980 Winter shows. This grassroots talent-entertainment program will be held Saturday, February 23, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the south arena.

Intended to be a fun night for the entire family, the competition this year is especially organized for those interested in a miniature tractor pull. These miniature tractors are approximately the size of your telephone and can pull from 100 to 300 pounds. Event will be organized just like the tractor-pull contests that are popular at county fairs, with skids and weights. There will also be a miniature 4-wheel drive pickup-pull contest.

Ag Engineering department of the Agricultural Division of the Technical College is in charge of the event.

For information, call the Winter Shows office, 218-281-2900.

Snowmobilers Support MSS By Snow Rally

Members of 45 Minnesota snowmobile clubs have confirmed dates for their MS Sno-Rally '80 rides, multiple sclerosis officials announced recently. Proceeds from these rides will go toward MS research and for services to Minnesotans who have the disease.

Multiple sclerosis is the most common disease of the central nervous system among young adults between 20 and 40. Minnesota has the second highest rate of MS in the nation. Cause and cure of the disease remain unknown.

After soliciting pledge donations on a per mile basis, most clubs will travel between 60 and 100 miles for the benefit of MS.

In addition, more than 50 per cent of these clubs will send representatives to MS Sno-Rally 500, an official St. Paul Winter carnival event. Riders will depart from Duluth on February 1 and arrive in White Bear Lake on the evening of February 2.

Of 130 registered riders, places are now confirmed for 75. Each 500 rider is backed with $500 in pledge donations for multiple sclerosis.

Sno-Rally 500 is approved by the Minnesota United Snowmobilers association and sponsored by Arctic Enterprises. Endorsed by the Minnesota Broadcaster's association, the 500 is supported by the Duluth area Association of Snowmobile clubs and KDAL radio, Duluth.

Prizes for top pledgers in Sno-Rally 500 are furnished by Arctic Enterprises and Norco Outdoors.

More information is available from the MS society at (612) 870-1500.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Margaret Snelling
222 St. Paul Avenue South

Rosettes

2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 teaspoons sugar
one-quarter teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
one-quarter cup corn starch
¾ cup flour

Method: Slightly beat eggs. (Too much beating will cause bubbles in the rosettes.) Add sugar, salt and milk. Mix well and fold in flour and corn starch that have been sifted together. Use rosette iron and dry in deep fat. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Mrs. Snelling is a retired practical nurse. She now spends her time crocheting and making afghans from woolen coats. She also enjoys cooking, making quilts, various types of crafts, and during the summer months, she raises vegetables and flowers. Since she lives alone, she finds the Senior Meals are especially helpful, not only for providing balanced meals, but for giving her an opportunity to visit with others.

She has four children, all married, 12 grandchildren, and eight great grandchildren.

She is a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Arthritis Is No. 1 Crippler

Rheumatoid arthritis is the number one crippling disease in Minnesota, with over 120,000 victims in the state, according to the Arthritis foundation. The disease is also one of the most painful and crippling known to mankind. Its favorite targets are women between the ages of 20 and 50, although it sometimes affects children as well.

Although rheumatoid arthritis primarily attacks the joints, it can also cause damage to the lungs, the heart, the liver and other organs. Because of this, it is known as a systemic disease, one affecting the entire body.

While the cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not yet known to medical science, and no cure has yet been found, the disease can be controlled, a foundation spokesman reported. Early diagnosis, good medical care, and disciplined day-to-day compliance with physicians' and therapists' instructions can prevent or control crippling in the great majority of cases, the spokesman added.

The Arthritis foundation has a special message on rheumatoid arthritis that may be heart during January by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A booklet on the disease is available free to callers.

Free services of the Arthritis Foundation are made possible in most Minnesota communities through the support of the United Way.

State Ranked High In Meat Production

Minnesota continues to be the nation's eighth leading state in production of red meats despite the fact that November output of commercial livestock slaughter plants dropped by more than 26.5 million pounds. That is 17 per cent below the same month of 1978, Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

For the first 11 months of 1979 Minnesota's commercial red meat production is estimated by the Minnesota Crop and Livestock reporting service at 1,465.6 million pounds. This is 97.4 million pounds or 6 per cent below the same January through November period of 1978.

The estimated farm value of the 6,229,000 meat animals commercially slaughtered and processed into consumer meat products in Minnesota this January through November is $1,138.4 million. This was an increase of $29.7 million or about 3 per cent greater than the 1978 farm value of commercial slaughter.

Higher prices paid farmers this year for cattle, calves, lambs and sheep account for the increased value.

Hog farmers are continuing to experience the efforts of another over supply situation. Hog slaughter volume in Minnesota this year was 5.3 per cent higher than in 1978, but the 12.1 per cent lower prices paid to hog farmers resulted in a $38.6 million cut in gross income for the 11 months. The farm value of the 11 month hog slaughter in Minnesota this year was $490.5 million compared to last year's $529.1 million.

At the farm level pork is Minnesota's lowest priced red meat. Farmers this year received an average of 41.6 cents a pound for live hogs compared to 47.3 cents in 1978. Beef farmers averaged 59.2 cents a pound for live cattle and 82.7 cents a pound for live veal calves, up respectively from 43 cents and 57.3 cents in 1978. Lambs and sheep this year grossed farmers an average of 66.4 cents a pound live weight, up from 63.6 cents last year.

JEWELS FOR THOUGHT

If you think it's cute when your child repeats the foolish things his teacher says, try imagining what your foibles sound like when he describes them to her.

Sign over supermarket meat counter: "Watch your language!"

Little boy explaining why he wears glasses: "It keeps the boys from hitting me, and the girls from kissing me."

The average family looks high and low for a home. They usually find it high.

TRF Ministerial Association

Otter Tail Co. Accepted Into Power Pool

Otter Tail power company has been accepted into the Mid-Continent Area power pool (MAPP), a Minneapolis-based organization of interconnected power suppliers devoted to improving the reliability of electric supply at minimal cost in the Upper Midwest.

MAPP membership includes investor-owned utilities, rural cooperatives, municipal utilities, and other electric suppliers in seven states and two Canadian provinces. Up until this time Otter Tail was an associate member. Full membership broadens Otter Tail's rights to engage in energy transactions and also to have full representation on MAPP's various planning, administrative, and operating committees.

Customers served by MAPP members benefit from the regional high-voltage interconnections that are capable of transferring large blocks of energy between systems. If a generation failure occurs on one system, for example, the shortage can be made up by reserves available from other systems so that individual consumers are not inconvenienced because their primary source of power failed.

Also, high-voltage interconnections permit companies to buy and sell power among each other according to differing peak demands. Such transactions, most significantly between summer- and winter-peaking companies, increase efficiency and help keep costs down for the interconnected systems and their customers.

275 American Students To Visit Japan

This summer 275 American high school students will live with Japanese families, 125 of them on special scholarships made available through the generosity of more than 60 Japanese and American corporations and foundations.

More than $40,000 in partial scholarships will be awarded to young people aged 14 to 18 who are accepted for the summer homestay program in Japan. Scholarships, which will be awarded on the basis of need and merit, range from $100 to $400 and can cover almost one-third of the program fee. Youth for Understanding, a non-profit organization headquartered in Washington, D.C., and the largest high school student exchange program in the world, sponsors the program and administers the scholarships.

Donors to the Japan scholarship program include many well-known American and Japanese concerns, among them the Rockefeller Brothers fund, the Japan foundation, the Japan Bankers association, the Japan Foreign Trade council, Datsun, Toshiba, Honda, Sony, Seiko, Toyota, the Expo Fund, and Panasonic.

According to Youth for Understanding president John Richardson Jr., former assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs, the sponsors of the scholarships believe that greater understanding between Japan and the U.S. will result from giving young Americans the opportunity to live as part of a Japanese family, and experience their culture as participants.

"Prior to departure, students attend an intensive, three-day orientation at Stanford university which introduces them to the culture and traditions of Japan," Richardson explains. "The program also includes expense-paid fall weekend seminars for three years following the summer exchange for further study of Japanese life."

Interested students are urged to inquire immediately, because applications are now being received, and scholarship monies are being [illegible] date for applications in March 15, 1980. Additional information is available from D. Watson, Youth for Understanding, 3501 Newark Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016.

Public Safety Dep't. Targets Liquor Outlets

Office of public information, a branch of the department of public safety, has just begun a project aimed at involving Minnesota's liquor retailers in further public awareness of the hazards of irresponsible drinking-driving behavior, according to Minnesota department of public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

In an effort to gain the cooperation of liquor retailers in this venture, over 1,600 liquor outlets were sent samples of DPS drinking-driving brochures and also a four-color poster which graphically displays how drinking affects blood alcohol levels and driving ability. Brochures sent include "How to Keep the Life of the Party Alive," "How to Talk to Your Teenager About Drinking and Driving," "How Much Do You Know About Getting Smashed," "The Drinker's Guide to Driving," and a wallet-sized card explaining blood alcohol levels.

By the display of this information at the customer point of purchase, DPS hopes to encourage Minnesotans to be responsible drinkers aware of the hazards of mixing alcohol and driving. Commissioner Sopsic explains that "the department of public safety does not aim to discourage drinking, but to encourage those who do drink to do so sensibly. We hope that the liquor retailers will be able to find a prominent position for the poster, making it and the brochures important, permanent fixtures of their establishments.

"We seek the aid the cooperation of the Minnesota liquor retailers because we're sure they share our concern that over half of the Minnesota traffic deaths involve the drinking driver. As responsible businessmen involved in the sale of alcohol, they are in a unique position to influence Minnesota drinkers. Their response to this poster has been very good and their willingness to distribute our brochures has been encouraging," added Sopsic.

In fact, one liquor dealer has already requested over 13,000 more flyers to be distributed to his customers while many others have requested smaller quantities.

Stangeland Asks Action On Grain Issue

Minnesota Congressman Arlan Stangeland has called on agriculture secretary Bob Bergland to take immediate action to prevent the American farmer from taking the brunt of President Carter's decision to curtail grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

"I am asking Secretary Bergland to immediately announce a 20 per cent set-aside program on wheat and feed grains and to substantially increase price support loans and target prices. Without this action, the stoppage of grain shipments will cause a 22 per cent loss in U.S. export trade and we will find ourselves with a devasting surplus overnight," Stangeland said.

Minnesota Congressman is also urging President Carter to immediately reconvene Congress because, he says, "This embargo on Grain sales will negatively impact the grain market and possibly the nation's economy as a whole.

"The situation is critical, and with Congress in Washington it will be possible to examine the overall impact of the situation and act immediately on whatever is deemed necessary to protect the farmer and the already ailing national economy.

"The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan requires strong action from the United States and our allies, but we must assure the American farmer and the agricultural community that they will not take the brunt of the use of grain as a diplomatic tool," Stangeland said.

Wheat Council Agrees To Fund Chinese Bakery

In an unprecedented move to increase wheat market potential in Mainland China, the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council has agreed to fund, in part, a full-sized bakery in Shanghai, People's Republic of China.

Wheat Council Producer-Chairman Terry Fladeland made the announcement following the December meeting of the council, during which a full report was given on council negotiations with Mainland China officials. Assisting the Wheat Council negotiations with Mainland China officials. Assisting the Wheat Council in this project will be several other state organizations, Western Wheat Associates, U.S.A., Inc., and the Foreign Agriculture service (FAS) of the USDA.

"This is an excellent opportunity for Dark Northern Spring wheat (the king grown in Minnesota) to be in the limelight of wheat imports in Mainland China," Fladeland said, then continued, "The Minnesota Wheat Council is very pleased to have the opportunity to take such an initiative. Council members all recognized the incredible potential for expanding exports of Minnesota wheat in Mainland China. That market potential is limitless," Fladeland declared.

This will be the first project of its kind every undertaken in Mainland China, Council members noted, and Council President Charles Rhoades said he is optimistic the returns will be gratifying. "This is potentially one of the finest market expansion projects the council has ever undertaken. If the Chinese become the same kind of wheat consumers and importers that, say, the Japanese became after market expansion projects started there, it's hard to say where the exports will stop," Rhoades stated.

Fladeland also noted that "The Council is definitely not going into this thing blind. We've been fortunate in that WWA Executive Vice President Gene Vickers has represented the Minnesota Wheat Council on two previous trips to the Peoepl's Republic of China. On his last trip, he was accompanied by FAS Administrator Jimmy Minyard."

Council members said the council would donate a maximum of $50,000 toward the bakery. Construction is scheduled to being sometime in 1980, and the bakery will be used for production, training of bakers from all over China, and for baking demonstrations.

"Before any funds from Minnesota are expanded, however, at least two members of the Wheat Council will go to China to represent the farm interest and to personally investigate and survey the situation," Fladeland emphasized.

USDA Requires Councils On School Foods

Starting in 1981, states will set up advisory councils to let the U.S. department of agriculture know what kinds of donated foods their schools can use, assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said.

"The councils will meet at least once a year to discuss which commodities schools like best, as well as new products they want to get," Foreman said. Councils may also recommend amounts of each food, type and size of packaging, shipping schedules, and changes in food specifications.

Each council will have at least five voting members representing schools that take part in the school lunch program. State agencies will select council members, considering school food service representatives, students from junior or senior high schools, members of local parent-teacher organizations, nutritionists, teachers and school administrators.

New rules requiring state food distribution advisory councils are in line with the 1977 amendments to the school lunch act.

Notice of the requirement for the advisory councils will appear in the January 4 issue of the Federal Register.

State Exams To Be Taken During March

Examinations for state journeyman and master plumbers licenses and water conditioning installer and contractors licenses will be conducted during March by the Minnesota department of health at four locations: University of Minnesota, St. Paul campus; and area vocational-technical institutes at Bemidji, Albert Lea and Duluth.

Applications may be obtained by mail or phone (612-296-5328) from the Minnesota Department of Health, Plumbing Unit, 1717 S.E. Delaware Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55440. Applications must be returned by February 15, 1980 to qualify for the March examination.

Next scheduled examination will be given in September, 1980.

Dayton Hudson Grant Awarded PBS Company

Dayton Hudson foundation has awarded a $76,200 grant to KAWE-TV, the Bemidji-based public television station under construction. Grant is made for acquisition of specific videotape recording and editing equipment.

Videotape facility is a critical element in providing KAWE's broadcast operations with a variety of program sources. PBS network programs received by the station's satellite dish can be taped for scheduling at a later date. Instructional TV programs will be aired via the videotape facility to schools for use in the classroom. Once studio production equipment is acquired, the station can also employ the videotape recorders to tape and assemble local programming.

Project continues to seek funds to equip its production studio and control room with cameras, lighting and related equipment to allow KAWE to produce its own programming.

KAWE is leasing space from Bemidji state university for its studio, master control, satellite dish and offices. Construction on the 1,000-foot tower has been halted for the winter; in the interim, KAWE engineers have nearly completed the installation of master control, terminal and monitoring equipment. Videotape equipment funded by the Dayton Hudson grant will be integrated with the master control area. When installed, KAWE will have the capability for broadcast of PBS network programming and ITV service, but initially will lack the capacity to produce very much programming locally.

Healthy '80s Bring Decade Of Fresh Hope

What will we call the new decade of the '80s?

"There were the Roaring Twenties' and the 'Me Decade' of the just-finished seventies," said R. Paul Marvin, Ph.D., president of the Minnesota lung-Christmas seal associatioon, "and I suggest the 'Healthy '80s' for our brand new decade.

"Each year dawns with fresh hope, but a new decade brings even greater promise," said Dr. Marvin. "We say this even in the face of frightening headlines and bad vibes from TV news.

"A great beginning toward good health in the '80s is a contribution to Christmas seals," continues Dr. Marvin. "If you haven't already made one, it's still not too late. It's a great way to usher in the new decade."

Christmas seal organization believes that good health is both a matter of all of us working together and also each individual taking responsibility for his or her own good health habits.

Lung association's efforts toward the 'Healthy '80s' include the fight against podiatric lung disease, adult lung disease and occupational lung disease.

"We started out to fight tuberculosis. Now all lung disease is our province," said Dr. Marvin. "We also try to stress prevention. We hope the 'Healthy '80s' will see us all assume responsibility for good health — for each other, as well as for ourselves."

Medical Ass'n. Gives Facts On Alcohol

Thinking about drinking during the holiday season or anytime during the coming year? Minnesota medical association notes that there are some basic facts about alcohol which you should know if you plan to indulge, regardless of season.

If you plan to rely on your favorite beverage to get you in a festive mood, you could be disappointed. Medically speaking, alcohol is a depressant drug which regards brain activity.

Alcohol like other drugs which affect the mind have the potential for abuse. Alcohol has been referred to as the most abused drug in the United States today. Generally speaking, one drink is equivalent to either 12 ounces of beer, five ounces of regulary wine, three ounces of sherry or port wine — 1½ ounces of whiskey, or one highball or cocktail.

Time is the best sobering up remedy. Allow 1½ hours for each drink consumed. Black coffee, a cold shower, fresh air, and other remedies commonly advocated have no effect on the body's blood alcohol content. Coffee may help keep you awake but it will do little else to improve judgment or sharpen the body's reactions. The result might well be a "wide awake drunk" behind the wheel. If you cannot wait the suggested time after having your last drink to leave a party, find a non-drinker to do the driving.

Mixing or switching drinks in itself will not make you drunker. The degree of drunkenness will be determined by the total alcohol content in all of the drinks. Nausea and vomiting which sometimes results from switching drinks is usually caused by the different flavorings and mixes used.

Minnesota medical association offers the following additional suggestions to would-be holiday hosts.

+ Don't let your drinking cause harm to yourself or others, set a good example yourself.

+ Don't drink or allow others to drink to get drunk.

+ Don't be a pusher. Respect others' right not to drink. Don't press your guests to drink or drink more.

+ Provide other activities when alcohol is served. Don't allow drinking to be the main purpose of your party. Serve food as well as alcohol.

+ Provide equally attractive, non-alcoholic beverages when alcohol is served.

What's sauce for the host is also sauce for the guest. Keep the following in mind if you are a party guest.

+ Recognize that you don't have to drink — or get drunk to be accepted by others. Base your own decision on good reasons and don't go on a guilt trip if you choose not to drink.

+ Recognize that drunkenness is not reality, humorous, or safe.

+ Be particulary cautious about using alcohol when other drugs are being taken.

Raise Drinking Age?

In his column in the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, State Rep. Glen Sherwood commented on his bill in the legislature to raise the legal drinking age to 21 years. Here are his comments:

How very well I remember that day in 1973 when the House made a most unfortunate decision to lower the drinking age from 21 to 18. I was a rookie legislator at the time, and I recall arguing unsuccessfully that we ought not to lower the drinking age because we would be inflicting certain disaster on significant numbers of young people in that age group. Sadly, we lacked hard facts to prove our case in 1973. We were badly beaten and the measure passed into law.

The ink had scarcely dried after Governor Anderson signed the bill in 1973 before we began to receive reports from school administrators about new alcohol-related problems in our secondary schools. The Legislature finally responded in 1976 by raising the drinking age to 19. Unfortunately, we still lacked enough hard facts and votes to return the drinking age to 21 at that time.

Now the missing facts are in and the situation is worse than the fears I expressed in 1973. Some of those facts, as presented by expert witnesses at the recent hearing, are itemized below.

Fatally injured drivers, under age 21, who had been drinking increased 47 per cent in 1977-78 compared to 1971-72. However, during the same time period there was a 5 per cent decrease of fatally injured drinking drivers over age 21.

In 1978 drivers under age 21 comprised 14 per cent of the driving population in Minnesota but were involved in 25 per cent of the fatal accidents.

The average age at which young people have their first drink is now 12.9 years.

Nationwide, up to 43 per cent of the adolescents arrested for committing a crime had been drinking at the time.

Nationally, more than 62 per cent of all 7th graders, and 80 per cent of all senior high schoolers drink regularly.

Since 1973 in Minnesota the Median age of adolescents admitted for treatment for alcohol dependence has dropped from 17.1 years to 14.9 years.

Traffic accidents involving alcohol are the number one cause of death among young people.

An alarming increase in fetal alcohol syndrome has been noted in off-spring of teen-age mothers. The syndrome causes irreversible retardation in the baby and is the result of a mother drinking during pregnancy.

William Plymat, executive director of the American Council on Alcohol Problems, told us that by condoning an early drinking age, we have predestined 10-15 per cent of our young people to a life of misery and early death.

And Pastor Dwight Hendriks of the Prince of Peace United Methodist Church in Bloomington told us in no uncertina terms that we did not give young people freedom when we lowered the drinking age — that on the contrary, we have incarcerated them and deprived a whole segment of society to the right of life.

Twenty-four states have their legal drinking age set at 21 years. I hope that Minnesota will be the 25th state, but the legislative road ahead has many perils. Our chances of passage are about 50-50. Hearings will continue in January.

Just Listen

How important it is for someone who is experiencing difficulty to have somebody else to talk with about those problems. This is pointed out in an article by an anonymous author which appeared in a publication of the Brainerd state hospital and was reprinted in the Grand Rapids Herald-Review. The plea made in the article should be heeded by all of us.

"When I ask you to listen to me and you start giving advice, you have not done what I asked.

"When I ask you to listen to me and you being to tell me why I shouldn't feel that way, you are trampling on my feelings. When I ask you to listen to me and you feel you have to do something to solve my problems, you have failed me, strange as that may seem.

"Listen! All I asked, was that you listen Not talk or do just hear me Advice is cheap 10 cents will get you both Dear Abby and Billy Graham in the same newspaper. And I can do for myself; I'm not helpless. Maybe discouraged and faltering, but not helpless.

"When you do something for me that I can and need to do for myself, you contribute to my fear and weakness. But when you accept as a simple fact that I do feel what I feel, no matter how irrational, then I quit trying to convince you and can get about the business of understanding what's behind this irrational feeling. And when that's clear, the answers are obvious and I don't need advice. Irrational feelings make sense when we understand what's behind them.

"Perhaps that's why prayer works, sometimes, for some people because God is mute, and He doesn't give advice or try to fix things. 'They' just listen and let you work it out for yourself.

"So, please listen and just hear me, and, if you want to talk, wait a minute for your turn and I'll listen to you."

Rural Transportation Vital

Following editorial appeared recently in a publication called "CA Highlights", published by a non-profit corporation known as "Communicating for Agriculture":

A good transportation system is vital to rural living, according to Senator Roger Jepsen of Iowa.

Jepsen devoted one of his weekly radio programs to the subject a few months ago, and unfortunately, the text of the program didn't receive much attention in the mass media. It should have, because it addressed some important concerns.

The senator referred mainly to the situation in Iowa, but stressed several times, that what he was talking about applies to all of rural America.

"The capacity to transport commodities, fuel and other agricultural necessities in rural areas. . . is a major factor for a healthy. . . economy," he said. "The transportation needs of. . . all rural America must be considered on a basis of every mode of transportation, both passenger and freight."

Rural transportation systems must be viewed as a "machine with many parts," according to the senator. "Each of our parts must be in working order for the machine to function effectively," he said. "When one part of our system breaks down, we see not only an impact on the livelihood of rural people, but in some way, major or minor, urban and rural, the entire economy is affected.

"For example, without adequate rural roads, farmers cannot transport their commodities to grain elevators, which would prevent our grain from being shipped for export or for use in other parts of our nation. Without adequate rural roads, farmers cannot get fertilizers, seeds, pesticides and other supplies necessary for production."

Sen. Jepsen stressed the importance of other modes of transportation, too. "If trucks, barges, railroads, ships and planes are not provided adequate fuel, then agricultural commodities cannot be moved to markets, nor can the supplies for agriculture production be moved to the fields and farms where they are needed," he said.

Unless agriculture producers have the fuel needed for production, there will be no agriculture commonidies to transport, according to the Iowa lawmaker.

Sen. Jepsen noted that a final report is due in January by the Rural Transportation Advisory Task Force, which was established by Congress to assess the transportation needs of agriculture, determine the adequacy of the current transportation network in meeting those needs, and make recommendations for a national agricultural transportation policy.

The task force's preliminary report, he continued, identifies certain problems, including deteriorating farm market road systems, bridges, and railroad facilities.

Sen. Jepsen also talked about the importance of railroad systems, and called for more efficient use, transfer and reallocation of train cars, so products can be moved with greater efficiency.

Senator Jepsen's comments speak for themselves and need no further amplification.

CA is dedicated to the preservation and strengthening of rural America. In order for rural America to be sound, it must not be isolated. Therefore, a good rural transportation system — including highways, railroads, trucks and all other means — is essential for a viable rural America.

CA compliments Senator Jepsen for stating the case so well.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

America's Biggest Job Belongs to Small Business

Question: What will happen in the 1980's if we heed the no-growth zealots who want Washington to enforce a lower standard of living by taxing, redistributing and rationing away the nation's resources?

Answer: The possible devastation of our economy, and end to the longest and most successful experiment in individual freedom the world has ever known.

Many people might judge that prediction extreme. They would probably add that with only 6 per cent of the world's population, America should feel guilty about consuming more than 30 per cent of the world's energy. But wait a minute. The United States produces a tremendous amount of the world's goods, and it was we who first made the production of much of the world's energy possible.

As columnist Michael Novak recently noted: "While the United States may represent a little less than 6 per cent of the world's population, it does not use 30 per cent of the world's energy. It does not use 30 per cent of the world's sun, wind, moving water, oxen, donkeys and human backs. That is what the world meant by energy until the inventiveness released by democratic capitalism 200 years ago changed the meaning of the word."

When we think of energy today, we think of oil, electricity, gas and nuclear power, but we often forget that it was we Americans — the 5 percenters — who developed those modern forms. Indeed, Novak insisted: "Six per cent of the world's population has invented 100 per cent of the world's modern energy and distributed almost 70 per cent of it to the rest of the world." With a record like that, Americans should be feeling good, not guilty.

But if this tiny fraction of the world's population turns away from progress, if we continue to promote wasteful government spending over needed research, investment and the development of new technologies, then we should and must feel overwhelming guilt. Why? Because we will be deliberately turning our backs on some 4 billion people around the world, many of whom are already poor and suffering. They desperately need our help skills and examples of self reliance if they are to grow enough food and produce enough energy to survive. Should we walk away from this problem, we will be inviting worldwide chaos that could engulf us all.

Clearly then, America's greatest challenge in the 1980's lies in renewing powerful economic growth. It is especially important that all those who consider themselves idealists, with a mission to save the world, understand this point. Second, we must also realize that much of this awesome responsibility belongs to small business. The some 13 million small businesses in America already form the backbone of our economy. They represent 97 per cent of all individual firms, employ more than half the labor force, provide the livelihood for 100 million Americans and create half our gross national product.

What small businesses provide best is precisely what we and the rest of the world need most innovation and growth. Recent studies show it is the small innovative businesses that grow the fastest, generate the most new jobs, and often contribute the revolutionary technological break throughs that have earned America her reputation as the country of the future.

But as we look to small business to provide the quality of leadership it has in the past, we must recognize how vulnerable it has become to our economic problems. Inflation puts small business in a bind, since it must pay higher prices for raw materials and supplies, then risk the wrath of consumers if it raises prices. Capital is difficult to obtain because small business, by definition, is so risky. Yet inflation compels firms to borrow more, even as it increases the cost of borrowed capital while devaluing the purchasing power of funds ultimately spent. Firms that do not take risks, and succeed, face excessive taxes. Finally, regulations and paperwork are especially discriminatory because small business usually cannot afford the experts needed to interpret bureaucratic demands.

The Administration, cognizant of these growing difficulties, plans to host a White House Conference on Small Business, beginning January 13. I anticipate it will be the most intensive examination of small business in our nation's history. The U.S. Chamber has made a major effort helping to organize the Conference and it has prepared a special report to the President, "The State of Small Business."

I am profoundly hopeful the Conference will be productive and issue directives of real substance. The Chamber, so broadly-based with its 90,000 members, of which more than 80 per cent are members of small businesses, offers an ideal vehicle to carry them out. But given the magnitude of the problems we face in the 1980's, an even greater commitment is needed. We challenge all Americans to become involved in this vital effort.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter is concerning the driving habits of the people in the Thief River Falls area.

Now that winter is upon us, there are more accidents, but is it due to the icy conditions or to the carelessness of the driver? The majority of the accidents now are collisions caused mostly by lack of defensive driving.

Did you know that it is illegal to pass on the right? And yet, how many people are there, maybe even you, who consistently do this?

It is also a law to put on your signal lights at least 100 feet before you turn, and yet there are people who don't even use signals to let other drivers know what they are about to do. Are you one of them?

The laws governing traffic are to help benefit you as well as the other guy, so now that the new year has begun, we should all try to better our driving habits.

TOWARD A SOVIET AMERICA
NEW EXECUTIVE ORDERS TIGHTEN FEDERAL CONTROL OVER UNSUSPECTING CITIZENS

Advancing toward a Soviet America the Marxist government in Washington recently expanded the federal regional concept of centralized power and strengthened a national police to enforce its edicts. Executive Order No. 12149, "Federal Regional Councils", signed by President Jimmy Carter 20 July 1979, replaced Executive Order No. 11647, "Federal Regional Councils", signed by President Richard Nixon 10 February 1972. (1)

The objective is to dislocate and alienate the population, divorce the people from familiar political landmarks and historical reference points, and direct their efforts into channels ordered by the new administrator class.

The result is regional governance - a government of appointed rather than elected officials.

ENERGY UPDATE

WHAT LESSONS HAVE WE LEARNED FROM THREE MILE ISLAND?

By Dr. Chauncey Starr

Dr. Chauncey Starr, the founding President of the Electric Power Research Institute, became its Vice Chairman in 1978.

Dr. Chauncey Starr

As a result of the Three Mile Island accident, the electric utility industry realized that no matter how good the technical aspects of nuclear energy might be, the institutional aspects that involve organizations of people and their performance really had to be improved. Consequently, the industry is taking three major steps that will have a big effect on raising the quality of operations at all utilities with nuclear plants in the United States.

—The first of these is creation of a Nuclear Safety Analysis Center (NSAC), which will analyze all the technical aspects of the nuclear plants and identify everything that can be done in the way of improving equipment.

—The second step is to start an Institute of Nuclear Power (INPO), which has as its function raising the quality of the management of nuclear stations, raising the quality of the technical operations and raising the quality of the maintenance of these stations to make them as excellent as we know how.

—And the third step is establishment of a mutual insurance fund so that we will have a national group responsibility to maintain insurance against the loss which any utility or any consumer group might suffer as a result of a nuclear accident.

This is a case of an industry taking a very radical set of steps to assume a national responsibility for maintaining the reliability and safety of nuclear power. We know we must have it. We know we must operate it safely. And we know we must do it in the public's interest.

Despite all the government agencies and institutions, we as an industry are saying we know we'll have to "hold the bag" if anything goes wrong. So, we're going to have to take the responsibility and make sure everything goes right.

Prowlers Down, Not Out

After opening the year with four straight wins, the Lincoln high school hockey team host lost three of its last four decisions. But there isn't any panic setting in yet. The Prowlers, considered a prime Section 8 threat at the start of the season, are still for the most part playing good hockey and with a break or two could be 8-0.

The current "skid" started with a 5-3 loss to Fargo South. It was a fluke. A hot goaltender and a bushel basket full of missed scoring opportunities did the Prowlers in that night. They came back to beat Lake of the Woods 8-4 and then last week lost a pair of 4-3 overtime games to East Grand Forks and Greenway-Coleraine.

Obviously when you lose an overtime game you're just as close to winning as you are to losing. Against East Grand Forks the Prowlers scored in the final seconds of regulation time but never had a chance to get started in overtime, losing in just 44 seconds. Against Greenway the Prowlers gave up the tying goal late in the third period and took the highly regarded Raiders to the end of overtime before losing.

East Grand Forks and Greenway were very similar in style with strong, quick skaters. Both teams out-skated Thief River Falls late in the game. But on both occasions, it was the Prowlers' problems in their own end that cost them the games.

"We had problems in the corner in our end all night," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after Saturday's loss at Coleraine. "We're going to have to work on that or we'll continue to have problems all year."

The Raiders took pucks away from the Prowlers in the corners and set up numerous scoring opportunities in front, tying the game in such a manner.

"We should be strong enough to dominate the corner in 75 per cent of the games we play" pointed out Grand. "We have to become more physical in the corner in our end of the rink if we expect to win."

Thief River Falls is just midway through the most-demanding portion of its 1979-80 schedule. The Prowlers draw perennial North Dakota power Grand Forks Central Tuesday in the sports arena, before the Prowlers test themselves against defending Section 8 champion Roseau Saturday night on the Rams' ice. And still to come in the month-long schedule grind is Section 8 challenger Warroad here Tues., Jan. 22; a vastly improved Bemidji team here Fri., Jan. 25; and a rematch at East Grand Forks Tues., Jan. 29.

Don't count Thief River Falls out of the Section 8 race yet, but it's apparent that it'll be a real challenge for anyone to come up with that prized Section 8 trophy in March.

Northmen Face Tough Task

Defending Northwest Division co-champion Northland community college dug itself a hole over the weekend by losing two Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) basketball games to Vermilion 79-66 and Mesabi 81-74.

Earlier Northland coach Chet Engelman said the Northmen needed to pick up at least one win on that MJCAA-opening road trip to Ely and Virginia to be a title contender this winter.

Looking at the Northwest Division race, Engelman says, "9-2 will win it for sure; 8-3 might. So you know where that puts us. We have to win these next three games."

Those "next three games" include a weekend doubleheader here against Northeast Division foes Itasca Friday night and Hibbing Saturday afternoon, followed by a key Wed., Jan. 23, confrontation at Fergus Falls. The Spartans shared the Northwest Division pennant with the Northmen a year ago.

"These next three games are awfully important to us," repeated Engelman. "We have to win the next two to get our confidence back, and then to win at Fergus Falls is a tough order."

On paper, Northland should come out a winner Friday against Itasca, but Saturday's ball game might be tough. Hibbing is expected to challenge Vermilion and Mesabi for a Northeast Division berth in the MJCAA state basketball tournament which draws the top two finishers in each of the four divisions — Northwest, Northeast, Central and Southern.

With a weekend of MJCAA games under their belts against Northeast Division opponents, the Northwest Division shows Fergus Falls off to a 2-0 start, Crookston and Brainerd 1-1 and Northland 0-2.

As usual, Iron Range officiating drew a response from Engelman who likened the calls to theNBA.

Prowlers Face Flyers, Pirates, Broncos

In addition to the Lincoln hockey team and Northland basketball team, the Lincoln high school basketball squad also finds itself facing a demanding week that will find the Prowlers at Bagley Tuesday and at home this weekend against Crookston and International Falls.

"It's going to be a tough week," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters whose club is 5-3. Bagley is a consistently strong Class A team in Region 8, rival Crookston is the Northwest Athletic Conference favorite; and International Falls "just might be the best team we see all year," according to Peters.

Thief River Falls basketball fans will have the opportunity to see two good basketball teams when the Pirates visit Friday night and the Broncos appear here Saturday. And they'll also have the chance to watch Crookston's Tim Knotek, a smooth-shooting 6-3 senior, and International Falls' Howard Arch, a 6-6 center — two of the top performers the Prowlers will face this winter.

"It's going to be tough winning three games, but we'll be in them all," promised Peters. "It'll be a chance for people to see some good basketball."

Peters said sophomore Kevin Sanders, who missed early season drills because of an ankle injury, may see more and more playing time. "We're missing a scoring forward," he pointed out, indicating Sanders may be the person to fill that role.

TRF Rebounds Key In 42-28 Win Saturday

Thief River Falls dominated the boards Saturday in a 42-28 girls high school basketball win over McIntosh-Winger, improving the Prowlers record to 3-3 for the year.

The smaller Scots, outrebounded 40-22, managed to collect just three offensive rebounds all night — none in the first half. Roberta Engel, the Thief River Falls captain, led the Prowlers' board strength with 11 rebounds.

But it wasn't a particularly impressive showing by the Prowlers who shot 25 per cent from the field on an 18-for-73 night. The Scots shot at a 29 per cent clip, 12-for-41. Thief River Falls was 6-for-13 at the free throw line and McIntosh-Winger was 4-for-11.

Ann Goodrich scored 14 points for the winner and Tara Nicholson added 11.

It was a clean sweep for Thief River Falls as the Lincoln junior varsity beat McIntosh-Winger 39-22 behind Paula Meyers' 12 points and the Lincoln freshmen won by a 40-20 margin.

Thief River Falls tackles Region 8AA rivals Bemidji and Crookston this week, playing at Bemidji tonight (Monday) and hosting Crookston Thursday. Both games start at 7:30 p.m.

"It's going to be tough to win at Bemidji," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "But we should beat Crookston at home, I think."

Jury Named To WCCO Radio All-State Team

Lincoln high school senior Bill Jury was named to the WCCO radio all-state hockey team of the week Tuesday night on the station's "Prep Parade" program.

Jury, a goalie, was a member of the season's first hockey team of the week on the "Prep Parade" show. Terry Skrypek of Hill-Murray was named coach of the week.

Announcement of the team was made by Dan Hertsgaard and Sid Hartman. Nominations for the honorary squad are made each week by the Prep Parade advisory board, a panel of outstanding sportswriters and sportscasters representing all regions of Minnesota.

Each member of the all-state squad, as well as coach Skrypek, will receive a certificate from WCCO Radio.

Prep Parade is aired on Tuesday and Thursday nights on WCCO radio. Each broadcast through March 13 will spotlight on all-state team in either hockey, girls basketball or boys basketball.

Prep Parade is normally broadcast at 7:10 p.m.

All-state hockey team of the week roster

Goalies — Jeff Roeschl, Hill Murray; Scott Parenteau, North St. Paul; Bill Jury, Thief River Falls.

Defense — Troy Moon, Rochester John Marshall; Todd Deleveau, Minnetonka; Drey Bradley, Hastings, Tom Kurves, Bloomington Jefferson; Dave Jerome, East Grand Forks.

Forwards — Ted Pearson, Edina East; John Bader, Irondale; John Bergo, St. Cloud Apollo; Bob Clauson, Crookston; Eddie Christian, Warroad; John Johannson, Rochester Mayo; Billy Schultz, Stillwater; Phil Falcone, Chisholm; Kevin Smalley, Duluth Denfeld; Tony Marturano, Chisholm; Jim Hepola, Detroit Lakes; Doug Evgen, Forest Lake; Jim Happe, White Bear Mariner.

THE PUCK SETTLED in the back of the net after Greenway-Coleraine center Todd Lawson beat Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury and Prowlers defenseman Steve Olson to complete a 2-on-1 rush in the second period of Saturday's high school hockey game played at Coleraine. Lawson's goal gave the Raiders a 2-1 first period edge. Greenway went on to win the game 4-3 in overtime. Thief River Falls, now 5-3 for the year, will host Grand Forks Central Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

Lincoln Hockey Team Loses to Greenway-Coleraine . . .

Another Overtime Results In Another 4-3 Loss For Prowlers

Lightning might not strike twice in the same spot, but nobody ever said anything about not zapping the same hockey team. For the second time in five days, the Lincoln high school hockey team was a 4-3 overtime loser Saturday, this time to a strong-skating Greenway outfit at Coleraine.

Pat Guyer, who scored at 6:12 of a scheduled eight-minute sudden-death overtime period, made the Raiders a winner for the first time in a demanding three-game week that saw them lose to neighboring rival Grand Rapids 3-2 Tuesday and drop a surprisingly one-sided 7-3 contest at Chisholm Friday night. Greenway began the week unbeaten and ranked third in the state Associated Press power poll. They're now 7-2-1.

The Prowlers, who led 3-2 until 12:41 of the third period, were beaten by the same 4-3 score in overtime at home against Section 8 rival East Grand Forks Tuesday. But that one ended just 44 seconds into the extra period.

"We prolonged the agony tonight," sighed Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "But I guess it's better to get beat late than early in overtime. At least you get some overtime experience. Against East Grand Forks it didn't last long enough to amount to anything."

But outside of losing, Grand could hardly be disappointed in the Prowlers' showing. Some problems in the corners and a few missed scoring opportunities kept them from picking up a win. "Overall, we didn't play that badly," acknowledged Grand who was coaching in the city where he served as an assistant before becoming the Prowlers' head coach four years ago.

Thief River Falls opened the scoring in the first period on a goal by Bob Fitzgerald at 5:46. Paul Drees' long shot from the right side produced an equally long rebound off to the left where Fitzgerald was coming in on the wing. His quick shot cleanly beat sophomore goalie Joel Troumbly.

Greenway came back with two goals in 69 seconds. Scott Bellefy scored on a 2-on-1 rush, tapping in Dan Andrews' goal mouth feed at 9:33. Then at 10:42, Todd Lawson was left alone in front of Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury to receive a pass that produced a point-blank shot and a 2-1 lead for the Raiders.

But Thief River Falls had the final word in the action-packed first period when Wade Hoppe scored the first of his two goals on the night at 11:42 for a 2-2 tie. Defenseman Dave Geatz started the play by reaching out to keep the puck in play at the blueline in the Greenway end. He turned and shot quickly. Hoppe was there in front to change direction of the shot that trickled across the goal line.

Only noteworthy happening of the second period — save for Jury's outstanding work — was Thief River Falls' go-ahead goal — a picture-perfect 2-on-1 rush involving Thompson and Hoppe that made it 3-2 with just eight seconds remaining. They passed the puck between themselves several times before Thompson's final second pass put Hoppe in alone on the left side, with goalie Mark Adams, who replaced Troumbly at the start of the period when Troumbly aggravated a leg injury, pulled to the right.

The Raiders' quickness set up numerous scoring opportunities in the third period. But with Jury playing superbly and time running down, it looked like the Prowlers would have themselves a big road win. . .until a scramble in front of Jury eventually found Mike Mackey sliding the puck underneath the screened goalie with just 2:19 remaining.

"I feel we should not have given up that tying goal," noted Grand. "We got beat in the corner. We had two of our bigger kids in the corner at the time and that should never have happened."

Greenway continued to show the quickness and skating style that had earned the Raiders' their high ranking by out-shooting Thief River Falls 9-2 in overtime. Greenway was applying pressure in the Thief River Falls end when Guyer grabbed a loose puck that had been banging off skate blades in front of Jury, turned and quickly fired a low hard drive that ended the game with 1:48 left.

"They have a good hockey team," praised Grand. "They moved the puck well. That sure didn't look like a team that can get beat 7-3."

"I think we played real well," pointed out Greenway coach Mick Metzer, a former Section 8 coach at Red Lake Falls and Mount St. Benedict and a college coach at Crookston. "It's the best we've played in probably three-four games."

Metzer was particularly happy with his team's turnabout from the night before at Chisholm. "After last night it would have been easy to pack it in," he admitted. "But we came back and played well. We worked a little harder tonight. We really played better defensively. Last night we just didn't play well defensively."

It was the third overtime win of the year for the Raiders who were celebrating their first win over this group of Thief River Falls players who beat them a year ago 4-3 and who also owned wins over Coleraine at the youth hockey level, including a victory over a state champion Coleraine Bantam team a few years ago.

"The kids were really fired up to play Thief River," pointed out Metzer. "Thief River has a very good club. To beat them has to give us a lift."

Thief River Falls, now 5-3, will host Grand Forks Central Tuesday in the sports arena beginning at 7:30 p.m.

TRF Handles Roseau 65-46

Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team was a 65-46 winner over Roseau Saturday, improving Thief River Falls' record to 5-3 for the year.

Rick Trontvet scored 10 points for the winners who led 18-10 at the end of the first quarter, built a 37-21 halftime lead and made it 51-31 in the third quarter.

Pirates, Wave Lead Section 8 Point Standings

Crookston and East Grand Forks remain unbeaten in Section 8 high school hockey, according to today's (Monday) point standings announced by Don Olson of KTRF radio, the Section 8 publicist. The Pirates, 6-1 overall, are 12-0 in the points won-lost department. The Green Wave is 6-2 in the games won-lost chart but 8-0 in the points standings.

Defending Section 8 champion Roseau faces a pair of challenges this week, playing at Warroad Tuesday and hosting Thief River Falls Saturday. The Warriors lost a surprising 4-3 decision at Detroit Lakes Saturday.

Team Arctic Drivers Win At Montreal

In a final tune-up before this weekend's world's championship races at Eagle River, Wis., Arctic Cat drivers swept the three Sno Pro professional snowmobile races Sunday at Montreal, Que.

Team Arctic's Bob Elsner and Jim Dimmerman won the 340 and 440 races, with Steve Thorsen taking the 340-X event on an Arctic Cat.

In the 340 event, it was Elsner, followed by Dimmerman and Kevin Kimball on a Scorpion.

The 440 finish saw Dimmerman cross the line first, followed by Brad Hulings on a Scorpion and Elsner.

Elsner finished second behind Thorsen in the 340-X feature, followed by Jacques Villeneuve on a Ski-Doo.

REACHING FOR THE basketball, Thief River Falls teammates Greg Miller (52) and Todd Young, tried to gain possession in Saturday's high school basketball game played at Roseau. Miller turned in a strong 14 point, 8-rebound performance and Young grabbed 10 rebounds in the Prowlers' 55-53 win in two overtimes.

GAME-WINNING shot was launched by Thief River Falls guard Kyle Hams just before the final buzzer in the second overtime Saturday that gave the Prowlers a 55-53 high school basketball victory over Roseau. Loren Thacker of the Rams tried to defend against the short base line jumper. Hams scored 19 points in the win that improved the Prowlers' record to 5-3.

[illegible]ge Rams 55-53 In Double Overtime Game Saturday

Kyle Hams' short base line jump shot beat the buzzer ending the second overtime Saturday, giving Thief River Falls an exciting 55-53 high school basketball win at Roseau.

Hams' last-second heroics ended a marathon battle that featured a 49-49 tie at the end of regulation time and a 51-51 stalemate after the first three-minute overtime period.

"We're happy we won," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters, "but actually, we didn't play well. We did not shoot well, especially in the first half. We just weren't moving."

Game-high scorer with 19 points, Hams improvised on his final shot when a programmed play did not materialize. Deadlocked at 53-53 going into the final minute, Thief River Falls held the ball while calling two time-outs to plot strategy.

"We tried to set something up — one of our regular plays," recalled Peters. "But it didn't work. He Hams) then took it upon himself and got free on the baseline."

Thief River Falls, down 1-0 before the game even started when the Prowlers were charged with a technical foul for grabbing the rim as they came out of the lockerroom for pre-game warm-ups, led 10-9 at the end of the first quarter, went ahead 24-19 at halftime and held on to a 37-35 third quarter edge.

Greg Miller and Jim Nyland joined Hams in double figures for the Prowlers with 14 and 12 points, respectively, with Miller adding eight rebounds to draw praise from Peters for his strong showing. Clay Larson scored 18 points for the Rams, beaten 67-49 by Thief River Falls in the season opener.

"We knew they were going to be a lot tougher up there," pointed out Peters. "They have the potential to be a good ball club."

Thief River Falls shot just 39 per cent from the field, hitting 21 of 54 shots. Roseau shot 47 per cent by making 21 of 45 shots. The Prowlers fared much better at the free throw line where they were 13-for-18. The Rams were 11-17 at the line. The Prowlers finished with a 34-25 rebound advantage, with Todd Young grabbing 10 rebounds for the winners.

Weathered out of a scheduled Friday game against East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, now 5-3, will be at Bagley Tuesday before returning home for a weekend doubleheader that will feature Crookston Friday and International Falls Saturday.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Jim Nyland drove the lane for a basket Saturday against Roseau in the Prowlers' 55-53 double overtime high school basketball victory over the host Rams. Greg Miller and Kevin Sanders (seated on the floor), looked on for the Prowlers. Nyland finished with 12 points, scoring with 1:40 left in the second three-minute overtime to put the Prowlers ahead 53-51. Loren Thacker came right back to tie it for the Rams, but Thief River Falls' Kyle Hams won it at the final buzzer.

Newfolden Girls Win 20-14 . . .

Defense Dominates MCC Win Over Middle River

Neither team played a slow-down game, but the final score might indicate otherwise Thursday as Marshall County Central defeated Middle River 20-14 in girls high school basketball.

"It was a good game," insisted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, whose team pushed its record to 7-0 with the victory over the rival Skippers who dropped to 4-4 with their fourth straight loss. "Nobody held the ball; they were just looking for the good shots. We got the good shots, but they wouldn't go in for us."

Marshall County Central shot just 18 per cent from the field for the game, hitting only nine of 47 attempts. Middle River fared little better, connecting on just seven of 31 shots for 22 per cent.

Middle River managed to score just two points in the first half, trailing 8-2 at the end of the first quarter and down 14-2 at halftime. The Nordics led 17-6 after three quarters.

"It was a defensive game both ways," noted Mjelde. "The only reason we won was that we played good defense."

Dawn Nelson scored 12 of the 14 Middle River points. Rosalyn Knutson led the visitors with nine points.

Free throws did little to improve either team's offense as Marshall County Central went 2-for-12 at the line and Middle River was 0-for-1.

Marshall County Central is scheduled to be at Plummer tonight (Monday) before returning home to host Grygla Thursday and Lake of the Woods Saturday. Middle River will be at Karlstad Thursday.

Grygla 61
Roseau 52

Grygla built a 28-point halftime lead and coasted to a 61-52 victory over Roseau Thursday.

The Eagles, bouncing back from their first loss of the year earlier in the week at the hands of Goodridge 51-49, jumped out to a 25-6 first quarter lead. It was 45-17 at halftime. A 22 per cent second half shooting performance held the Eagles in check after intermission, although they still maintained a 55-31 third quarter spread.

"We opened it up in the first half, but we seemed to get slower and slower in the second half," admitted Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "It got to the point where we were just walking back on defense."

Four players from both teams scored in double figures, with Grygla's Jill Saurdiff collecting a game-high 19 points.

Grygla finished with a 28-for-70, 39 per cent shooting night from the field and 5-for-17 effort at the free throw line. Roseau was 19-for-66 from the field for 30 per cent and 14-for-32 at the line.

The Eagles' lone outing this week will be Thursday at Marshall County Central.

Vermilion, Mesabi Hand Northmen MJCAA Losses

Opening weekend of Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) competition was not a good one for the Northland community college basketball team as the Northmen — first of all set back on day because of stormy weather — lost both ends of an Iron Range road trip against Northeast Division foes — losses that count in Northland's Northwest Division standings.

Friday's blizzard-like weather altered Northland's weekend schedule that originally had the Northmen playing Mesabi at Virginia Friday night and Vermilion at Ely Saturday afternoon. Instead, Northland faced Vermilion Saturday night and met Mesabi Sunday afternoon, losing 79-66 at Ely and dropping an 81-74 decision at Virginia.

"We got beat one and we lost one," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "At Vermilion we ran into a helluva ball club," he explained. "At Mesabi we gave one away."

Northland faces two more Northeast Division foes this weekend, but this time at home, hosting Itasca Friday night at 8 and entertaining Hibbing Saturday afternoon at

Vermilion 79
Northland 66

An outstanding 37-point, 19-rebound game by freshman Terry Harris went for naught Saturday as the foul-plagued Northmen lost to Vermilion 79-66.

An evenly matched first half featured seven ties and seven lead changes before Vermilion pulled up with a 40-35 edge at intermission. The Ironmen then widened the gap in the second half when Northland struggled with foul problems that claimed Harris, Vince Parker and Mike Carriere, the team's top three performers.

The tall Vermilion ball club featured five double figure scorers, headed by Mark Eisenbacher's 19 points. Parker scored 12 points for the Northmen to join Harris in double figures.

Northland matched Vermilion in the field goal department with 29, but the Ironmen were 21-for-27 at the free throw line where the Northmen were 8-for-14. From the field, Northland was 28-for-74 for 33 per cent and Vermilion was 29-for-72 for 40 per cent. Vermilion held a 53-47 rebound edge and the two teams split 40 turnovers.

Mesabi matched Vermilion's 21-for-27 free throw shooting in Sunday's 81-74 win over the Northmen who outscored the Norsemen from the field by eight points, but had just a 6-for-11 afternoon at the line.

There were seven lead changes and 16 ties in the game. Mesabi led 41-39 at halftime but didn't grab the lead for good until Scott Wirtanen, the game's top scorer with 29 points, scored with 4:48 remaining to put the Norsemen on top 65-64.

Free throws then locked things up for the Norsemen who scored 10 of their last 12 points at the free throw line over the final 3½ minutes.

Kyle Thoreson nearly matched Wirtanen with a 22-point performance. And Northland had the same type of one-two punch as Vince Parker scored 23 points and Terry Harris collected 20.

Northland was 34-for-74 from the field for 46 per cent. Mesabi was 30-for-70 for 43 per cent. The Northmen outrebounded the Norsemen 52-43, but also led in turnovers, 29-23.

North Border Games Wiped Out By Storm

Friday's stormy weather wiped out the area sports schedule, which included North Border Conference high school basketball games involving Marshall County Central-Badger, Grygla-Middle River, Roseau-Greenbush and Warroad-Lancaster.

In a Saturday night ball game, Roseau lost a non-conference 55-53 double overtime decision to Thief River Falls.

This week's North Border play will find Badger at Roseau and Warroad at Middle River Tuesday and Lake of the Woods at Grygla, Marshall County Central at Warroad and Roseau at Middle River Friday.

Todd Robinson of Lake of the Woods leads the North Border Conference in scoring with a 22.3 average, followed closely by Bob Dostal of Badger who is scoring at a 22.1 clip. In all games, Robinson has a 21.6 scoring average and Dostal is 21.2.

TRF Is 3-2 JV Winner At Coleraine

Thief River Falls spotted Greenway-Coleraine a 2-0 first period lead, then broke a 2-2 tie with a pair of third period goals Saturday to come away a 4-2 junior varsity high school hockey winner.

Jim Dillon cut Greenway's early lead to 2-1 in the first period on a goal from Jeff Moser and Rick Engelstad. It became 2-2 in the second period when Grant Anderson scored on assists from Mike Torgeson and Bill Sampson.

Todd Anderson broke the tie in the third period and Dillon added an insurance goal. Mosher and Engelstad assisted on both plays.

The win improved Thief River Falls' record to 6-1-1.

Grafton Tips Freshmen By 52-49 Margin

A three-point first quarter edge for Grafton held up as the winning margin Thursday in a 52-49 freshman high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

Grafton led 14-11 at the end of the first quarter, went into the lockeroom at halftime up 27-22 and carried a 43-36 edge into the final quarter.

Mark Gere and Kirk Jensen scored 19 and 16 points, respectively, for Thief River Falls, losing for the fourth straight time this winter.

South junior high of Grand Forks will be in Thief River Falls Thursday for a 3 p.m. freshman game.

Wildlife Is Featured On 1980 Calendar

Does Minnesota have caribou? Which quail scurries away on foot? Is the skunk a friend of man? Which wild duck's beauty was almost fatal? Why is the pheasant population declining?

These nature questions and many others are skillfully explored and answered in the 1980 edition of the official "Wildlife of America" conservation calendar, a useful reference for every age. The information-packed calendar features the theme "America's Wildlife is Our Heritage," and it serves as a daily reminder that our heritage of wildlife can be preserved only through observing basic conservation practices.

The unique calendar-almanac, a great tradition for nearly three decades, has featured well over 300 wildlife species. Early editions are today prized as collectors' items. It is the brainchild of Minnesota's Roger Preuss. Among the many wildlife projects Preuss supports, he has collaborated with Walt Disney and the National Wildlife Federation in the promotion of wildlife week, and with the Holy Land conservation fund in restoring wildlife habitat in the biblical countries. Preuss has been given credit in his work as artist, author and naturalist, for helping arouse the contemporary concern for nature and the growing movement to safeguard the vital habitat.

The 26-page appointment style calendar features authoritative animal biographies, valuable tips for outdoor enthusiasts, moon phases, fishing forecasts and 12 authentic paintings of North American wildlife in full color, painted and written by Preuss, a Waterville native who is Minnesota's and the nation's most widely known wildlife artist.

The educational calendar is widely used by schools and libraries. Postpaid copies, $3.95 each, may be obtained from Wildlife of America, Box 556-J, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

Mesabi Sweeps Hockey Series

Mesabi impressed Northland community college hockey coach Bob Lundbohm Friday night and Saturday afternoon as the Norsemen swept the Northmen 13-5, 13-4 in an MJCAA hockey series played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

"They were really good," praised Lundbohm. "They could really move the puck around. They out-played us in every way."

The double loss dropped Northland's Minnesota junior college athletic association record to 0-4. The Northmen lost a season-opening weekend series in mid-December to Hibbing, a team Mesabi split with in its only previous MJCAA action of the year. But Lundbohm figures Mesabi has the better team.

"I think Mesabi has a better hockey team," said Lundbohm when comparing the Norsemen against the defending MJCAA champion Hibbing squad. "Mesabi uses a lot of finesse to beat you. Hibbing tries to wear you down physically."

Northland will be at Crookston Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. game against the Roseau-stocked Trojans before going to International Falls to face Rainy River in a weekend series that features games Friday night at 7:30 and Saturday afternoon at 1.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

Winter camping in a tent without heat is almost our exclusive field. In major campgrounds we have used, we have usually been the only ones that winter. Occasionally they have had one other. We are not heroes. We have always included it in our ski trip and are set up to do it comfortably. It is economical and convenient. Many campgrounds are open in the winter and are certainly not crowded.

Do not attempt winter camping without being sure of your preparations, for it does not forgive mistakes and can be dangerous.

Some of the equipment is quite expensive, but with care it holds up well, and will save enough to pay for itself several times. It frees you of the problem of reservations and some ski area accommodations are expensive.

First the tent must be tight, strong and stable, for winter winds tend to be severe. Be sure it has a waterproof floor tightly sewed to the tent. We have been pleased with the giant four-man Thermos pop tent. It is the same temperature inside the tent as outside but it does slow the wind down, some.

You need a comfortable camping mattress. We recommend the new polyurethane foam mattresses since they are soft and very warm. Do not try it with a thickness of less than three inches. We use six inches. They are light to handle and roll up into a fairly small package for storage.

Most essential is a good sleeping bag. Since the places we visit are often the coldest in the nation and at fairly high elevation, we do not use a bag rated for less than 40 degrees below zero F. Dacron fill will not do this, it must be down. Get the oversized (90 by 90 inch) square bags. They have room to take things and your clothing in it with you and they will be warm in the morning. Our bags have five pounds of down in them are rated for 50 below zero. We have always been snug and comfortable in them.

When you get up in the morning it is the coldest time of the day and your body's metabolism is at its lowest ebb. If it is cold, to be comfortable your clothing must be much warmer than required for skiing. If you are not willing to do this do not try winter camping. We have down underwear, down or felt boots, down mittens and extra warm down parkas.

Do not camp at over 7,000 feet altitude winter or summer. You often will not sleep well and mountain sickness may make you miserable.

We carry most of our clothes in laundry bags. They are easier to stow in the car. Have your comfort articles and a flashlight in a zipper case you can take into your sleeping bag with you.

Winter camping can be comfortable, convenient and greatly reduce the cost of your trip.

People in our part of the country and from our low elevation when planning a ski trip should go west but not south. Here you will find excellent skiing at lower elevations than those further south where the elevation is too high for comfort.

Going west the first ski area you will find at our latitude, with 2,000 feet of vertical available, is Red Lodge, Montana. I called Bill Barnett, the manager, on November 17 and they had just opened — the first ski area in Montana to do so. This is because they have excellent snow making over the lower half of their area.

If you want to travel to Yellowstone park in the summer, the most beautiful approach is the northeast entrance by the way of the Red Lodge to Cooke City highway. This road over the Beartooth plateau is one of the world's most spectacular mountain roads. Nearby is Granite peak, Montana's highest and Grasshopper glacier, with millions of grasshoppers in it.

In this lovely setting and overlooking the beautiful Bighorn basin is the Red Lodge ski area. In operation for many years it is up to date and continues to improve. Lazy M Run from the top with 2,000 feet of vertical is a great one, that intermediate skiers will enjoy. Runs from the midway chalet are delightful. A new area just north of base chalet is perfect for a novice skier, with a broad expanse of gentle slope we found covered by packed velvet snow.

Red Lodge is a fine ski area for those of every skill. They have a fine ski shop, ski rentals, a ski school and two excellent chalets. With four double chair lifts the lines are rarely long. They operate from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., seven days a week November 17 to April. Lift tickets are $10 a day. The base elevation is 7,400 feet. Snow dressing is excellent.

This is a fine place for family skiing with a friendly atmosphere. The food is very good. We recommend Red Lodge. Good living accommodations are available in the delightful western mountain town of Red Lodge.

GAME-TYING GOAL with just 2:19 remaining in the third period was scored by Greenway-Coleraine center Mike Mackey (9, far right) as Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury, along with the Prowlers' Bob Fitzgerald (8), Brian Ranum (3) and Scott Wiebolt (2), watched the puck hit the back of the net. The goal produced a 3-3 tie, with the Raiders winning Saturday's high school hockey game 4-3 in overtime at Coleraine. It was the Prowlers' second 4-3 overtime loss of the week.

Northwomen Host Bottineau Tonight . . .

Turnovers Plague NCC In Two Weekend Losses

Turnovers — 87 of them — plagued the Northland community college women's basketball team in a two-game weekend series on the Iron Range that produced losses to Vermilion 55-35 Saturday night and 64-51 to Mesabi Sunday afternoon.

"It's been our problem all year," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson as she discussed her team's turnover woes. "I don't mind if they shoot and miss, but if they don't get the shot off that's a different story."

Weather altered Northland's weekend schedule that was suppose to have the Northwomen playing Mesabi at Virginia Friday night and Vermilion at Ely Saturday afternoon.

Winless in eight starts, Northland will be right back in action tonight (Monday) when Bottineau visits Thief River Falls for a 5 p.m. game.

Vermilion. 55
Northland 35

Forty-one Northland turnovers surfaced in Saturday's 55-35 loss to Vermilion.

Vermilion built a 32-18 halftime lead and was never challenged.

Northland did not have very impressive numbers. In addition to the turnovers, the Northmen were just 14-for-54 from the field for 26 per cent and 7-of-21 from the free throw line. Vermilion was 26-for-75 from the field for 35 per cent and 3-for-18 at the line. Vermilion, charged with 29 turnovers, was out-rebounded 46-43.

This time Northland wasn't alone in turning the ball over as Mesabi nearly matched Northland's 46 turnovers with 37 of their own in a 64-51 win Sunday.

Karol Podpeskar scored 22 points for the winners who led 32-24 at halftime. Julie Easton and Julie Anderson scored 13 and 12 points, respectively, for the Northwomen, but it was Tracey Nelson's strong floor game that pleased the Northland coach. Nelson came up with 12 loose ball recoveries after getting six the night before.

In the shooting department, Northland was 21-for-60 for 35 per cent from the field and 9-for-21 at the free throw line. Mesabi was 27-for-76 for 36 per cent from the floor and 10-for-23 in free throws.

Bobcat Pelt Exports In N. D. Halted

Bobcat pelts taken this season can be exported from all states except Florida, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, New Mexico, the "eastern region" of Oregon and the "high plains ecological area" of Texas, under a December 12 ruling by Judge June L. Green of the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

Exports of all bobcat pelts taken during the 1979-80 season have been blocked since November 9 when the court issued a temporary restraining order in the lawsuit brought by the defenders of wildlife alleging that the government had insufficient data to assure that exports would not be detrimental to the survival of the species. The suit was filed against the Fish and Wildlife Service and the endangered species scientific authority. The ESSA is a seven-member inter-agency committee that advises the service on whether exports can be allowed without being detrimental to the survival of species listed under the 54-nation treaty, the convention on international trade in endangered species of wild fauna and flora. The ESSA based its advice to the service on information submitted by the various states and the public. The lawsuit did not involve the domestic law, the endangered species act.

Last year, according to statistics reported to the Fish and Wildlife Service, 24,389 bobcat pelts and 411 garments containing the fur were exported from the United States to major European countries, most of which are also signatories to the convention. Two of the seven states from which exports remain blocked — New Mexico and Oregon — were among the top six exporting states last year. Louisiana led the way with 3,434, followed by New Mexico, 2,525; Georgia, 2,300; Arizona, 2,107; California, 1,891; and Oregon, 1,022. Fur experts place the value of bobcat pelts at $200-$250 each to the trapper.

The judge enjoined the Fish and Wildlife Service from "issuing export permits and from otherwise allowing the export of bobcat pelts taken during the 1979-80 season" from the other five States for the following reasons:

North Dakota: "Knowledge of the bobcat in North Dakota is minimal. Population densities are not available and statewide distribution is imprecisely known. . .no bag or possession limits." North Dakota exported 20 pelts last year.

Wisconsin: "Trapping pressure is increasing and the harvest is declining throughout much of the state, particularly the northern regions where the bobcat was formerly common." According to statistics reported to the FWS, Wisconsin exported eight bobcat pelts during calendar year 1978.

Massachusetts: "Population estimates are tenuous and outdated and based on troublesome assumptions. The most recent age structure analysis of that population is unsatisfactory."

DNR Catfish Program Is On Upswing

Minnesota's program to expand the sport of catfish angling in the state made strides in 1979, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

Herry Kuehn, DNR fisheries chief, said a total of 134,551 catfish were stocked in state waters during the year. In addition to the Crow river, seven lakes in southern Minnesota received catfish. The fish ranged in size from fry to adults.

Total weight of the stocked catfish was 4,908 pounds.

The fish were obtained from state fish hatcheries in Kansas and Illinois and from a national fish hatchery in Ohio.

Lakes stocked in 1979 included Marion, McLeod county; Richardson and Big Swan, Meeker county; Kandiyohi, Kandiyohi county; West Graham, Nobles county; Rebecca, Hennepin county; and Allie, Renville county.

Kuehn said adult and yearling catfish were planted in the first five lakes listed above and they will provide catcheable size fish for anglers in 1980.

He noted that catfish are a highly prized game fish and food fish in other states but have received little attention from Minnesota anglers.

In addition to providing another game fish for sportsmen, said Kuehn, the department is hopeful that the flathead catfish that are stocked will help control an over abundance of bullheads in some southern Minnesota lakes.

Wildlife Is Massacred In Uganda Park By Tanzanian Troops, Says NWF

In a bloody 3½-month sequel to the Ugandan-Tanzanian war of early 1979, Tanzanian soldiers slaughtered nearly 14,000 wild animals in Uganda — including thousands of hippopotamuses and scores of lions and elephants — International Wildlife magazine reports in its current issue.

Using machine guns and even hand grenades, the undisciplined Tanzanian troops, occupying Uganda as a "security" force following dictator Idi Amin's overthrow, wiped out about one third of all large mammals in Uganda's huge Ruwenzori national park, according to the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication.

In a signed story titled "I Witnessed a Massacre," Karl G. Van Orsdol, a Palo Alto, Cal., wildlife biologist, tells of seeing one section of the park turned into "a graveyard of dead and dying animals," with soldiers earning as much as $1,000 a day for killing ten hippos. Ugandan merchants then sold the meat off the carcasses for as much as $2,000 per animal, according to Van Orsdol's account, although there was no acute shortage of food in the country at the time.

Van Orsdol, who went to Africa in 1976 to study lions at the Uganda Institute of Ecology, first saw wildlife killed by soldiers in March of 1979, when Idi Amin's troops, camping in Ruwenzori, started shooting animals for food. They hadn't been paid in months, they explained.

The Institute staff was relieved when Tanzanian troops "liberated" the park, but within a few weeks "more animals were being killed than the (Tanzanian) troops could possibly eat," he reports.

In mid-June Van Orsdol traveled 100 miles south to Ishasha, an isolated section of the park. At first, it seemed that area had been spared, and he resumed his study of lions. "Then," he writes, "while sitting out on the plains in the hot midday sun, I heard a loud rumble in the distance. About three miles south, I saw a large, open-backed truck moving straight toward a herd of resting buffalo. When it approached to within 400 feet of the herd, about ten Tanzanian soldiers standing in the back opened fire with their machine guns. The truck chased the fleeing herd for more than a mile as the soldiers continued to fire. Many buffalo fell to the ground dead or dying, while others limped away to die."

Attempts to reason with the troops proved fruitless. In answer to his pleas, one soldier pointed a gun at Van Orsdol's head. "He informed me that he could execute anyone who stood in his way," Van Orsdol recalls in International Wildlife. "Besides," the soldier continued, "if you don't let us kill the animals, then we will rob the people." The soldier said he hadn't been paid for six months.

In July, after deciding he must leave Uganda, the California scientist made a final heartbreaking trip along the shore of the park's Lake Edward. "We passed carcass after carcass of hippo, sun-bleached, with legs pointed skyward," he writes. "After a three-hour trip, our notebook carried grim statistics: 82 hippos seen alive on the trip, 75 dead."

In August, the day before Van Orsdol left the country, he and a Ugandan colleague reviewed their figures on the number of animals killed in the past 3½ months. Their tally: 6,000 hippopotamuses out of a total park population of 14,000, 5,000 Uganda kob, an orange-red antelope, 2,000 buffalo, 400 topi, another species of antelope, 100 elephants, and 70 lions. That's nearly 14,000 animals out of a total park population of 46,000 large mammals. Some of the lions were killed by hand grenades.

The new Ugandan government imposed a five-year ban on hunting a few days after Van Orsdol's departure.

CO-CAPTAIN OF the Lincoln high school hockey team, senior Wade Hoppe put Thief River Falls ahead 3-2 late in the second period of Saturday's game at Coleraine when he flipped the puck into the net a split second before this photograph was taken. Hoppe's goal, coming with just eight seconds left in the period, capped a 2-on-1 rush by the Prowlers. However, the Raiders came back at the end for a 4-3 overtime victory.

Rainfall

Years ago it was not considered unfashionable to use gathered rainfall for our hair shampoo, along with a bar of soap rubbed against the scalp, working up masses of luxuriant suds.

Additional rainwater was used to rinse the hair many times, presenting a super-fine glossy effect to the hair and even made the scalp feel cleaner and healthier.

In those years past one didn't find it essentially important to one's peace of mind to shampoo every day. Most people used a hair brush several times a day and this dept the hair and scalp quite clean.

A shampoo once a week — or twice at most — unless one had very thin hair or none at all, seemed adequate haircare. However, ladies had heavy masses of hair which took them a day or more to dry, even after toweling.

Menfolks with very heavy or long hair and full beard toweled their heads ferociously, winding up in front of their kitchen oven or fireplace to complete the drying.

Oftentimes vinegar was diluted and added to the rinsing of hair following a shampoo. This made the hair soft and shining and aided combing, as snarles just rolled away under the rinse.

In those days men and women wore night caps to bed.

Bathing became an event, with the entire family engaged in the process. Some of the children piled into one bathtub all at once, or in some cases, a bath took place in the family's wash tub setting in the kitchen, filled with well water, rain water or "city" water, depending upon the size of the wage earner's income.

It's a different story today. The corner drug store or hair salon has everything necessary for haircare.

Today's rainfalls are dangerous to us all in every possible manner. No longer would we consider using rainwater for our shampoo rinsing. Children should also be advised not to eat the snow even though it may appear as clean and pure, it is laced with pollutants.

Most of the rain which falls over the eastern U.S. is actually diluted sulfuric and nitric acid, according to the National Wildlife Federation. Sulfur from industry — refineries, metal smelters, power plants — contributes 60 to 70 per cent of the acidity, with most of the remainder being nitrogen oxides from auto emissions.

New Year

"We reap what we sow". . . but paraphrasing John Donne, noted 17th Century English poet, "no man is an island; we are all diminished when any part of our natural inheritance is lost. So when the alarm bell sounds, don't ask for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee. It tolls for us."

Bill Keenan is an intern writer for the National Wildlife Federation. He writes for the monthly "Conservation News", which is an educational service for the FWS.

In November and December, 1979, Keenan wrote a two-part story entitled "Tropical Deforestation: Getting The Green Out." We sincerely hope that interested conservationists will make every effort to obtain copies of these issues.

In his story he stated, "The national cancer institute predicts a major setback in the anti-cancer campaign if tropical destruction persists." His article describes global transformations resulting in earth changes, affecting climatic alterations as forests are destroyed, watershed sources become exceedingly scarce, eventually creating world-hunger.

Keenan has made it clear how water resources are affected by deforestation, and how this does affect America and all of the world.

But what has this to do with the cancer campaign? Deforestation causes the elimination of certain wild plants and animals needed for our drug prescriptions. Of 1,500 Costa Rican plants studied, about 15 per cent had potential for fighting cancer, according to Keenan's article.

Grand Prix

On January 19 at 11 a.m. the Willmar Eagles will hold the "200" grand prix sanctioned by the international cross country snowmobile federation.

This will be a challenging race over lakes and land, 32 miles per lap.

For more information write to Sharon Bredeson, Route 4, Box 349, Willmar, Minnesota 56201. The phone number is 612-235-3331. Entries close at 9 p.m. January 18.

Mississippi River

Dick Bach who operates the Wapeshaw Resort at Wabasha on the Mississippi river sends this note:

"Crappies and bluegills are hitting very well in the back waters of the Mississippi. Limits of three-quarter pound bluegills not uncommon. They are just starting to get on the ice of Lake Pepin. Walleye and sauger fishing is always real good in the month of January."

Reminder

The DNR wants to remind fishermen that 1979 licenses are valid until March 1, 1980. This means that sportsmen who will be fishing after January 1 will not be required to purchase new licenses after the New Year but may continue using their present licenses through February 29, 1980. The same applies to hunters and trappers.

Four years ago the law was changed establishing a March 1 to March 1 license year for the convenience of the sportsmen.

THE PUBLIC INTEREST

A Positive Action Program Protects The Nonviolent

Combating crime in the streets anywhere can help keep people safer everywhere.

Women, children, the elderly and millions of peaceful people may find their world a little safer, thanks to the dedication and courage of a group of professional peace-keepers.

Many people have said that police forces here might benefit from studying these ayudables of Argentina. These South American police forces protect the civil rights of all those people who are opposed to crime in the streets and who want police protection against it.

Their emerging victory over the abusados, the criminals, as shown by figures indicating sharply decreasing crime, increasing tourism and trade and growing recognition that cities in Argentina are among the safest in the world.

In the contest between the law-abiding people on the one hand and the violent criminal element on the other, the good news is in Argentina, at least, that the good guys have been winning, and the bad guys have been losing.

Perhaps part of this is due to the interesting idea Argentines have developed about the role the government should play in the contest. Instead of being neutral, or acting as a referee, the government of Argentina is favoring the peace-keepers.

The crime-fighting efforts of the Argentines can be seen by peace-loving people all over the world as an aid in making the world safer for everybody.

LEGAL NOTICE

January 14, 1980
Ordinance No. 35, 2nd Series
An Ordinance Amending The Electric Service Rates For Electrical Power Supplied By The City Of Thief River Falls

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, ORDAINS:

Section 1. City Code, Section 3.81, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 3.81. ELECTRIC SERVICE RATES AND CHARGES.

Subd. 1. ELECTRIC RESIDENTIAL SERVICE-ALL PURPOSE-UNCONTROLLED (Closed to New Space & Water Heating Installations.)

Residential Rates. The following rates shall be charged and collected for the use of electricity for light and power in private residences and in all flats and rooms used solely for private residence purposes on an uncontrolled basis (CLOSED TO NEW SPACE HEATING AND-OR WATER HEATING INSTALLATIONS.)

THIS RATE IS AVAILABLE ONLY TO AN APPROVED SPACE HEATING AND-OR WATER HEATING INSTALLATION SERVED PRIOR TO JANUARY 14, 1980.

Rate No. 1980-1

RATE:
Customer Charge: $1.50 per month
Energy Charge: (Without Load Shedding)
For the first 400 KWH per month: 3.00 cents KWH; Excess KWH per month: 2.75 cents KWH.

THE RATE SHOWN ABOVE IS SUBJECT TO A POWER SUPPLY COST RIDER (SEE SUBD. 8), AND STATE SALES TAX. THE CUSTOMER CHARGE IS THE MINIMUM CHARGE AND IS IN ADDITION TO ANY ENERGY USED.

Subd. 2. ELECTRIC RESIDENTIAL SERVICE-ALL PURPOSE-CONTROLLED (Available only for consumers with electricity as the primary heat source.)

Residential Rates. The following rates shall be charged and collected for the use of electricity for light and power in private residences and in all flats and rooms used solely for private residence purposes on a controlled basis. No new space heating or water heating installation made after January 14, 1980, will be served at this rate or any other rate without a load control which will be furnished by the electric utility and installed by the customer at the direction of the utility. Such service is subject to interruption during peak hours at the option of the electric utility department. Rates to installations with load shedding capability are available to all present and future space heating and water heating installations under Rate No. 1980-1A as follows: (See Subd. 7B)

Rate No. 1980-1A

RATE:
Customer Charge: $1.50 per month.
Energy Charge: (With Load Shedding — 80 per cent).
For the first 400 KWH per month: 3.00 cents KWH; Next 400 KWH per month: 2.75 cents KWH; Excess KWH per month: 2.30 cents KWH.
Energy Charge: (With Load Shedding — 100 per cent)
For the first 400 KWH per month: 3.00 cents KWH; Next 400 KWH per month: 2.75 cents KWH; Excess KWH per month: 2.10 cents KWH.

THE RATE SHOWN ABOVE IS SUBJECT TO A POWER SUPPLY COST RIDER (SEE SUBD. 8), AND STATE SALES TAX. THE CUSTOMER CHARGE IS THE MINIMUM CHARGE AND IS IN ADDITION TO ANY ENERGY USED.

Subd. 3. SMALL GENERAL SERVICE RATE-COMMERCIAL.

Availability. Available in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, to any commercial or industrial customer for single phase or three phase electric service supplied through one meter. For the use of electric energy in all churches and in all buildings, stores, offices, manufacturing plants, and other places occupied for business or commercial and manufacturing purposes and for any use other than residential.

Rate No. 1980-2

RATE:
Customer Charge: $3.00 per month.
Energy Charge:
For the first 1,000 KWH per month, 4.00 cents KWH; For the next 3,000 KWH per month, 3.00 cents KWH; Excess KWH per month, 2.75 cents KWH.

When a customer's monthly use exceeds 15,000 KWH for four consecutive months, the Thief River Falls Electric Utility at its option or the customer's request will install a demand meter for metering and determination of which rate the customer should be billed.

When the Thief River Falls Electric Utility determines that HP should be used as the minimum bill, the charges shall be as follows: First 3 H.P. $1.50; All over 3 H.P., $.75.

Power Factor Below 95 per cent. Any establishment where power factor is below 95 per cent will be required to correct same to 95 per cent. At the option of the City, a penalty will be added to the consumer's monthly bill according to the following chart until the correction has been made.

95 per cent to 100 per cent P.F., No Penalty; 86 per cent through 94 per cent P.F., 4 per cent Penalty; Zero through 85 per cent P.F., 5 per cent Penalty.

After the consumer's P.F. has been determined, the City will not be obligated to take additional readings until the consumer has taken action to correct his P.F.

No consumer shall maintain a leading P.F. beyond 95 per cent leading.

Discounts

Primary Metering 2 per cent Discount; Through customer owned transformers, 3 per cent Discount; Primary metering and through customer owned transformers, 5 per cent Discount.

Commercial Metering. A customer must have a 300 K.W. load or larger to qualify for primary metering and then the decision of having secondary or primary metering is solely at the discretion of the City.

Subd. 4. GENERAL SERVICE-COMMERCIAL HEAT (Available only for consumers with electricity as the primary heat source.)

Availability. Available in the City of Thief River Falls to any Electric Commercial heating service installation supplied through a separate meter for the use of electric energy in all establishments other than that used solely for residential purposes.

All consumers will be charged at the (without load shedding) rate until such time that the proper load shedding equipment is installed.

The load control will be furnished by the City and installed by the consumer together with all other equipment, labor, and materials which will be furnished and installed by the consumer.

No new Electric Commercial heating service installation made after January 14, 1980, will be served at this rate or any other rate without a load control which will be furnished by the electric utility and installed by the customer at the direction of the utility. Such service is subject to interruption during peak hours at the option of the electric utility department. Rates to installations with load shedding capability are available to all present and future electric commercial heating service installations.

Rate No. 1980-3

RATE:
Customer Charge: $3.00 per month.
Energy Charge: (Without Load Shedding).
All KWH per month, 2.75 cents per KWH.
Energy Charge: (With 80 per cent Load Shedding).
First 800 KWH per month, 2.75 cents per KWH; Excess KWH per month, 2.35 cents per KWH.
Energy Charge: (With 100 per cent Load Shedding).
First 800 KWH per month, 2.75 cents per KWH; Excess KWH per month, 2.25 cents per KWH.

Where a heat pump is installed for heating and cooling from the same unit the City may charge for the electrical energy as follows:

1. All energy for both heating and cooling at the commercial heat rate 1980-3.
2. All energy used in the heating months at the commercial heat rate 1980-3.
3. All energy used in the cooling months at the regular small general service commercial rate 1980-2.
4. By adding the energy used in the cooling months to the energy used by the customer under the Small General Service Rate No. 1980-2 Commercial.

THE RATE SHOWN ABOVE IS SUBJECT TO A POWER SUPPLY COST RIDER (SEE SUBD. 8), AND STATE SALES TAX. THE CUSTOMER CHARGE IS THE MINIMUM CHARGE AND IS IN ADDITION TO ANY ENERGY USED.

Subd. 5. LARGE GENERAL SERVICE RATE-INDUSTRIAL.

Availability. Available in the City of Thief River Falls to any commercial industrial and institutional customers as single business establishments for all power and lighting requirements, when all service hereunder is provided through one set of meters and at a single point of delivery.

Applicable. To commercial or industrial customers for combined lighting and power purposes. Service will be rendered at the utility system standard secondary voltage, single or three phase, or at primary voltage designated by the utility system as the service voltage available in the area for the size of load to be served. Special voltage transformers for lighting and other purposes shall be owned and maintained by the customer.

Rate No. 1980-4

RATE:
DEMAND CHARGE FOR SERVICE AT SECONDARY VOLTAGE:
40 kilowatts or less per month, $146.00; Excess kilowatts per month, $3.65 per KW.
PLUS ENERGY CHARGE OF:
All kilowatt hours per month at $.016 per KWH.
PRIMARY SERVICE DISCOUNT:
Customers receiving service at primary distribution voltage will receive a two per cent discount of the net billing for service.
MINIMUM DEMAND:
In no month shall the demand to be billed be considered as less than the largest of the following: a. (80 per cent of the greatest demand in kilowatts registered from November 20 through February 20); b. (40 kilowatts).
DETERMINATION OF DEMAND:
The maximum demand in kilowatts for billing purposes shall be the greatest 15 minute demand load during the month for which the bill is rendered and subject to power factor adjustment by dividing the maximum demand in kilowatts by the determined power factor (See Power Factor Below) expressed in per cent and by not more than 95 per cent power factor and multiplying the quotient so obtained by 95 per cent and rounding off to the nearest kilowatt.
POWER FACTOR:
The customer shall at all times take and use power in such a manner that the average power factor shall be as near 100 per cent as possible.
After the consumer's P.F. has been determined by the City, the City will not be obligated to take additional readings until the consumer has taken action to correct his P.F.
The City can take P.F. readings at its discretion.
LOAD CONTROL:
The customer shall cooperate and assist the City in any practical method to control loads during peak period.
TERM OF AGREEMENT:
Service agreement for Large Industrial Service shall be for a term of one year and, if not then terminated by at least six months prior written notice by either party, shall continue until so terminated. Where service is being initiated or enlarged and requires special investment on the part of the Thief River Falls, Minnesota, Municipal Electric Utility, a longer term may be required.
POWER COST ADJUSTMENT:
The rate shown above is subject to a power supply cost rider (See Subd. 8), and State sales tax. The demand charge is the minimum charge and is in addition to any energy used.

Subd. 6. AUTOMATIC PROTECTIVE LIGHTING SERVICE

Availability. Available to any customer in the Thief River Falls, Minnesota, service area for illumination of areas of private property.

Rate No. 1980-7

RATE:
Designation of Lamps: 175 W. Mercury.
Monthly Rate Per Unit: $3.69 per unit.
(Other sizes and types available upon request at prices to be set by the Commission according to an installation, operation, and maintenance formula.)

Subd. 7. OTHER PROVISIONS AND CHANGES.

A. The reconnection charge where service is disconnected due to delinquency or at the request of the consumer is $5.00.

B. For Rate No. 1980-1A (Electric Residential Service-All Purpose Controlled), all consumers that have electric heat installations made before January 14, 1980, will be on Rate 1980-1A (80 per cent load shedding) until November 1, 1980, or until such time before November 1, 1980, when load controls are installed by the City and the proper energy charge is applied.

To be on Rate No. 1980-1A after November 1, 1980, load controls must be installed and the consumer must be in compliance with the provisions of Rate No. 1980-1A or the consumer will be charged according to Rate No. 1980-1.

C. Rate No. 1980-2 (Small General Service Rate-Commercial) all consumers currently on the multi-meter rate will have their meter readings combined and billed in the aggregate.

Subd. 8. ENERGY ADJUSTMENT CHARGE.

There shall be added to or deducted from the net monthly bills of all consumers .0001 (one-tenth of one mill) per kilowatt hour for each .0001 increase above or decrease below the 1979 actual average net cost of power supply (Western Area Power Administration Hydro Electric Service, Minnkota Wheeling Service, Red Lake Electric Co-op Wholesale Power and-or any additional power supply, which shall include City's hydro production, in combination), of $.0117 (Eleven and 7-10 mills) per net KWH as delivered to the consumer (including line loss).

Purchased Power Bills from WAPA, Minnkota, Red Lake Electric Co-op, and-or any additional power sources shall be added together to arrive at total cost of purchased power. The gross KWH available shall be those KWH billed by WAPA, R.L.E.C., and-or any other power supply (which shall include City's hydro production). Total cost of power supply shall be divided by net KWH available (Gross KWH times 100 per cent minus Line Loss) to arrive at average net cost of power supply delivered to the consumer.

SAMPLE CALCULATION

Cost of Power Supply	Amount
W.A.P.A. Amount Billed 1980	$32,596.29
Minnkota Power Wheeling Service	17,101.97
Red Lake Electric Co-op, Firm Serv.	39,727.00
COST OF POWER SUPPLY	$89,425.76
Available Power Supply	K.W.H.
W.A.P.A. 1980	5,700,656
Red Lake Electric Co-op	374,456
Hydro Production	200,000
KWH AVAILABLE	6,275,112

Average Net Cost of Power Supply Delivered To Consumer (Taking into Account 7 Per Cent Line Loss)

6,275,112 K.W.H. x 93 per cent equals 5,835,854 K.W.H.
$89,425.26 divided by 5,835,854 K.W.H. equals .0153

This Year:	.0153

NOTE: In the example, an adjustment of .0036 per K.W.H. would be added to all customers' bills.

Section 2. This ordinance shall be in force and effect for all billings subsequent to the date of adoption hereof.

Passed by the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls this 8th day of January, 1980.

Voting Aye: Aldermen Borsheim, Wysoski, Engelstad, Restad, Womack, Goodrich, and Mayor Carlson.

Ordinance No. 37, 2nd Series
An Ordinance Amending the Sewer Service Rates For Sewer Service Supplied By The City Of Thief River Falls

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, ORDAINS:

Section 1. City Code, Section 3.80, is hereby amended to read as follows:

SEC. 3.80. SEWER SERVICE RATES AND CHARGES.

Subd. 1. General Sewer Service — Metered. Available for sewage contributors discharging domestic strength waste (or less) sewage into the sanitary system:

A. Monthly Service Charge

	Minimum
5/8" or 3/4" (water) meter	$1.55
1"	2.40
1-¼"	2.65
1-½"	3.70
2"	5.90

B. Volume Charge. 30 cents per 1,000 gallons of water delivered to said premises.

Subd. 2. General Service-Unmetered. Available to sewage customers discharging only domestic sewage into the sanitary sewer system. When the utility cannot immediately install a water meter to measure discharges into sewers, service shall be billed at the rate of $3.35 each month. This rate shall be applied to only single-family residential and small commercial customers and approximates the cost of 6,000 gallons per month. If it is determined by the utility that usage is in excess of 6,000 gallons per month, an additional charge of 30 cents per 1,000 gallons will be made for estimated additional usage.

Subd. 3. Multiple User Meters.

A. Charges for sewer service to mobile home courts, apartment houses and other facilities where there are multiple users of the sewer system but only a single water meter, the billing shall be a $1.55 monthly service charge multiplied by the number of units plus a volume charge of 30 cents per 1,000 gallons of water delivered to said premises.

Section 2. This ordinance shall be in force and effect for all billings subsequent to the date of adoption hereof.

Region 1 ADA Meet Here Tues.

Dairymen from Region One of the American Dairy association of Minnesota reelected Merle Nord of Blackduck as chairman, heard reports of state and national promotion plans for 1980 and adopted some promotion plans of their own at the annual meeting held Tuesday in Thief River Falls.

Also reelected at the meeting was secretary-treasurer Bill Harstad of Fertile. Elected vice chairman was Conrad Zak of East Grand Forks to succeed Mayo Rustan of Gonvick. Also serving on the regional committee are state director George Koch of Puposky and alternate director Harvey Baker of Lake Bronson.

Presenting information on the promotional program for 1980 were Cleve Johnson, regional ADA fieldman, and Cliff Markuson, manager of Minnesota ADA. They noted that 1980 emphasis will be on sales of cheese and ice cream with a particular campaign devoted to butter as opposed to margarine.

Dairymen in the region attending the annual meeting discussed a number of area promotional ideas and decided to operate a booth at the Red River valley winter shows as a major emphasis. The regional organization will also sponsor limited appearances by the Region One diary princess during her reign and provide funds for other promotional events.

Markuson noted that the promotional material displayed for dairy product promotion would go into 700 stores in Minnesota and some 18,000 stores nationally. He also reported that the dairy promotion act had been reaffirmed by diarymen last year who voted 78.2 per cent of favor of renewal.

The five-tenths of one per cent deduction on the sale of milk last year resulted in collection of $800,000 more than had been anticipated in the budget, he said, providing added funds for promotional activities which would not otherwise have been possible.

He also revealed that the Minnesota ADA, which was leased office space in St. Paul for 43 years in the same location, is considering either leasing larger quarters elsewhere or building a new building of its own. Money used for construction would come from accumulated reserves of the organization, primarily from profits of diary concessions at the state fair, and none would come from the producer check-off for promotion, he emphasized.

He said office rental in the Twin Cities area averages $9 to $11 a square foot and projected building costs at about $50 a square foot. A building with 10,000 square feet of space is being considered — twice the space considered necessary for current needs. The presently unneeded space could be rented to others on short term leases and available to the ADA if and when it became necessary for the association to use it.

It was noted that Northwest Dairy day would be held in Thief River Falls on June 10 this year.

Dairymen at the meeting also gave approval to a proposal to elect the county dairy boards for three-year terms with the board members serving to elect their own officers. Terms would be staggered initially so that in later years no more than three members of the county ADA board would be elected in any one year.

Income From Jobless Check May Be Taxed

Unemployment insurance benefits received in 1979 may be subject to federal income tax, the Minnesota department of economic security announced recently.

Under the federal law changes, a single person will be taxed if his income, including benefits, exceeds $20,000 a year. A married person, filing a joint income tax return, may be taxed if the combined income, including benefits, exceeds $25,000. If a married person, filing a joint income tax return, may be taxed if the combined income, including benefits, exceeds $25,000. If a married person files a separate income tax return, all benefits may be taxable.

For tax purposes, unemployment compensation includes regular benefits as well as Trade adjustment allowances and amounts received under the Disaster unemployment assistance program.

Every claimant will be sent a form "Statement of unemployment insurance benefits," prior to Jan. 30, stating the total dollars paid. In addition, unemployment payments which total 10 dollars or more in a calendar year will be reported to the Internal revenue service (IRS).

A pamphlet explaining the new IRS law is being mailed to each active claimant. The pamphlet is also available at area Unemployment Insurance offices.

Any questions regarding filing federal tax returns should be directed to the Internal revenue service. Minnesota Twin Cities metro area residents can phone 291-1422. The toll-free number for outstate residents is 1-800-652-9062. Individuals residing in other states can refer to the telephone directory for "Federal Tax Information" listed under Internal revenue service to obtain the toll-free number for their area.

Aliens Must Report Address By January 31

Gerald L. Coyle, district director of the immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, advised today that the annual address report program is again under way.

Aliens have until the end of January to submit their address reports to the government. Forms I-53, for this purpose, may be obtained at any post office or any office of the immigration and naturalization service. After filling it out, place a postage stamp on the reverse side of this card and drop the card in any mail box.

All non-citizens, with few exceptions, are required to report. Those excused from this requirement include diplomats and persons accredited to certain international organizations. Aliens who are minors must also report, but the parent or legal guardian should submit the report for an alien child under the age of 14.

Social security numbers should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so the immigration and naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

SHAPE WEEK '80 and Minnesota school nurse day are proclaimed by Gov. Al Quie in one of his last official acts of 1979. Witnessing the ceremony are president Wanda Miller of the sponsoring School Nurse Organization of Minnesota (SNOM), Lt. Gov. Lou Wangberg and President Donald C. Hill of the Minnesota Education association (MEA), with which SNOM is associated. The fourth annual SHAPE (School Health — A Positive Environment) Week is January 20-26, and the eighth annual Minnesota school nurse day is January 23.

Energy Saver Competition Remains Open

Entries into the fourth annual energy saver's award of excellence competition for non-residential programs are still being accepted by the Natural Gas council of Minnestoa and the Minnesota energy agency. Deadline for entries is January 31.

Purpose of the competition is to recognize organizations which have undertaken programs to conserve energy in the workplace, and to encourage others to join the conservation effort.

The competition is open to any Minnesota organization which has begun or completed an energy conservation program during 1979. Entries will be judged in five categories depending on size and type of business organization. All entrants will receive a certificate recognizing their efforts.

Judges will be selected from the competition's supporting groups which include the Natural Gas council of Minnesota; Minnesota energy agency; American institute of plant engineers; American society of heating, refrigeration anj air conditioning engineers; League of Minnesota cities; Metropolitan council of chambers of commerce; Minnesota association of commerce and industry; Minnesota department of economic development; Minnesota chamber of commerce executives; Minnesota society of the American institute of architects; and the Upper Midwest council.

The natural gas council of Minnesota, co-sponsor of the competition, is a non-profit organization composed of representatives of Minnegasco, North Central public service, Northern Natural gas and People Natural gas companies.

University's Research Unit 10 Years Old

A mini-research hospital within the University of Minnesota health sciences center will celebrate its tenth anniversary Tuesday.

General clinical research center, a controlled environment where research on human patients can be done, contains its own laboratory and kitchen and has a specially trained nursing and dietetic staff.

More than 20,000 patients have spent hours, days or weeks in the nine-bed center since it opened in late 1969. To commemorate its 10 years of work, the center will host an open house Tuesday at 2 p.m. A series of brief scientific presentations on the research being done will begin at 4 p.m. Center is located on the second floor of the Masonic hospital.

Each of the 190 carefully controlled studies done so far is documented in its own thick loose-leaf protocol book. The books contain the detailed, often rigid schedules laid out for meticulously monitoring each patient's nutrient and fluid intake, conducting precise laboratory work, and carefully observing conditions and reactions.

Center nurses are trained to draw, centrifuge and freeze blood samples to save time and thus adhere to strict timetables for collecting data. Dietitians in the center kitchen measure exact amounts of food to the milligram and watch to see that every morsel is eaten.

Physician-researchers must have their investigations approved by a center advisory committee and the university's own committee that monitors the use of human subjects in research.

Currently, studies on cancer treatment and biological rhythms, pancreas and islet cell transplantation for diabetes, and hypertension in children are under way.

The center is one of 80 such research centers funded by the division of research resources of the national institutes of health.

Fiddler Ass'n. Plans Meeting January 19

Red River Valley Fiddlers association will hold its annual organizational meeting at Newfolden city hall on January 19 at 4 p.m. The agenda will include election of officers and directors, financial report, review of bylaws, review of 1979 activities, events for 1980 and matters presented from the floor.

All members and those who may be interested in joining the association are urged to attend. This organization provides members with an opportunity to have a direct influence on fiddle contests and events in the valley area.

There will be a potluck supper at about 6 p.m. for members and their families. Bring whatever you like and share with your friends.

Dancing will follow at 8 p.m. at the Newfolden city hall and is open to the public, with music provided by the fiddlers and their accompanists. The dance will be sponsored by the Newfolden Lions and the general public will be charged an admission. Proceeds will go to the "Seeing Eye Dogs for the Blind" program. Prizes will be awarded to the couple performing the best waltz, and to the couple performing the best two-step.

Lawmakers Ask

County Control Of Fuel Funds

Minnesota House of Representatives energy committee chairman stated recently that during the next legislative session they plan to push for county control over administration of state fuel aid funds for low income families.

"We are disturbed with the current distribution system, which is handled by the community action programs (CAPS)," energy chairman Rep. Richard Wigley of Lake Crystal said.

"A new energy program for the 1981 winter and beyond is going to be a top concern of the 1980 legislature. In this new proposal we think the state should give counties first priority on distributing heating assistance monies," Wigley explained.

Rep. Wigley and committee vice chairman Don Friedrich, Rochester, will work for a system under which county boards would have the option of deciding who can best administer state fuel aid funds on the local level.

"We have some serious questions about the role CAPS play in handling Minnesota's fuel aid monies," Rep. Friedrich added.

"We feel that the CAPS are taking too much of an advocacy role. They are leading the charge for more state funds and broader eligibility criteria. I think it is inappropriate for a federal agency to be lobbying state government," Freidrich said.

"The CAPS as non-profit corporations receive eight per cent of any program's funding in return for their work. The more money appropriated for the assistance program, the more money the CAPS will get for administration," Rep. Wigley noted. "We feel there's a potential for this thing to snowball into another level of government."

"If the federal government wants to continue using the CAPS, that's their business," both Representatives concluded. "But we feel in the case of those counties having the administrative ability to tackle the energy assistance program, the state should rely on the county boards' knowledge of the local community and their ready access to the public.

Schools Close For In-Service, Conferences

Thief River Falls public school classes for students in kindergarten through 12th grades will not be in session Monday and Tuesday. Elementary teachers will have scheduled parent and teacher conferences those days and middle school teachers will be available for non-scheduled conferences with parents.

Teachers at the high school level will be attending the in-service activities scheduled through Northwest educational cooperative service unit (NWECSU). Many supervisors and specialists from the Minnesota department of education will be conducting the in-service sessions, according to Mrs. Edith Etter, chairperson for the in-service activities in the district.

Some of the program topics and presenters on the schedule include the following:

"A Look at Class Size — Creating a Motivating Environment" — Richard Mesenberg, supervisor for elementary education of the state department of education;

"The One Person Art Program — The K-6 Art Program" — Mary Honetschlager, program specialist for art with the department of education and an active member of the Minnesota arts council;

"Using the SELO (Some Essential Learner Outcomes) in Social Studies" — Roger Wangen, program specialist for social studies with the Minnesota education department;

"Math Puzzles — Math Assessment" — David Dye, program specialist for mathematics with the education department;

"Secondary Physical Education — Developmental-Adapted Physical Education" — George Hanson, program specialist for physical education with the Minnesota department of education;

"Planning for Environmental Education — Audio Visual and Curriculum Materials" — John Miller, program specialist for environmental education for the state department of education;

"Motivation Research — Interdisciplinary Curriculum" — Gilbert Valdez, supervisor for curriculum development of the state department of education;

"Sifting of the Arts — Apple II Micro-Computer" — Susan Vaughan, program specialist for music with the state education department;

"Legal Aspects of Discipline" — Dr. Hal Janneck, principal at Red Lake Falls, who recently attended a state-wide workshop on the topic;

"Basic Skills" — Doug Sorenson, regional coordinator for Northwest ECSU, will conduct the open forum for teachers and administrators regarding the basic skills program established by 1979 legislation. Topics for discussion will follow a program overview and include how it will affect the classroom teacher and procedures for involvement;

"Nutrition Education" — Glenna Hanson, Northwest ECSU nutritional education coordinator, will conduct the informational session for teachers and administrators. Topics covered will be how the program started, purpose and services, what is happening, who is doing it, how to get involved and materials available.

Teachers and administrators attending from Thief River Falls and area schools will be given a tour of the ECSU media center.

Benefit Dance At Newfolden Sat. At 8 P.M.

Old-time fiddlers jamboree and dance will be conducted this Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Newfolden community center. Tickets will be available at the door for $2, with all proceeds going to a fund for training leader dogs for the blind. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Anyone unable to attend who would like to donate to the school may do so by leaving donations at the Hardware Hank store in Newfolden anytime prior to January 20.

RUSHING THE SEASON? Passers-by noticing a man working with a garden tiller at the Cenex bulk station on highway 59 south in Thief River Falls Tuesday may have wondered if the glowing descriptions of items in spring seed catalogs have influenced him to get an early start on planting. In truth, he was making use his mentality and a tiller placed in the Cenex warehouse for winter storage to break up an accumulation of snow packed by truck traffic at the bulk station. Ground up by the tiller, the snow could be fed through a snow blower (bottom photo) to clear the driveway. "It may look strange, but it sure beats hacking away at it with a shovel," stated tank truck driver Mike Whalen who was running the equipment.

1980 Budget Is Adopted At Monday Council Meet

Adoption of the 1980 budget was finalized during Monday night's city council meeting — a meeting continued from the January 8 session which was adjourned early.

Overall summary shows the total anticipated budget revenue at $7,103,329; city reserves (debt service and special assessment sinking funds) $104,625; total anticipated budget expenditures, $8,924,179, and the 1980 budget balance or reserve standing at $283,775.

The budget summary by fund shows: General fund — budget revenue, $1,159,888, transfers from liquor fund, $159,485, transfers from electric fund, $568,388, and budgeted expenditures, $1,887,761. Liquor fund — sales and miscellaneous revenue, $1,132,200, expenses and capital outlay, $972,715, transfers to general fund, $159,485.

Water department fund — sales and miscellaneous revenue, $484,000, expenses and capital outlay, $459,597, and 1980 budget reserve, $24,403.

Electric department fund — sales and miscellaneous revenue, $2,783,600, expenses and capital outlay, $1,976,721, transfers to general fund, $568,388, 1980 budget reserve at $238,491. Wastewater department fund — fees and miscellaneous revenue, $201,500, expenses and capital outlay, $194,923, 1980 budget reserve, $6,577. Sanitation department fund — fees and miscellaneous revenue, $230,000, expenses and capital outlay, $221,490, 1980 budget reserve at $8,510.

Airport fund — fees, rent, miscellaneous revenue, $247,400, expenses and capital outlay, $256,401, 1980 budget deficit, $9,001. Revenue sharing fund — receipts and interest earned, $92,301, 1980 budget expenditures, $81,000, 1980 budget reserve, $11,301.

Police relief association — tax levy and interest earned, $29,894, expenditures, $26,400, 1980 budget reserve, $3,494. Debt service fund — tax levy and miscellaneous revenue, $287,261, sinking fund reserves, $30,310, principal and interest due 1980, $317,571. Special assessment fund — tax levy, special and miscellaneous revenue, $455,285, sinking fund reserves, $74,315, principal and interest due 1980, $529,600.

Several agenda items continued from the last and previous council meetings, including the matter of the rat ordinance which was tabled from the January 8 meeting. Inclusions within the ordinance which was adopted following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Ole Engelstad, and seconded by alderman Dr. Don Goodrich, defined the term "rats", declared them a public nuisance, called for the elimination of rat feeding and rat harborages by property owners, and stated penalties placed on those not abiding by the ordinance.

Bids for the snow blower at the Thief River Falls regional airport were discussed by George Singer, airport manager, and Jim E. Walker, consulting engineer.

"Out of nine separate bids sent out, only four responded," Singer said. "We have checked with the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) and with state agencies to assure the snowblower meets contract requirements."

Monies for the snow blower at the airport would include 90 per cent of Airport Development Aid Project (ADAP) funds, and 10 per cent local funds.

The four bids received include Itasca Equipment company of Savage, MN for $124,478, Gustafson Equipment company of Duluth for $122,797, Snowblast of Denver, CO for $135,501, and Idaho Norland corporation, of Paul, Idaho for $145,281.

Roll call vote determined the acceptance of Itasca Equipment company's bid of $124,478.

"There has been substantial work done in providing the snow blower for the airport," Don Carlson representative from Itasca Equipment company said. "The snow blower meets FAA and state department of aeronautics requirements."

Second lowest bid was accepted for the project since the lowest bidder (Gustafson Equipment company) did not conform with contract requirements, according to Singer.

Sanitation ordinance to adjust rates was adopted to begin February 1, following previous council discussion in which an increase in cost for garbage bags was noted, and the continuity of garbage bags for cleanliness was desired by the sanitation committee. Rates were set at $5.75 for 100 bags (reduced from the

Parent Meet On Financial Aid Scheduled

Lincoln high school guidance department, Northland community college and the Thief River Falls AVTI will be sponsoring a financial aid presentation for students and parents from Lincoln high school and the surrounding area in the Lincoln cafeteria on Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Whitey Olson, Lincoln counselor; Ken Wiebolt, Northland dean of students; and Bob Reeve, AVTI pupil personnel services coordinator will be available to explain the entire financial aid program to students planning to attend post-secondary education beginning the fall of 1980. They will explain the various grants, scholarships, jobs and loan programs that are available to all students for all colleges and go over the student application for financial aid.

Application deadline for financial aid is March 1, 1980. It is extremely important for those parents and students who wish financial assistance to attend college to complete the application properly and apply for all possible financial aid. Parents are especially encouraged to attend this presentation.

Social hour will be held from 6 to 7:30 a.m., at which Sen. Durenberger will be available to visit with area people and discuss concerns and issues. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. Public attendance is invited at the social hour and dinner.

City Directory Distributed To TRF Customers

Norman H. Cruse, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Thief River Falls, reports that the 1979 edition of the Thief River Falls city directory has just been released and is now being delivered to subscribers in the area.

The directory, Cruse said, contains a wealth of factual information that is almost indispensable to business and professional people. "With the directory in your possession, you have at your fingertips a record of nearly every adult resident and business concern in Thief River Falls. This information," Cruse said, "is valuable for verifying information, contacting customers, locating sources of supply, identifying new families, improving collections and planning delivery routes."

The directory is actually four separate directors in one volume. Immediately following the statistical and historical story of Thief River Falls, these four separate directories are identified as follows:

(1) Buyers' guide and classified directory;

(2) Alphabetical directory containing listings of business concerns and private citizens, with home owner symbols and telephone numbers shown;

(3) Street directory of householders and businesses, including telephone numbers, home owner symbols, zip code and, the new neighbor symbol which designates new listings or changes on each street; and

(4) The numerical telephone directory, listing telephone subscribers in numerical order.

Thief River Falls rural route directory is also included listing residents with their place of residence shown.

Cub Scout Caber Day On Saturday

All cub scouts from the area are invited to participate in Cub Scout Caber Day this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Caber day is a fun day for cub scouts and their friends. Activities will consist of 14 different skills and contests.

Each boy who participates will earn a patch and caber stick. Cub scouts may come with their den or individually. Cubs may bring a non-cub scout friend. Parents are invited to attend with their boys and watch the fun. Each boy is asked to bring $1 to cover the costs of the registration and patch.

Caber day is sponsored by Voyageur Trails district of the Boy Scouts of America. Louise McLean is the general chairman for the event.

Parent Resource Classes Begin

First in a series of parent resource classes which are intended to help parents better handle their parental roles will be held Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Mark Twain elementary school. Cost is $1 and Edith Etter, elementary teacher at Mark Twain, will lead the session entitled "There's Never Enough Time".

Information will be presented at the session on priority setting and time savers with emphasis on how to arrange time to accomplish parenting goals, family chores and desired extras. A film on general time management entitled "Time of Your Life" will be shown.

"We will be looking at what is called the 'rat race'," Mrs. Etter said, trying to help determine where we are, who is involved and what are the basic needs of an average day. What's the problem, for instance, when the average father spends 37 seconds per day with his small children?"

The parent resource classes are arranged through the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute by coordinators Peggy Johaningsmeir and Henrietta Ness. Mrs. Johaningsmeir started with the program in September of 1978 and Mrs. Ness joined the program in August of 1979. It is funded by a grant from the Minnesota department of education.

Surveying was done through the school and other organizations and agencies to determine top interest areas of adults in questions on being better parents. Home day care and foster parent training sessions are being planned among other activities.

The parent resource series beginning Tuesday through the AVTI adult evening program will continue to mid-April. Most of the sessions are one night events, but nearly all can be expanded, extended or repeated if there is sufficient interest generated in the material presented.

Second course of the series entitled "Values in the Family" will be taught by Judy Rosetta, librarian at Northland community college, on Tuesday, January 29, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Washington elementary school. It is one of the topics which can be extended, and subsequent dates have been established already for those participants who would like to explore the topic in greater depth.

Mrs. Rosetta has worked in Concert Performance Is 'Religious Experience'

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"It's important to me that the audience likes what I'm doing. I want something wonderful to happen for us. . .it's a religious thing for me. For 10 years it's been like that."

Soprano Penny Orloff, who performed as part of the Thief River Falls concert association series at Lincoln high school auditorium last night, was relating her feelings while submitting to a hurried interview shortly after arrival here late yesterday afternoon.

"Audiences on this tour have been wonderful to us," she said of the response to her appearances with her accompanist. "They seem so grateful that we are there. . .like they would be disappointed if we were not to have come.

"In New York there are 20 fabulous things to do every night and people know it. If you don't perform somebody else will or there will be someplace else to go, and the attitude is reflected. Out here I'm the only game in town and I want people to enjoy their experience."

Tuesday night Miss Orloff was not the only game in town, however. A hockey game at the city sports arena drew enthusiasts for that sport and left an auditorium at the school only half to two-thirds filled. The numbers did not detract from the performance or the appreciation of those in attendance. The guest artist responded to her enthusiastic reception with four encores — an unprecedented number on this tour.

When Miss Orloff contracted for the tour a little over a year ago, she began planning the program which she would present. Numbers were selected carefully for several reasons.

"I can't avoid singing diversified kinds of music," she said. "And I happen to like best the music I am performing at the time I am doing it. For this tour I had to select music that meant a great deal

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Good Grief Group Gives Support And Insight In Grief

Good Grief, a caring and sharing grief supportive group, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Fireside room at the United Methodist church.

The group is composed of ecumenical, non-professional lay people who are or have experienced various forms of grief. The purpose of Good Grief is not only for support but to give those attending an opportunity to express their feelings, or to listen and gain insight. It also offers participants the opportunity to realize that their feelings and reactions are "normal behaviors" in relation to the grief experienced.

Welcome to attend the meetings are widows, windowers, parents of children who have died from accidents or long illnesses; divorcees, and those who have lost their parents by death or are suffering the grief of having placed them in nursing homes.

Meetings are also open to anyone faced with the problems of moving to a new community, those coping with the loss of a limb or part of their body, the loss of a job, children leaving home, or any situation that causes grief.

Anyone who has successfully learned to cope with grief is also welcome to attend and share their experiences with others.

Those wishing further information regarding the group may call Cathy Spengler, 681-1483 or Pat Martin, 681-1571.

Speak Out To Be Held Feb. 2 In Crookston

Minnesota committee to plan the White House conference on families scheduled to take place in Minneapolis in June has announced that a regional hearing entitled a "Speak Out" will be held at the University of Minnesota campus in Crookston on Saturday, February 2. Hours of the "Speak Out" are from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Purpose of the "Speak Outs" is to examine the strengths of Minnesota's families, the difficulties they face, and the ways in which family life in our State is affected by governmental policies. Crookston "Speak Out" will give local citizens the opportunity to air their feelings on family issues. Ideas expressed here will join with other Minnesota voices and become the basis for action by the White House conference on Families in the months and years ahead.

Residents of the Thief River Falls area can participate in the "Speak Out" in a variety of ways:

(1) By submitting a written statement;

(2) By requesting a scheduled time to give testimony;

(3) By sharing views during the "open mike" times at each "Speak Out";

(4) By coming as observers; or

(5) By electing a delegate to the White House conference on families in Minneapolis.

To schedule testimony or for further information, contact Deborah Matero at the Pennington county extension office, 681-2116, or write or call the Minnesota Committee for the White House Conference on Families, [illegible] Capitol Square building, St. Paul, MN 55101, 612-297-2435.

SBA Assists In Creating 7,356 Jobs

Paul Jansen, district director of the Minnesota office of the small business administration (SBA), announced recently that 7,356 new jobs have been created by small businesses financially assisted by the SBA in calendar year 1979.

"This reinforces an agency-wide study which showed that employment at small businesses helped by the SBA increased three times greater than the overall employment in the Nation", said Jansen.

Survey of over 21,000 Agency assisted firms showed their employment had risen 9.88 per cent within fiscal year 1979, as compared to fiscal year 1978.

Bureau of Labor statistics figures show that overall employment in that period increased only 3.2 per cent.

Another eight year survey reinforces the SBA results showing over nine million new jobs were created. Of that total, six million were accounted for by small businesses and about three million by State and local government. Nation's 1,000 largest corporations accounted for about 75,000 new jobs.

"These results," said Jansen, "illustrate again the importance of small business in creating new jobs. Results also show that SBA efforts to help those businesses pay real dividends not only in producing profit making companies but in expanding the available job pool."

Enright Will Manage His Store In TRF

Don Enright of Bemidji, who has owned the Ben Franklin store in Thief River Falls since September of 1977, is moving to this city to operate the store. His wife Theresa and their four children will be moving here when housing can be arranged.

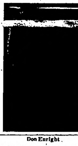
Enright, who also owns the Ben Franklin store in Bemidji and has operated it since Jan. 1, 1976, said he looks at the move to Thief River Falls as a permanent venture and that he has hired a manager to operate his Bemidji store interests.

"We have a major investment here," Enright said of the local store, "and we have just undergone rather extensive interior remodeling. It seems to make good business sense to be close to that investment and to become a part of what I consider to be a very vital and progressive community."

Enright's mother, the former Anna Bergland, was born near Thief River Falls in 1906. His grandfather came here from Norway at age 18. Don is a 1956 graduate of the Northwest school of agriculture at Crookston and a 1960 graduate of the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. He has also done graduate work at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

Moving here with his wife, who will be assistant manager at the store, will be a daughter Kim, 17, who will graduate from Bemidji high school and enroll in the spring quarter at Bemidji state university; daughter Wendy, 15, a sophomore; son Donny, 12, a seventh grader; and son Tommy, 10, a fifth grader.

Enright was employed with Ben Franklin stores for four years in site acquisition prior to purchasing the Bemidji store. He worked with the previous owners of the Thief River Falls store in relocation of the business to the present building on Main avenue.



Don Enright

Bill Dee, previous manager of Ben Franklin stores here for the past 13 years, has indicated an interest in negotiating the purchase of another business in Thief River Falls and expects to remain in this community.

1980 Budget Adopted By City Council

previous 150 bags distributed) for a one year period, with senior citizen rates for garbage bag use set at $3 per year.

Guidelines set for those paying $3 per year follows from age and income of the person, and according to poverty income guidelines, Jerry Wigness, city clerk stated.

"We cannot change the rates for everyone," alderman Ambrose Wysoski stated. "We have to set some type of standards."

Discussion of agenda items continued further with Jim J. Walker, and Jim E. Walker Jr., consulting engineers, regarding the status of street projects, Oakland park bridge, the liquor store, project utility work — water, sewer, services, drainage study, ADAP application for miscellaneous airport improvements, and the airport layout plan and zoning projects.

"The drainage study is currently at a standstill," Jim E. Walker said. "We are in the process of planning a joint committee meeting with the planning commission."

Oakland park bridge replacement from highway 32 to the Oakland park road was discussed by Walter Forney, consulting engineer.

"The area we are concerned with is from the bowling alley to Oakland park road," Forney said. "There is presently $70,000 available from the bridge bond replacement fund for replacing the bridge at this time. We are at the point now of finding dirt to fill in the ends of the culvert located in that area. Estimated cost for bridge replacement is at $149,000. Further monies come from state aid and city funds."

Estimated cost for bridge replacement and its extension to the river, including excavating and back filling is at $250,000.

"Our intent when we set plans for the bridge up was to slightly set it off so it would be adjacent to a new bridge if one is built," Forney said.

The "bridge" discussed would be a culvert put at river level, for possible extension west in the future.

"The question remains to be answered if the city would want to go ahead with paying half of the cost for bridge replacement," Forney said. "But right now we are merely discussing the status of these projects and procedures we may use to restore or replace them."

"I think the Oakland bridge issue has been hanging for five years, and it's time to do something about it," alderman Wysoski said.

Street resurfacing and construction and utility work are two projects that go hand in hand, Forney said.

Work on the service line freeze-up project that was begun last fall, terminated with 50 service lines being completed, according to Forney. There are 35 service projects that yet fall under the street surfacing project.

"We would like to meet again with the utility and street committees to clear up a few questions that yet remain on the projects," Forney said.

"Do we need more hearing on these projects?" inquired alderman Milan Borsheim.

Question was resolved by Wigness who stated, "that another hearing is not necessary unless the projects are expanded."

There is presently $350,000 in funds available to widen First street bridge, which will arrive when the preliminary review of the plans of the street and bridge are completed, Forney said. "The plan is one in a number of projects ready for consideration once preliminary allocation are made."

Although it will be at least three years before work on widening the First street bridge is actually completed, signal lights planned for that area are designed for a widened First street, and installation of the lights could begin as early as May 12, according to Jim E. Walker.

A meeting was planned during the beginning of February with the liquor committee for discussion of costs, and utilization of the Highway 59 liquor store at its present site if a new store is constructed.

Miscellaneous airport improvements included a 300 foot paved road off the end of the runway at the Thief River Falls regional airport, and the installation of an instrument landing system by the FAA in approximately three years, which would be different from the present microwave system presently used at the airport.

Airport layout plan and zoning at the Thief River Falls regional airport concerned the development of a cross strip runway and resulted from a request by Ray Oen to permit the development of housing in zone B north and east of the proposed cross wind runway strip.

"By developing a cross strip runway at the airport, the airport layout plan would be changed and you could modify a zoning ordinance, reduce area in the northeastern section of the airport and still be adequate," James J. Walker stated.

It was resolved that further discussion on the above projects would be continued at the January 21 meeting, (the next regular city council meeting) in which a date would be set for special meetings on the projects.

Adoption of the resolution for the city to enter into a five-year lease with Stewart and Walker for the use of the old water treatment plant building at $660 per month beginning January 1, carried.

The status of city participation in the crossing guard on Main avenue, for students traveling to and from Lincoln high school involved a major question, according to Mayor Bob Carlson.

"We must ask ourselves, 'Do we as the city council (in speaking for the city of Thief River Falls) have any responsibility in assisting the school district in policing this busy crossing?' " Question continued, with the concern over pay given to those involved in the policing, if the city is to assist in the operation.

Final council action was a discussion of the I-500 snowmobile race by Don Grabanski, local coordinator for the event, who stressed the importance of the I-500 to Thief River Falls, since the city serves as a mid-point for racers during the event. A variety of activities were discussed for the event this year, including crazy days for retail associations and snow sculptures for the children Saturday, January 26. Sunday events (January 27) will include a winter softball tournament, a torch light parade, and a snowball dance. Further information on these activities and the I-500 snowmobile race will be provided in later editions of the Times.

State Holds Even In Farm Land, Numbers

Minnesota continues to be the nation's leader in conserving the family farm and agricultural land resources with the same number of farms and land in 1980 that it had in each of the past five years, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin stated.

Annual national farm inventory again shows Minnesota to be holding the line on both human and land resources with 104,000 family farms comprising a total of 30.3 million acres.

South Dakota has 2,500 fewer farms and North Dakota has 2,000 fewer farms than counted five years ago.

Minnesota's other two neighboring states also have lost farming units during the past five years. Iowa now has 119,000 farms, a loss of 11,000, and Wisconsin has 94,000 farms, a loss of 7,000 in the past five years. The other seven Midwest states showed a loss of 47,000 farming units during the past five years.

Nationally since Jan. 1, 1975, farm numbers have dropped by 181,880 or 7.3 per cent and land in farms has dropped by more than 16 million acres or 1.5 per cent. The U.S. totals for 1980 are 2,309,130 farms and 1,046,713,000 acres of agricultural land.

Conference On Tourism Set January 24-25

Governor's conference on tourism for 1980 is scheduled for January 24-25 at the Registry hotel in Bloomington.

"The focus of this year's annual conference for Minnesota's tourism industry will be on plans for the 80s," said Hank Todd, assistant commissioner and travel director for the Minnesota department of economic development. "The majority of the program topics will cover directions for development of the industry in the decade ahead."

The conference opens the afternoon of January 24. Topics for the afternoon include the state's 1979 and 1980 advertising campaigns, recent market research done for the tourism bureau on the travel trends expected in the 80s and the impact of the state's energy supplies on the industry.

Four concurrent workshops are planned on tourism market research, package tour development, tourism region market strategies and promotion methods for communities and travel related businesses. At the same time, a number of state agency representatives will be available for questions on areas such as regulations, licenses, travel information facilities and other state policy relating to tourism businesses.

Governor Al Quie will attend a reception following the first afternoon's program.

Friday morning, January 25, will be devoted entirely to the tourism policy for the state in the 80s as it relates to state government agencies, statewide tourism organizations and Minnesota's six tourism regions. The Minnesota tourism bureau has already begun to gather information through statewide meetings and questionnaires on the areas of greatest concern for the development of the state's travel industry. The morning conference session is designed to give more opportunity for input in addition to making a report on the initial data gathered.

The conference will end with a noon award luncheon to recognize outstanding individuals, businesses and communities for their travel promotion and development efforts in 1979.

Registration for the conference begins at 11:30 a.m. January 24 at the Registry. Registration information is available by contacting the Tourism Bureau, 480 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101, (612) 296-5027. Cost of attending the conference is $20.

Parent Class Series Will Start Tuesday

the area of family values for the past eight years, attending school and church classes, meeting with volunteer groups and others in the values clarification process. Discussion, involvement and participation are used as strategies in the instructional process.

Mrs. Rosetta points out that every decision made is based on beliefs, attitudes and values the individual holds either consciously or subconsciously. Value clarification approach tries to help people build their own value system, and to aid them in developing the building of value systems in their children.

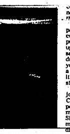
"Unlike other theoretical approaches to values," Mrs. Rosetta said, "but with the process of valuing. We focus on how people come to hold certain beliefs and establish certain behavior patterns. Hopefully we will have fun with dabbling in the process a bit, but more hopefully we may start to think more about what we do and why we do it, and start to make priorities for our own lives."

Other parent resource classes scheduled in the future include the following:

"Developing with Your Child", Monday, Feburary 4; "Being Active with Your Child", Monday, February 11; "Discussions on Discipline", Tuesday, March 18; "Drug and Alcohol Abuse: What Every Parent Should Know", Tuesday, March 25; "Self-Esteem and the Adolescent", Monday, April 7; "Self-Esteem and the Young Child", Monday, April 14; and "Couple Communication", Tuesday, April 15 (group is limited to seven couples and will meet April 12, 22, 29 and May 6).

Advisory board for the parent resources program includes Tippi Benson, Gloria Bjorkman, Mary Ann Hodge, Catherine Campbell, Sue Krause, Gary Erickson, Ken Froshheiser, Joyce Brandt, Rev. Carl Andersen and Suzanne Steidl.

Coordinators Peggy Johaningsmeir (681-5882) and Henrietta Ness (681-2258) also have information available on books about problem areas and parenting skills. They are willing to make this information available to anyone who will use it and to provide programs at meetings of community organizations in order to explain the program and what it has to offer.



REV. DON PERES will be the guest speaker at the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International meeting at the Best Western Motel in Thief River Falls January 21 at 7:30 p.m., following a fellowship hour from 7 to 7:30 p.m. All men and women of all faiths are invited to attend.

Concert Artist Shares Talent Here Tuesday

to me, that I loved to sing. I had to know what I could sing 17 times in three and a half weeks and still enjoy it as much the 17th time as the first.

"How could I presume to get up there and do something I didn't like doing? I better love it, because the audience wants to. . .and they can't if I don't. The audience can sense the mood of the performer. I like to work close to the audience and relate to the people. I want that enjoyment to come across to the people who are listening and watching."

The enjoyment of relating to audiences is one reason Miss Orloff likes recitals and concerts in a different way than she likes opera.

"I love doing opera," she said. "I love the costumes and the chance to scream my head off on stage and the big orchestra. But I miss the eye contact [illegible] and not being able to choose songs that say what I want to say.

"In opera they give you your part, and they give you your costume, and a wig woman puts a wig on you, and a make-up man turns you into who he sees you to be, and the conductor points at you and tells you how and when to sing. It's a fabulous experience — but it's being someone else instead of yourself."

One of the things she enjoys about the New York City opera company is an experiment called "opera a la mode", instituted by Beverly Sills. Opera ticket holders may pay an extra $5 for a box dinner and come an hour or so early for the performance, eating, chatting and being entertained by the artists who will later perform. She brought her guitar and sang folk songs one time, to the delight of the public and the envy of other performers who admitted they weren't able to perform in that way.

Miss Orloff claims she "didn't sing a note" until she was 21 years old. She was never a member of a high school choir and had no exposure to singing. She was a dancer and actress with a passion to perform, but it took a 65-year-old woman to get her started on her musical career.

"She was a chiropractor, astrologer, voice teacher and bowling champion," Miss Orloff laughs in retrospect. "She adjusted my back, read my horoscope and started giving me singing lessons. We never did get around to bowling."

Two years later Penny was in Juilliard School of Music in New York and for seven years she has been performing opera.

"It's just great!" she expounded. "It's terrific to get to scream out all the poison and be patted on the head and praised for it instead of being scolded for it.

"That's what art is, you know," she philosophized. "That's the only thing it is. Art is that holler. . .that scream out to the rest of the universe. And it does no good. Art is of no use—you can't eat it—but it is a necessary thing for human creatures to express themselves."

And the artists, like Miss Orloff, who drive long distances to come and entertain us and bring us some of that holler, are real people with a real purpose.

"We get lonely, very tired, sad, glad," Miss Orloff said. "I've been crabby today. This is the fourth concert in four days with a lot of driving in between. I'll have an hour or two to rest before the concert and I'll be all right.

"I miss my family in Los Angeles — but I've missed them for the seven years that I've been in New York. I'm glad I'm doing what I'm doing, but sometimes it hurts me. But I wouldn't trade it. . .it's worth it to me."

Judging by the audience response here last night, the people of the Thief River Falls area were appreciative of her efforts and sacrifices.

Services Held For Clifford Johnson, 64

Clifford Johnson, 64, of Benson and formerly of Holt, died December 17 at the Chippewa county hospital at Montevideo.

Recruits For Youth Corps Being Sought

Minnesota department of economic security offices now are recruiting young men and women interested in a summer job with the youth conservation corps.

Youth conservation corps (YCC) is a federally administered youth work and education program designed to give employment in the conservation and ecology field. Youth selected can assist in the development, operation and maintenance of the nation's natural resources.

To be eligible, young people must be from 15 through 18 years of age. If selected, they will be paid $3.10 an hour for 30 hours of work per week. In addition, they will receive 10 hours of environmental instruction each week.

Two programs, residential and non-residential, will be offered during 1980. Residential youth will live at a camp near the worksite. Non-residential youth will live at home and commute to the project. Usually youth must live within 30 miles of a worksite to be eligible for non-resident status. Applicants from throughout the state are eligible for resident projects.

Current worksites include Chippewa national forest, Superior national forest, Voyageurs national park, Tamarac national wildlife refuge, Kabetogema state forest and Paul Bunyan state forest.

Interested applicants may apply from January 14 to March 17, 1980, at any senior high school or at any job service office.

Take Inventory Of Power Plant Study Areas

Minnesota environmental quality board (EQB) has prepared an inventory of power plant study areas. Issues raised in the inventory will be the subject of an information meeting in Bemidji on Tuesday, February 5, at 7:30 p.m. A copy of the inventory is available for inspection at Hobson Memorial Union, BSU, and the Crookston library.

"The meetings will be informal discussion sessions," said Allen Jaisle, Manager of the EQB's power plant siting program. "We want to hear from everyone who is interested or concerned about where plants may be located in the future."

Jaisle said the inventory is a requirement of the power plant siting act of 1977 and that its purpose is to guide the EQB in selecting future power plant sites in Minnesota.

"The inventory limits the areas where power plants are likely to be sited using the criteria based on water availability and quality, air quality, land use, transportation and social and economic impacts," said Jaisle.

"The inventory is an attempt to minimize the adverse impacts and to protect the public interest by properly locating plants. It also considers some possible benefits of new plant technologies such as improved air pollution control and the use of waste heat for useful purposes."

Jaisle added that other similar meetings will be held around the state.

Jon Gibson Finishes AF Foods Course

Airman Jon D. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Gibson of 106 Fosse Court, Thief River Falls has graduated from the U.S. air force food services course at Lowry air force base at Denver, CO.

Graduates of the course earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the community college of the air force.

Airman Gibson learned how to plan, prepare and serve food and maintain kitchen and dining hall equipment, and is being assigned to George air force base, CA.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Lincoln senior high school, Thief River Falls.

Homeowners

Your little-used basement can become a living area that makes your family life much more fun.

A few windows, added along with an outside entrance, can spell the difference between its being a neglected and a useful space where family members enjoy many activities, even in bad weather.

A ribbon of narrow windows at foundation level can shed all the light you'll need to make it cheerful. You may even want to install them a few feet out, greenhouse-style, and connect them to the foundation with transparent green roofing material to form a minihothouse for favorite plants. Fluorescent ceiling panels are a good choice wherever windows won't fit.

An outside entrance will make your basement a highly useful living area at far less than the cost of an addition, especially if you excavate for steps yourself and install a permanent, 12-gauge steel outside door like that from Bilco. To find out how easy it can be, write for the free booklet, "How To Add Valuable Living Space To Your Home," to The Bilco Co., New Haven, Conn. 06505.

The rugged and durable door is watertight and electrically welded to last and last. You can open and close it effortlessly because an unusual torsion bar does most of the lifting for you, yet, an inside bolt locks against unauthorized entry.

Garriott On Dean's List

Only one student from this area was included on the dean's list along with 448 other students at Austin Peay state university fall quarter, according to Glenn S. Gentry, dean of admissions and records. Student named was Myra Marie Garriott, Thief River Falls with a cum laude 3.25-3.54 average.

Parasite Linked To Illness At Goodhue School

Investigators at the Minnesota department of health have determined that the parasite Giardia lamblia was responsible for an outbreak of diarrhea last November among employees of the Goodhue public schools.

Mike Osterholm, chief of acute disease epidemiology at the department, said the illness, which affected 31 of the school system's 60 employees, was caused by consumption of home-canned salmon brought to the teachers' lounges by an employee October 29.

Osterholm said that, although salmon consumption was "statistically associated" with the illness, the parasite was not found in any of several unused jars of salmon. All the affected employees have taken or are now taking medication for their illness, and have since recovered. No students ate the salmon, and there were no cases among students.

Osterholm said a laboratory analysis of the remaining salmon indicated that it had been properly canned. The cooking process used would have killed any microorganisms, he noted, including Giardia. Officials suspect that the contamination occurred after the salmon was removed from the jars, but before it was served. Authorities said they have yet to determine how the salmon was contaminated.

This is the first time authorities have been able to demonstrate that contaminated food was responsible for an outbreak of this disease, although large outbreaks caused by consumption of contaminated water have been reported previously. The disease is common among travelers who visit Lenningrad, Russia and backpackers and campers who drink from contaminated lakes and streams in the mountainous regions of this country.

Bruno Attends Nev. Seminar

Dr. Phillip Bruno, chiropractor in Thief River Falls, returned Sunday from Las Vegas, Nev., where he attended a three-day postgraduate study seminar devoted to total health care for the chropractic patient.

One of over 4,000 professionals who attended a special series of classes conducted by nationally-known psychologists and lecturers, Dr. Bruno also received an award for having completed the Grand Tour Organization.

Warns Against Moving Snow On Roadways

Moving snow from your driveway or sidewalk onto a public road can get you into trouble, according to Larry McNamara, state maintenance engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

McNamara said that shoveling snow from driveways and sidewalks onto public roads and streets may be punishable as a misdemeanor (Minn. Statutes 160.42 and 160.27, subdivision 5). Misdemeanors are punishable by a fine of up to $500 and-or a jail sentence of up to 90 days.

Snow dumped, plowed or shoveled onto a roadway can create a real hazard not only for motorists but also for snowplows. Even heavy snowplows, said McNamara, have been damaged when hitting compacted and frozen snow deposited on the highways.

In some parts of the state, snow pushed onto a highway causes snowdrifts which are hazardous to motorists. The person responsible for depositing snow onto the highway may also be liable in a civil lawsuit if damages or injuries occur as a result of the action, McNamara warned.

"[illegible] Minnesotans [illegible] good neighbors and motorists themselves, not to add to the hazards of wintertime driving in this way," McNamara said.

SBA Sponsors Seminar On Subcontracting

Paul Jansen, district director of the Minnesota district of the small business administration, is co-sponsoring a seminar on Public Law 95-507, January 30 at the Fort Snelling employees club. Cost is $50 which will include lunch and all materials.

Public law 95-507 requires government contractors to subcontract with small and-or disadvantaged business firms.

"All firms who contract with the government or small and disadvantaged firms who may want to subcontract with government contractors, must be conversant with the [illegible] of this new law," Jansen said. "This seminar provides an opportunity for the larger firms to insure they comply and the smaller firms to avail themselves of the new markets the law makes available to them."

Conference is co-sponsored by the minority business opportunity committee of the Twin City federal executive board, the Metropolitan economic development association and the local chapter of the national contract management association. Registration and information can be obtained from Mr. Don Showalter, small business administration, 12 south sixth street, Minneapolis, MN 55402 or by calling (612) 725-2080.

Space is limited to approximately 400people, so reservations will be accepted on a first come-first serve basis.

MEA Plans At Legislature Are Reviewed

Major emphasis of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) in its 1980 legislative program is on improvements in PELRA (the public employment labor relations act of 1971 as amended) "to make it fair to teachers as well as school boards," states MEA President Don Hill.

In other proposed legislation, items of concern include reduction of class sizes, school health, teacher terminations, part-time teachers, mobility for higher education faculty, teacher retirement funding, the board of teaching, education in corrections institutions, industrial arts and the schools for blind and deaf.

MEA-suggested amendments to PELRA, essentially, would:

—Make impasse automatic if contract agreement is not reached by July 1 (at present, impasse must be certified by the bureau of mediation services); bargaining could continue;

—Provide unrestricted right to strike 60 days after contract expiration June 30 (at present, teachers have only the qualified right to strike);

—Allow teachers to reject a school board's request to go to arbitration (at present, if a board requests arbitration, teachers must go, and abide by the arbiter's award or strike for a different settlement);

—Provide final-offer item-by-item arbitration (at present, teachers do not have this option, although PELRA provides it for state employees).

"Although this traditionally is not a funding session," says Hill, "there no doubt will have to be some adjustments to meet today's challenges in education. Even if no additional funding is forthcoming this time, the groundwork will be laid for the 1981 session."

Other items, Hill continues, that are of interest to MEA during the session which begins January 22, include:

—Adoption of legislation to make funds available to reduce class sizes in kindergarten through third grade.

—Legislation that provides funding for pupil support services including school nurses, counselors, school psychologists and social workers. This ties in with a recommendation that the legislature direct its attention to the increasing use of drugs among school age children.

—Enactment of legislation that would provide for hearings before unbiased hearing officers in all teacher terminations.

—Legislation to include part-time teachers in bargaining units (at present, teachers who work fewer than 100 days a year and-or fewer than 14 hours a week are excluded from bargaining units).

—Adoption of legislation to include higher education faculty and state residential school teachers within provisions of the mobility incentive laws, which generate turnover through extended leaves, early retirement and part-time teaching positions.

—Legislation that would provide the money necessary to freeze the deficit in teacher retirement funds — now computed at $1 billion. (The deficit is increasing at about $200 million a year.)

—Legislation to make the board of teaching autonomous (at present, the board of teaching is the only state board whose actions can be vetoed by another board — in this case, the state board of education).

—Legislation to transfer the department of corrections' education function to the department of education.

—Legislation that would provide an industrial arts consultant in the department of education.

—Addition of a field consultant for the schools in Faribault for the blind and the deaf.

Soc. Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Roew, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office, will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Seaway Not Likely To Be Open All Year

Possibility of keeping the St. Lawrence seaway open appears to be less remote than ever before, according to information received by the Minnesota wheat council from the army corps of engineers.

Council member Rich Kruse of Breckenridge has participated in numerous meetings and hearings during the past year on the possibility of keeping the lakes open. "It has appeared all along that the Seaway could be kept open," Kruse said.

"The year of 1976 was the worst on record for cold and freezing, followed by cold winters in 1977 and 1978. It appears this year will be the best on record for the ice problems, but the seaway is closed. Closing time is determined by looking at the calendar not long-range or weather conditions," Kruse asserted.

During recent meeting, Kruse has detected support from Candian farm representatives, American farmers, millers and regional port authorities in extending the shipping season to make it year around.

"It is recommended that the Corps' plan with a 12-month season on the upper four lakes and connecting channels and harbors and 10-months on the Welland canal, Lake Ontario and St. Lawrence river together with its environmental plan for action, be authorized for construction as a federal project for navigation purposes," according to a recent Corps of engineers report.

"The Minnesota wheat council will certainly support extended shipping because we can see an additional 50 per cent capacity being made available. More shipping capacity will mean better prices for wheat, sunflowers and other farm commodities in addition to the importation of fertilizers and chemicals," Kruse said.

He pointed out that the wheat council will continue to work toward improved transportation to handle Minnesota agricultural products.

NW Women For Agriculture To Meet Jan. 25

Northwest Minnesota women for agriculture will be meeting in Warren Friday, January 25, at Grand Central Station restaurant. Richard Kappedal from the Cominco American chemical company will show films on the safe use of farm chemicals at the restaurant following the noon luncheon.

Concept of farming with the use of chemicals has developed in recent years because of our need to produce more food for more people, however, we must continue to use them safely and with proper care. The MWA seeks to be a part in offering the [illegible] of chemicals. Meeting and luncheon will begin at noon and is open to all persons.

For reservations call or write Mrs. Mylo Carlson, 382-2952, Angus, MN or Mrs. Jerry Quanrud, 745-4756, Warren, MN 56762.

Luncheon cost will be paid by sponsoring firms.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) is concerned with making working conditions for the nation's miners as safe and healthful as possible.

[illegible] To Be Sold At Only One Rate

Residents of northwestern Minnesota scored a victory when the department of energy (DOE) said Canada would not use different pricing scales for sales of natural gas to the United States, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger.

DOE and the department of state had been engaging in negotiations with Canada to allow that country's natural gas to be sold at different prices in the United States. The effect would have been that Canadian natural gas users in northwestern Minnesota would have been subsidizing purchases in other parts of the country, especially the Pacific Northwest.

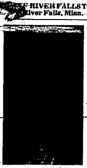
Durenberger complained about the proposal in a letter to energy secretary Charles Duncan. The senator said the so-called "differential pricing" was unfair to Minnesota consumers and urged its rejection. Durenberger's advice has been accepted and the negotiations have been killed.

"Differential pricing would have placed an unfair burden on residents of Minnesota," said Durenberger. "Canadian natural gas has doubled in price in the last year. Differential pricing would have meant another huge increase for persons already strapped by rapidly rising energy prices."

Despite the first-round victory, Durenberger said the price of Canadian natural gas will be increased across the board. "Right now the price at the pipeline is about $3.45 per thousand cubic feet (mft). The projection is that the price will be hiked to at least $4.50 by March. Canadian natural gas users in Minnesota will need some immediate relief to pay the additional cost," said the Minnesota senator.

Durenberger sponsored a successful amendment to the windfall profits tax that will give Canadian natural gas users a tax credit of up to $200 for persons with incomes below $20,000. Similar tax credits were included in the windfall profits tax for persons who heat their homes with oil and propane. "The important thing is to finish the House and Senate conference committee's work on the windfall profits tax so that the people who need relief will receive it," said Durenberger.

Durenberger and members of his staff have been meeting with Governor Al Quie and his energy aides to develop relief programs for Canadian gas users and others who have been hit by the escalating cost of energy. "The windfall profits tax includes $64 billion for income assistance and tax credits for conservation and alternative energy sources. I'm working closely with Governor Quie to make sure Minnesota receives its fair share of that money and that the people who need the assistance receive the money," said Durenberger.



JOHN N. MCDONALD Jr., Walhalla, ND, was elected the 50th illustrious potentate of Kem temple of the Shrine Saturday at the annual meeting held at the Masonic temple in Grand Forks. He succeeds Bernard R. Rognlie of Churches Ferry, ND. Robert Helland of Thief River Falls was appointed a potentates aide.

Taxpayer May Contribute To Election Fund

Taxpayers again this year have the option of earmarking one dollar each on their federal income tax returns for a general fund to meet campaign expenses of the 1980 presidential election, the internal revenue service says.

Last year, $35.2 million was designated from general funds for this purpose. Since the refund was initiated in 1972, a total of $206.7 million has been credited to the fund.

IRS said that marking the designation on a federal income tax return will not increase the individual's tax or decrease the amount of refund.

On a joint return, the election to designate or not designate is available to the husband was well as the wife. Both may choose to designate, both may elect not to designate, or one may elect to designate one dollar to the fund and the other decline.

A designation, once made, may not be revoked. However, a taxpayer who did not make a designation on a return for an earlier year may do so by filing an amended return.

Farmers Asked To Estimate Reserve Grain

All eligible farmer-producers in Pennington county are being contacted to explain major changes in the three-year grain reserve program, according to Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee.

Farmers are being asked to make an estimate of the amount of 1978 and 1979 grain they would probably place in the reserve program at an increased loan rate and with a higher annual storage rate. The loan rate on 1979 wheat has been increased by 15 cents, to $2.57 per bushel. The loan rate on barley will be at $1.65 per bushel, with oats at 98 cents and corn at $2 per bushel.

Storage rates have been increased to 26½ cents per bushel per year for all reserve grain other than oats, which has been set at 20 cents. The price levels at which these grains can be released from the reserve has been raised, as well as the call levels.

Only those producers who participated in the 1979 set-aside program are eligible to enter their grain in the reserve program. As of the end of the year, Pennington county farmers held in excess of two million bushels of farm stored reserve grain.

Chairman Kalsnes urged all producers who have received a letter from the ASCS office to return the post card on or before Wednesday, January 16. An indication of probable intention to place additional grain in the reserve does not obligate any farmer, and the information will be used to arrive at the estimated totals for Pennington county.

MCCL Plans Demonstration At Capitol

As legislators return to St. Paul on January 22, thousands of their constituents will gather at the Capitol to demonstrate opposition to legalizing abortion on demand and support for a human life amendment and other legislation protecting the right to life of all human beings.

Opening day of the 1980 legislative session coincides with the seventh anniversary of the supreme court decisions which struck down abortion laws in all 50 states. Each year Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) has sponsored a rally in which pro-life citizens commemorate the lives lost in abortion (estimated at over a million yearly, for a total of more than seven million by 1980) and urge elected officials to support measures to restore legal protection for the lives of the preborn and other members of society made vulnerable by the supreme court decisions — the aged, handicapped, retarded or "imperfect".

A march around the Capitol beginning at 11 a.m. will culminate in a rally on the Capitol steps, with Rev. Olga Fairfax, ordained Methodist minister from Washington, D.C., as the featured speaker. Rev. Fairfax is a graduate of Wesley Theological seminary in Washington and is the founder of United Methodists for Life, an organization of clergy and laypeople from 50 states and several foreign countries.

As in the past years, busloads of pro-lifers are expected to participate. Many of MCCL's 150 local chapters will also organize similar activities in their communities on January 22.

The median age of U.S. farm residents in 1978 was 33.8, compared to 29.5 for the non-farm population.

India is Shoppers Paradise

India is a fascinating place to visit, whether you're interested in history, beauty, nature and wildlife or inexpensive travel. Here are a few questions and answers to help you become more familiar with that exotic land:

1. What is the capital of India? Delhi, site of the seven royal cities, has been India's capital for 800 years. Today, it is the seat of the world's largest democracy.

2. What is the national dish of India? You might answer "curry," and you could be right, but that is only half an answer because "curry" really means a blend of spices that dominates most exotic foods of India. The dishes vary, depending on what part of India you travel in.

3. Can you attend any festivals during your tour of India? Yes, no matter when you visit, India's always celebrating something, no matter where you go or when you go there. Every temple has a year-long calendar of festivals.

4. Can I see much wildlife in India? Yes. Animals and birds still roam the land, the flora are among the world's most beautiful. The government of India has established a number of sanctuaries to assure that nature remains a part of its heritage.

5. Can I get my rupee's worth in India? It's still possible to travel India—exclusive of the fare to get there — on the unheard amount of $10 a day.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I hope everyone had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year in Pennington County as you may need it when you open your tax statement this year.

On top of a huge increase in land values imposed by our appointment county assessor, who seems to be holding two public offices and with a 30 per cent increase ordered by the state (by 1984 you will be assessed on full estimated values with no reduction in mill rate foreseen), there could be a substantial increase in taxes due in 1980-81 etc. For most of you citizens of Commissioner Dist. 3 smile; things can't be so bad but what they can get worse. (See County board proc. — reported December 10, 1979, TRF Times). This concerns a levy of 10-20 per cent on most all of the ditch systems in our district, assumed to be on top of our regular mill levy which can not go higher by law. This does not seem so bad at first glance so let's suppose your land happens to be enclosed with two and possibly three ditches. This could mean up to 60 per cent levy assessed in '79 payable 1980.

So you may say "So What!" as is often said. "Let the big farmers pay; this can't affect me very much." Stop and think!..

Most all of the holdings in our district and all of Pennington county are family operated, be they five acres or 5,000 acres, one person or a large family holding.

Who in these troubled times of high operating costs, low farm prices (sometimes below cost) should have to bear or even tolerate unfair and excessive levies which could possibly even be illegal. This huge amount of $$ is collected is supposed to be credited to the various ditches.

I always understand that work to be taxed to property had to be done and completed first!! Then the owner given a choice of pay or pro rate over a number of years so they could reasonably pay. I do not think the county board should put these monies in a fund for use in the future!! Most of us are still paying large amounts for work done in the past.

Let's question ditch 76. This ditch was cleaned after 50-plus years, without any landowners request that we know of, at a cost of possibly exceeding $100,000. When we asked who would pay for this, we were told it would not cost us [illegible] to come from general ditch funds — now we pay!

This ditch runs through approximately as much DNR land as private. Is DNR going to pay their fair share of this levy?

Did our co-offers of funds go dry after the ventures and events of the last few years? While ditches were not sprayed, roads were not mowed with the resulting general neglect costing the county, townships and private funds, and at least one law suit that was dropped, with a promise from our county board not yet resolved.

Maybe that we should consider and remember the small ant. He did not have faith the size of a mustard seed, yet with persistence and perseverance he did not have to move a large hill, only a small pile of sand, and his castle was complete. The moral to this seems to be that while most of us are doing with a little less, due to inflation, etc., our county board takes this opportunity to grab a large chunk of sand from the pile, raising their own wages, per diem, mileage, etc.

Was this out of dedication and concern above and beyond the call of duty? The last I heard the per diem equals that of our Senators and Representatives and they represent legislative districts and states. Why not also levy for a retirement plan after two or four years; our representatives have it down to six years.

What happened to honor and integrity?

-s-Lyle Jennings Sr.

NEWS OF SAFETY

FASTER RESPONSE TO EMERGENCIES

New telephone technology will enhance public safety.

If you needed help, how fast would you want it to come?

A new emergency telephone recently introduced by the Bell System—E911—is going to help get assistance faster than ever before to people who need it.

In typical 911 service, all calls are directed to one central dispatcher, who may not be physically located in a caller's municipality. In that case, the dispatcher must manually transfer the call for help to a caller's own municipality in order to notify the appropriate emergency agencies.

With E911, calls are automatically and immediately routed to a municipality's local emergency services dispatcher. This selective routing is done by computer controlled switching equipment which instantly recognizes where the call is coming from and which municipality should provide the emergency service.

In addition to this kind of call routing, the new E911 service can display a caller's phone number and street address on a TV-like screen positioned in front of the dispatcher, thus allowing the dispatcher to assist in emergencies even if the caller hangs up or is unable to talk.

E911 was developed at Bell Telephone Laboratories in conjunction with Western Electric Company, the Bell System manufacturing and supply unit. The service eventually will be offered nationwide by the Bell System and Independent Telephone Companies.

Small Grain Production Increases

Final revised estimates on Minnesota's 1979 production of the four small grains — wheat, oats, barley and rye — show that the combined total was 218.4 million bushels. That was nearly 11.6 million bushels or six per cent greater than earlier fall estimates had indicated, reports Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

Wheat production now is estimated at 90.4 million bushels, seventh highest among all states and over four per cent of the national 1979 crop. That represents an increase by almost 4.7 million bushels or 5.5 per cent above the fall estimate.

Oats production, again second highest in the nation, is estimated at over 84.9 million bushels, almost 17 per cent of the U.S. total. Compared to the fall estimate, that is an increase of 2.3 million bushels or over five per cent.

Sharpest rate of adjustment from the fall estimate was the 7.4 per cent increase in barley production, now estimated at 40.8 million bushels, fourth highest and 11 per cent of national 1979 production.

Rye production was revised down from the fall estimate to 2,275,000 bushels; a 7.4 per cent drop. That is fourth highest among all states and over 9 per cent of the national 1979 rye crop.

Minnesota's greater than average revisions in small grain estimates are due to the adverse weather conditions that plagued all field crops during the entire 1979 growing season and made the harvest one of the latest on record for this state since the shift from horses to tractors.

Final estimates on Minnesota's fall field crops — corn, soybeans, sunflowers, flaxseed, potatoes and sugarbeets — are now being calculated from current survey data and are scheduled for public release on January 15, 1980. Earlier estimates have indicated that 1979 crops of soybeans and sunflower seeds will be new state record highs.

Newfolden And Viking Menus

Monday, January 21 — Submarine sandwiches, French fries, sauce, milk.

Tuesday, January 22 — Tacos, lettuce and cheese, buttered carrots, pudding, milk.

Wednesday, January 23 — Spaghetti casserole, cabbage salad, orange juice, bread, milk.

Thursday, January 24 — Steamed potatoes with butter pats, fish sticks, peas, bread, milk.

Friday, January 25 — Tomato soup, egg salad sandwiches, cheese slices, fruit salad, crackers, milk.

State Third In National Hog Production

Minnesota's December 1 inventory of hogs and pigs, again third highest in the nation at 4.9 million head, was this state's largest for that date in 25 years. State's 1979 pigcrop, 8,006,000 pigs, was the highest on record, agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported recently.

But the economic measure of Minnesota's important pork producing segment of agriculture fell into the negative column, due to a 35 per cent drop in the average value of this year's inventory of hogs and pigs, Commissioner Seetin noted.

December 1 inventory of Minnesota hogs and pigs was valued at $289.1 million, an average of $59 per head. A year ago the 16 per cent smaller inventory of 4.1 million hogs and pigs was worth over $371 million, or an average of 190.50 per head.

Survey data collected by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture on December 1 also shows that Minnesota pork producers intend to continue increasing their contribution to national consumer red meat supplies.

Sows scheduled to farrow between last December 1 and May 31 are estimated at 595,000. That is a 10 per cent increase over the same period last year, and a 35 per cent increase over two years ago.

Minnesota's 1979 pig crop topped the 1978 pig crop by nearly 1.4 million or 20.4 per cent and represented 8 per cent of the nation's 1979 pig crop.

Contributing toward the increased pork production are a current total of 33,000 [illegible] farms reporting hogs and pigs in inventory. That is 2,000 more pork producing farms than were in operation in this state on December 1, 1978. Only Iowa and Illinois lead Minnesota in pork production.

Wenstrom In Washington To Give Views

Gene Wenstrom, Elbow Lake farmer and a former state representative from that area, was invited to the White House to discuss the crises in Afghanistan and Iran. He met Tuesday with Cyrus Vance, secretary of state, and Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security advisor to the President.

"During the past month people from the area have expressed their concerns about the situation in Iran, the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, and the grain embargo to Russia to me. I will be telling those in the White House what people in rural Minnesota feel about these issues," Wenstrom said prior to leaving for the meeting.

"The grain embargo is a very important issue to the farmers of rural Minnesota. Minnesota's farmers are as willing as all Americans are to make sacrifices when our national interests are at stake, but farmers should not be forced to pay an unfairly high price in this situation," Wenstrom said.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), originally created by Congress in 1884 and made part of the then-new U.S. Department of Labor in 1913, acts as the nation's chief economic factfinder in many areas, including data on the labor force, employment, occupational outlook, wages and hours, industrial relations, prices, productivity and occupational safety and health.

Editor Says U of M Daily Loses Money

Student-run Minnesota Daily has been losing money, and any change in the fee collection system that helps support it would harm the paper further, the University of Minnesota board of regents was told recently.

"Right now, the Daily is losing money," said Kate Stanley, editor-in-chief. "It lost $60,000 over the summer."

If the mandatory student fee that helps support the Daily were eliminated or altered, Stanley said, operating revenues for the paper would decrease still more, and that loss would mean a substantial cut in the size of the paper.

"If the mandatory fee were eliminated, the number of students we would be able to educate would go down," Stanley said. The Daily serves as a training ground for student journalists at the university.

The Daily has been the focus of controversy since it published a highly criticized humor issue last June. That issue raised the ire of several groups, primarily religious organizations, and these groups have been pushing for removal of the mandatory student fee for the Daily since then.

Jim Clark, president of the board of student publications, said the change in the Daily's financial status is not a result of advertiser unhappiness with the humor issue. "Because of changes in the economy and changes in the student body, advertising has gone down, and this is not due to any repercussions," he said.

At their recent meeting, the regents heard a progress report from Clark on the steps the board of student publications has taken so far to prevent similar problems in the future.

Clark presented the regents with a resolution the publications board previously passed. That resolution urged the regents to leave the mandatory fee alone. Another resolution to give students the option of channeling their publications fee into a separate fund was defeated by the publications board.

Several regents criticized the resolution presented to them, however, maintaining that the assumptions upon which it was based are faulty.

The resolution states that "full student fee support of the Minnesota Daily is essential to the continued level of service provided" and that "such a punitive action is likely to be held unconstitutional by the courts."

Regent William Dosland, Moorhead, argued that these statements "are not at all accurate, and the conclusion based on these caluses should be studied again."

Clark told the regents that since the June humor issue was published, the publications board has set up a review board that will study all aspects of Daily performance at the end of each quarter.

An editorial management plan written by Stanley has also been put into operation and the board of student publications will probably adopt it as permanent board policy, Clark said.

Management plan requires Daily staff people to "show respect for the religion, racial and ethnic background of all people" and to "refrain from the gratuitous use of profanity in print."

Stanley said that the Daily staff has also met with the university's religious affairs advisory board, whose members have agreed "to help us in thinking about sensitivity and carefulness."

Regents took no action on the new information presented, and are waiting for the report of the internal committee that helps set student fees. A recommendation from that committee is expected in April.

The regents did ask for up-to-date information on the Daily's financial condition and for a clear-cut legal opinion on the constitutional implications of changing the Daily fee.

In other business, the regents heard a description of the process used to select top university officials at the faculty and staff affairs committee meeting. President C. Peter Magrath was asked to describe the process after St. Paul regent Mary Schertler last month criticized the appointment of Nils Hasselmo as vice president for administration and planning.

At that time, Schertler expressed disbelief that there were no qualified women or minority-group members at the university capable of holding the post. Three candidates were recommended to Magrath by the search committee for interviews. Each was a white male.

There is a policy that governs the search committee process, Magrath told the board. The policy was approved in 1976 by the university senate, but is merely an advisory policy.

Magrath said he has chosen to adhere to the policy, but that since it is not a regents' policy, it is not mandatory.

"You can have the best policy on paper, but if you have people in central administration who are intent on circumventing it, it won't work," said Minneapolis regent Robert Latz. Latz was careful to point out that he is satisfied with "current good-faith efforts."

Members of the board recommended that the university senate take another look at the policy and consider adding language specifying make-up of search committees to assure a balance of women and minorities.

The senate already has such an item on its agenda, Magrath said.

The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is made up of 600 leading organizations and individuals in the United States, all involved in the rehabilitation and employment of handicapped people.

GRINDING IN THE NIGHT

An estimated one in 20 adults and three in 20 children unconsciously grind their teeth at night. It is the sound of bruxism. While the noise may disturb spouses or children, it has a far more distressing effect on the sleeper.

Nocturnal grinding can exert thousands of pounds of pressure per square inch on the surfaces of teeth. It can be rough not only on teeth but on the supporting bone, the gums and jaw joint.

For many years, bruxism was attributed to the release of tension from emotional stress. However, many dental authorities today believe that the causes exist in the patient's mouth. Night grinding may be an unconscious effort to correct irregularities of the chewing surfaces of the teeth. Dentists term this a malocclusion. They grind away to eliminate a spot that is too high or to find a comfortable place to fit the upper and lower teeth together.

If you have this nightly grind problem, your first stop should be your dentist's office . . . before you do any serious damage to your teeth.

Big News For Small Companies

A little computer can be a big help for small business.

America's approximately 10 million small companies can get a lot of help from a little computer available at a comparatively small price.

Useful for payroll, general ledger, inventory control, accounts receivable and payable, or mailing-list management, a microcomputer can help a company grow. The machine can make tedious tasks faster and easier, free up key personnel for important decisions and be available all year long, day or night.

One new microcomputer, the TRS-80 Model II, is made by Radio Shack and designed to grow with your company, increasing its memory and abilities as you increase your needs. It's available at some 6,000 outlets across the country.

Experts say this machine has a capacity, performance and reliability never before available in a computer in its price range.

It would seem easy to compute that this computer can help small businesses make bigger profits.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As it is snowing and getting cold. I cannot forget the year's 1977 and 1978. As you all know the early days of November of 1977 15 to 20 inches of snow fell and it turned cold. Then about 10 days later another big snow storm hit us with 30 to 40 inches of snow on the ground making it a hardship for the deer to find feed.

That year I had 240 acres of good sunflowers, most of them joining the game refuge and some southeast of Middle River. So in the next week or two that the deer invaded my sunflower fields by the hundreds.

So many people asked the same question: "How much is the DNR paying you for feeding the deer?" Here is my true answer in dealing with the DNR.

I contacted our local representative and asked him what he was going to do about the deer. He told me to contact the man in charge at Thief Lake refuge. I did. He told me it was out of his jurisdiction to help me.

Again I contacted our local representative by telephone and he told me they had come through with a food plan. They could pay me $200. To me that was an insult; the deer were eating more than that every day. So he advised me to go see the main guy at Lake Agassiz; their deer were eating my sunflowers, too.

He told me his hands were tied; he worked for the federal government but referred me to the St. Paul office of DNR. I did, and in a few days I received a very sympathetic letter informing me to contact their office in Bemidji. It was now the middle of January 1978, so I went there and talked to the man the St. Paul office had referred me to. He was well aware of my problem.

In the mean time a big appropriation of money was sent to Northern Minnesota to provide feed for the deer and he told me that their office had paid thousands of dollars for grain and hay and was also renting bulldozers to make roads where some of the feed could be distributed.

The $200 food plan was still in effect and every Tom, Dick and Harry was sending in claims for feed and damage and was paid $200. Some had it coming and some didn't.

In talking to the man in Bemidji he tells me that in Corn Country many bigger claims have been paid. But here in the northern part sunflowers will return almost as many dollars per acre. Before I left him he said he would contact the Thief River Falls office and try and work something out. So now I'm right back where I started and its February of 1978.

I waited a week and went again to our local representative to find out what he and the man in Bemidji had come up with. He told me he doesn't know why I am making such a big fuss over the sunflowers, that there would be no way I could harvest them in the spring. As it would be a total loss anywhay, why not let the deer eat them?

I told him I didn't think he knew anything about sunflowers, that it was a crop almost like corn; that it could stand over winter and still be harvested in the spring, which I know has been done before with some loss, yes. He assured me if I could prove to him in the spring that there was anything to harvest, I would be compensated for what the deer ate.

So for the time being, that was good enough for me. He had me thinking I was going to get some money out of it. He mentioned no specific amount.

I waited 'till the last part of March of 1978 and hired a rice combine from Waskish. I agreed to pay trucking both ways and so much an hour for combining. I also hired a caterpillar to make a road into the field in order to get the grain trucks there.

The weather was nice; the snow had gone down to about a foot more or less, so we went to work combining. We had no trouble, but there was one big problem — the deer had been there first, and I dare say they had harvested at least 80 to 90 per cent of the flowers. We were able to salvage two small truck loads around the edges and little spots here and there.

I hauled the flowers to St. Hilaire and got about $750. By the time I paid for all the expenses and considered what I received for the sunflowers I came up over $300 short. But I proved my point — you can still harvest sunflowers in the spring.

In contacted our DNR representative and told him I had harvested the flowers, but there wasn't much there. The deer had eaten most of them. He did not have much to say, but that I should present them with a bill. I took an average number of deer, five months of feed at two pounds more or less consumed per head at the market price. I came up with a figure of about $8,000 and I personally presented him with the bill, and how I arrived at that amount of money.

He took one look and said, no way would they pay that much, so I tried to reason with him and said I would be willing to settle for the price of seed and fertilizer. The seed was about $10 an acre, the fertilizer about $15 an acre. It was still too much money, so before I left I said I would take $3,500 — only the price of the fertilizer.

The seed, plowing, discing, planting and many other jobs that go with growing a crop, I would donate. He told me he would see what he could do to compensate me for my loss.

I didn't hear anything for a long time. Then one day I got a letter from the department. It was a form I was supposed to sign and return and I was to get an check for $700. I signed but got no money. About June 1, 1978 I got a letter from some lawyer in St. Paul that it would be against the law to pay me any money.

What I don't understand is, I know there was thoudands of dollars paid out for the survival of the deer, so why didn't I get some of it.

The way I see it, the deer must have a license to steal, but if you want to hunt one, you buy a license. So in answer to the money questions, I didn't get a red cent.

And that is not all. Due to the sunflower loss I was unable to pay my income tax, so the state of Minnesota penalized me $1,000 plus interest due to late payment. The federal was not that tough. I hope this will answer your questions. I thought you would like to know.

Now for the real loss. In the fall I figured this crop would have yielded 1,500 pounds per acre. In the spring one-third loss would leave me 1,000 pounds per acre. There were many farmers that did and that is about average more or less.

So 240 acres at 1,000 pounds per acre I came up with 240,000 pounds of sunflowers. I had a 12 cent a pound contract; they were the edible kind of sunflowers. With 240,000 pounds at 12 cents a pound I came up with a gross of $28,800. Allowing $3,800 for harvesting it would be a net loss to me of $25,000 — a conservative figure.

So for a man like me that has never owned a gun, never killed a deer or shot a duck, I feel it is too big a donation, and that the department of natural resources at least owes me a thank you. I never got one. My only reward from my sunflower field is I kept 500 deer more or less from hunger and starvation.

I had many reports as to numbers of deer, all the way from 50 to 100 or more. One guy flying a plane counted 240 deer at one time early in the morning. I wouldn't know how many during the course of a day. This 240 figure I can back up; this was not my count, but his.

So in closing I would like to ask this question, and I only hope someone can give me an answer:

Who carries the big stick in the department of natural resources? I would like to meet him personally. I have met a lot of them; they are all nice fellows, but no one seems to have any authority. They had me going around in a circle.

Thank You,
-s-Melvin Joppru

DEDICATION & HARD WORK & COMPETENCE — LOW PAY

A recent school district newsletter stated that the district has a "competent, dedicated, and hard working" staff. Salaries in the district do not reflect this feeling. Let's examine some issues.

- LATEST PROPOSALS BY THE TRFEA AND SCHOOL BOARD LEAVE A DIFFERENCE OF $350 PER TEACHER OVER A TWO YEAR CONTRACT.
- TEACHERS ARE ASKING FOR LESS SALARY THAN COMPARABLY SIZED DISTRICTS ARE ALREADY PAYING.
- THE BOARD HAS REQUESTED ARBITRATION DESPITE THE ADDITIONAL TAX DOLLARS THAT ARBITRATION WILL COST.

This comparison shows how much LESS a TRF teacher with an M.A. degree and ten years teaching experience would have made per year if the school board had accepted the TEACHERS' LAST PROPOSAL.

TRF Teacher	$2101	LESS THAN	Bemidji
TRF Teacher	$1668	LESS THAN	Alexandria
TRF Teacher	$1488	LESS THAN	Moorhead
TRF Teacher	$ 261	LESS THAN	Detroit Lakes
TRF Teacher	$4433	LESS THAN.............	Grand Rapids

- The Board has never said the district could not afford higher salaries.
- An arbitration settlement will spend additional tax dollars on both paid arbitrators and a St. Paul attorney.
- Asking for less money than teachers in comparably sized districts are already making is NOT asking for too much.
- The board says "Our fringe benefits make up the difference in salaries." Our next ad will compare benefits.

Michael Engelstad of rural Thief River Falls also spent the weekend there. Mr. and Mrs. Lane were Christmas eve guests at the Charles Ellingson and Marvin Moen homes.

Miss Darleen Melvie of Viking was a brief caller at the home of Mrs. Edith Dyrdal Thursday morning. That afternoon Mrs. Rosalie Mosinski of Thief River Falls was a coffee guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Widing of LaMirada, Calif. were Saturday supper guests at the Steve Steinert home where Delbert's birthday anniversary was celebrated belatedly.

Northland, Crookston Renew Series

A pair of winless college hockey teams, one of which will probably earn a state tournament berth, will square off tonight in the first of four consecutive Wednesday night encounters when Northland community college plays a 7:30 p.m. game at Crookston.

Whoever winds up with an edge in the series will likely finish fourth in the six-team Minnesota junior college athletic association standings and join front runners Hibbing, Mesabi and Rainy River in the 1980 MJCAA state hockey tournament.

Rochester, the sixth MJCAA hockey member, has not been heard from this winter. But it's doubtful the Yellowjackets will move either Northland or Crookston out of the MJCAA tournament.

The Northmen are winless after dropping two MJCAA weekend series, losing to Hibbing 12-7, 15-3 and bowing to Mesabi 13-5, 13-4 Friday and Saturday. The Trojans are 0-6, including a 7-6, 13-5 double defeat at the hands of Hibbing over the weekend and Crookston coach Tom Kelly admits his Roseau-filled line-up is struggling.

Northland, yet to leave the Thief River Falls sports arena, will be on the road again this weekend when the Northmen face the last of the "Big Three" Iron Range teams — Rainy River — at International Falls.

Lakers Surprise Warriors

Biggest surprise to date in Section 8 high school hockey had to be Saturday's 4-3 Detroit Lakes win over Warroad. The Warriors entered the game unbeaten in Section 8 play and were figured easy winners over the Lakers, struggling with a 4-10 points won-lost mark.

Detroit Lakes never trailed, taking a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Mark Caulfield and Jim Hepola and then regaining the lead at 4-2 in the second period on scores by Bill Ries and Pat Johnston after the Warriors had tied the game 2-2.

"After two periods I had to pinch myself and see if I was dreaming when we had that 4-2 lead," said Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest, who told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record, "I guess our No. 1 star out there had to be goaltender Mark Thorson. He played very well in goal again, making a lot of key saves for us. The rest of the kids responded to his play and gave us an excellent team effort."

The game, officiated by Thief River Falls' Buzz Marvin and Curt Ness, was marred by a disqualification penalty handed to Warroad star Eddie Christian at the 9:55 mark of the third period for kicking Thorson. The penalty kept Christian out of last night's key Section 8 battle with rival Roseau.

Warroad will be in Thief River Falls next Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Olson, Fee Publicize Hockey

Radio people Don Olson of KTRF in Thief River Falls and Frank Fee of KROX in Crookston continue to do an outstanding job in their roles as Section 8 high school hockey statistical keepers.

Olson supplies the media and coaches with the weekly Section 8 team point standings, scores and schedules while Fee issues individual scoring feats on a regular basis throughout the winter. Their work is greatly appreciated, but then, what else do radio people have to do? (Just joking, Don and Frank).

In addition to the scoring numbers, Fee also adds several of his own thoughts, facts and findings, including the following information this week:

+Section 8 teams have a losing record outside the section, including a 14-17-1 effort against other Minnesota schools; 10-13 vs. North Dakota opponents; and 0-3 vs. Manitoba.

+Injured earlier this winter, Warroad's Esko Samela dressed for Saturday's game against Detroit Lakes but did not play in the Warriors' 4-3 upset loss.

+Lake of the Woods coach Jerry Drewes, who used to coach the East Side Pee-Wees in Madison, Wis., reports that at the time Madison West Side Pee-Wees had a line consisting of Mark Johnson (currently the leading scorer on the U.S. Olympic hockey team), Pete Johnson (Mark's brother and now a top player for his dad's Wisconsin Badgers) and Eric Heiden (one of the world's top speed skaters). What a line that would be now!

+Crookston people have been saying it for years: if only the two high schools (Central, Mount St. Benedict) were combined. This year is no exception. Combine the two potent offenses and it would be lights out. They are 13-3 combined with a total of 121 goals.

+Fee's personal Section 8 ranking: 1. Crookston; 2. East Grand Forks; 3. Thief River Falls; 4. Mount St. Benedict. "Call me a homer," he says.

Goddard Is Named NCC Coach

Northland community college president Dr. Alex Easton announced this week that Tom Goddard has been appointed as the school's new head hockey coach for the 1980-81 season.

Goddard will succeed Bob Lundbohm as coach of the Northmen. Northland hockey coach since the 1976-77 season, Lundbohm indicated earlier that he would resign at the end of the 1979-80 season.

The unusually early coaching appointment was a strategic move on the part of Easton, Northland and Goddard to give the new coach an opportunity to do recruiting work for next winter.

"I can't help but think it will help our recruiting efforts," said Easton about the early appointment of Goddard, a recognized hockey name in northwestern Minnesota following an outstanding high school career in Thief River Falls that ended with his graduation in 1973 and four letter-winning years with the University of North Dakota hockey team from 1973-77 when he scored 40 goals and collected 59 points for 99 points in 141 games with the Sioux.

Since leaving UND Goddard has continued to play hockey with the Warroad Lakers senior amateur team. He'll continue to play with the Lakers "as time permits," he said.

Goddard said he took the Northland coaching job because "they asked me. I thought it was a good opportunity. I think the junior college program on paper is good, and what I'd like to see is some movement from the junior colleges to four-year schools. There's too many good hockey players who quit playing right after high school instead of taking the advantage of the opportunities they have."

Although Northland has had trouble winning in hockey — just two winning seasons in nine previous seasons of intercollegiate hockey — Goddard doesn't see a problem in establishing a strong team here.

"There's enough good players within 150 miles of Thief River to make a very respectable hockey program," explained Goddard who promises to try and place his players into four-year programs. "If I can take a kid for a year and then move them to a four-year school, that's good. If a kid's good enough, there's a four-year school for him someplace."

Lundbohm, a Roseau native who starred while a member of the first two Northland hockey teams, said he was stepping down as coach because of the demand it took on his time, keeping him away from his family. Lundbohm, who scored a school record 65 points with the Northmen in 24 games in 1971-72, went on to play hockey at Gustavus Adolphus in the MIAC.

Goddard will be Northland's fourth hockey coach. Swede Lund coached the Northmen for their first five years of existence, with Curt Geatz taking over for the 1975-76 season, followed by Lundbohm.

Host State Elks Meet

Family Bowl in Thief River Falls will serve as host for the 1980 Minnesota Elks state bowling tournament starting Saturday and running five consecutive weekends through February 16-17.

Elks members from throughout the state will compete in team, singles and doubles events here. Bowling will take place from 12 noon to 7 p.m. every Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each Sunday.

Any area Elks members not already bowling on a regular Elks team are encouraged to form a team and enter the state event by calling Irv Wilson at 681-1345.

ROUTE TO THE basket for Northland community college freshman Jacki Nelson was blocked by Bottineau defender Michelle Palmer during Monday's women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Julie Anderson of the Northwomen (15), the game's high scorer with 17 points, trailed the play, with Carrie Sollom of Northland playing behind Palmer. The Northwomen snapped an eight-game season-long losing streak with a 47-31 win.

Northwomen Earn First Basketball Win, 47-31

Julie Anderson scored 17 points and Jean Stukel added 16 Monday to lead the Northland community college women's basketball team to its first win of the 1979-80 season, a 47-31 home court decision over Bottineau.

The win snapped an eight-game losing streak for the Northwomen, a streak that began with a 58-43 loss at Bottineau back on Dec. 8.

"They played like I knew they could," smiled winning coach Deb Jacobson who didn't hesitate to call it Northland's "best game by far."

After committing 87 turnovers in weekend losses to Vermilion and Mesabi Northland cut that figure down to just six in the first half against Bottineau to build a 27-14 lead that was never challenged in the second half. It was 31-18 at the 15-minute mark, 35-20 at the halfway point and 42-29 with five minutes left.

Bottineau shot poorly and Northland was there for the rebounds. The visitors made just eight of 73 field goals attempts for an embarrassing 11 per cent and were outrebounded 61-37. Northland was 21-for-69 from the field for 31 per cent.

"Bottineau has some very good shooters," pointed out Jacobson. "They weren't shooting anywhere near their potential, but then maybe the defense we played might have had something to do with that."

Northland's turnovers mounted in the second half and they finished with 26. But it was the third game in three days for the Northwomen, mentioned Jacobson. "We got a little tired," she admitted. "But you can't help but get tired when you play three games in a row."

Weekend conference competition will bring Itasca and Hibbing into the Northland gym for both men's and women's games. On Friday, the Northland and Itasca women meet at 6 p.m., followed by the men's game at 8. On Saturday, the Northland and Hibbing women play at 12 noon, with the men taking the court at 2 p.m.

Like their women counterparts, the Northmen are winless in two Northwest Division counting games against Vermilion and Mesabi.

Prowlers Top Central 6-4

An experiment by Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand provided some interesting results Tuesday in the Prowlers' 6-4 win over a strong Grand Forks Central team in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

In a change of pace, the Prowlers became hitters, with their new-found aggressiveness keeping the speedy Redskins off stride most of the night. The physical play produced 15 penalties — eight charged against Central and seven against Thief River Falls. Five of the ten goals were scored on power plays and two others were short-handed goals.

"One of the things we definitely did different from all the games we've played was to see what kind of a game we'd have if we hit people," explained Grand. "We're not happy with all the penalties, but we are pleased with the play of our forwards in the attacking zone as far as their taking the body — they really stuck it to them, and as a result Central coughed up the puck. We're big enough to play a physical game."

Wade Hoppe and Tom Bjorkman both had four-point nights for the Prowlers with two goals and two assists apiece. It was Bjorkman's open net goal, a bouncer from along the boards at center ice with 28 seconds remaining that finally cemented Thief River Falls' first win in nearly three weeks. The Prowlers, now 6-3, will be at Roseau Saturday to face the defending Section 8 champion Rams, 7-3 winners at Warroad last night. Warroad will be here next Tuesday.

The game started on an ominous note for the Prowlers who gave up a goal while on the power play just 2:11 into the first period. Central's Don Mattson took the puck away from a Thief River Falls player in the Prowlers' end, skated around a defender and faced goalie Bill Jury one-on-one, putting the puck into the upper left-hand corner of the net.

Thief River Falls tied it 1-1 at 12:30 of the first period when Hoppe was in front to put in a rebound on Brian Ranum's long slap shot from the point.

What is commonly referred to as a "garbage goal" put the Prowlers up 2-1 at the start of the second period. The puck squirted aimlessly around in front of Central goalie Mike McKay until Jim Thompson spun, got his stick on the puck and got off a weak shot that nicked McKay's skates and trickled across the goal line at 5;19.

On a power play, Central tied it 2-2 when Scott Purpur used the backhand to beat Jury on a rebound after an initial save on a slap shot from the point at 7:51.

A flurry of activity made it 4-3 Thief River Falls. With a two-man advantage, the Prowlers made it 3-2 when Hoppe, after holding the puck in front for several moments, put a shot through McKay's skates at 10:14.

Central then immediately got itself into another two-man short situation, but this time a major error by the Prowlers allowed Lon Gulberg to rush down the left wing with the puck from a face-off at center ice and he beat Jury high for a 3-3 tie at 10:56.

"Absolutely no excuse for that to happen," said Grand later as he talked about the tying goal. "It made the coach look bad because we had a center back there and they scored from that side of the rink. But it wasn't his fault. We made a terrible error covering their forwards."

But the Redskins were still two men short, and Thief River Falls scored 59 seconds later when defenseman Dave Geatz got off a rifle shot from the blueline.

It became 5-3 at 8:37 of the third period on a beautifully executed power play goal scored by Bjorkman. Paul Drees fed Bjorkman in the slot from the corner and the senior center shot quickly, without teeing the puck up.

Mattson scored his second goal of the game at 11:26 to narrow the gap to 5-4, putting a hard wrist shot over Jury's shoulder 43 seconds into a power play after an unpopular tripping call on Geatz.

Grand said the Prowlers' physical brand of hockey will continue. "Maybe not as physical as this one," he qualified. "We maybe got a

TRF Is 9-3 Winner Over Central JV

Six Thief River Falls players scored Tuesday in a 9-3 junior varsity high school hockey win over Grand Forks Central.

Jeff Milender, Todd Anderson and Rob Blankenfeld scored twice for the winners while Rick Engelstad, Mark Harder and Bill Sampson added single goals.

Thief River Falls, 6-1-1, led 4-2 after the first period and built a 6-3 second period lead.

Prowlers Beat Flyers 68-59 . . .

Win Over Bagley Sets Up Rematch With Pirates

History repeats itself this week when the Lincoln high school basketball team hosts rival Crookston Friday in a 7:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game. The Prowlers boosted their season record to 6-3 Tuesday with a 68-59 victory at Bagley — their third straight win.

"It's the second three-game mini winning streak of the year for the Prowlers who won three straight games to open the season before visiting Crookston Dec. 14 and coming out a 62-55 loser.

Second half of the attractive weekend doubleheader in the Lincoln gym will find the Prowlers hosting International Falls Saturday.

Five Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures in Tuesday's win over Bagley as Kyle Hams scored 18 points, Jim Nyland, Greg Miller and Todd Young all finished with 12 and Mark Schmitke got 10. Brian Larson, a 6-1 senior, scored 20 points for the Flyers.

Things started badly for the Prowlers who found themselves facing a 15-4 deficit early in the first quarter. But they came back to trail just 18-16 by the end of the period.

"It looked like they were going to blitz us right out of there," admitted Peters. "But we went to the boards a little harder and we went to a zone from a man-to-man. That got us going."

Thief River Falls built a 36-30 halftime lead and maintained a 53-49 spread in the third quarter.

"Bagley has a good ball club," pointed out Peters. "I don't think they played up to their potential against us." The loss dropped the Flyers to 6-6 for the year.

Thief River Falls enjoyed a 27-for-51, 53 per cent shooting night from the field, while Bagley struggled through a 23-for-62, 37 per cent performance. Forty-three fouls slowed things down, with the Prowlers going 14-for-23 at the free throw line and the Flyers finishing 13-for-23.

In addition to their dozen points, Young and Miller grabbed 12 and nine rebounds, respectively, to give the Prowlers a slight 32-31 edge on the boards. Thief River Falls also turned the ball over 26 times, to 19 Bagley losses.

Bemidji Outlasts Upset Bid By LHS Girls, 49-44

A Bemidji team that many expect will challenge Detroit Lakes for a North Half Region 8AA title later this winter, fought off an upset bid by Thief River Falls Monday to escape with a 49-44 girls high school basketball win over the visiting Prowlers.

Thief River Falls trailed at the quarter stops 12-10, 24-23 and 34-33, but owned several leads before losing ground in the final minutes.

"We played real well," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "I thought we outplayed them."

Both teams had three scorers in double figures. For the Prowlers, Roberta Engel collected a game-high 16 points, Tara Nicholson had 13 and Ann Goodrich 10. Linda Masse led the Lumberjills with 14 points while Linda Iverson finished with 11 and Pam Gildersleeve 10.

A season-long problem at the free throw line for the Prowlers surfaced again at Bemidji as them made just 12, of 31 free throw attempts. Bemidji was 9-for-14 at the line. From the field the Prowlers for 16-for-50 for 32 per cent and Lumberjills were 20-for-57 for 35 per cent. Thief River Falls finished with a 39-29 rebound edge.

Lincoln junior varsity and freshman teams also lost at Bemidji, with the junior varsity losing 33-29 for a 4-3 season record and the freshmen losing 43-21 for a 2-4 mark.

The Prowlers now 3-4 for the year, will host Crookston Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Junior varsity and freshman games start at 5:45 p.m., with the B squad playing at Lincoln and the freshmen playing at Franklin middle School.

EGF Edges Cards 38-30 In Wrestling

Trailing 26-12, Plummer rallied to take a brief 30-26 lead Tuesday before dropping a 38-30 duel meet high school wrestling match at East Grand Forks.

The Cardinals made a bundle of points on three consecutive middle weight pins by Jay Brekke, Alan Mattison and Blair Gustafson to go ahead of the Green Wave 30-26.

But East Grand Forks' Paul Botun, leading just 2-1 at the time, pinned Kelly Howard with just 44 seconds left in their 185-pound match to put the Green Wave back on top 32-30 and heavy weight Dan Austin made it official with a 1:37 pin of Dave Haugen.

"We wrestled extremely well," said Plummer coach Gary Brantl who had special praise of Brekke, now 7-2-2; Mattison, 8-4; and Gustafson, 6-2. "They did a tremendous job," he noted.

Those three were Plummer place winners in an eight-team Lake Park invitational tournament Saturday when Brekke was the champion at 138, Mattison was third at 155 and Gustafson was second at 167.

Pelican Rapids won the Lake Park title with 175 points, with East Grand Forks Sacred Heart finishing second at 156. Plummer accumulated 76 points for a seventh place finish.

The Cardinals host the Fosston junior varsity Monday at 7 p.m.

Minnesota Twins have enjoyed a 26-6, .813, success rate against Toronto in three years of the Blue Jays' existence. Against more-established clubs, the Twins have played Milwaukee at a 87-60, .592 pace, and Texas at a 179-132-1, .576, clip.

SCORING TWO of his 12 points, Thief River Falls forward Greg Miller put the ball over the reach of Bagley defender Shawn Carter during Tuesday's high school basketball game played at Bagley. Jim Nyland of the Prowlers, who matched Miller's 12-point performance, readied himself for a rebound on the play. Thief River Falls won the game 68-59, improving its record to 6-3 heading into a weekend doubleheader here that will find the Prowlers hosting Crookston Friday and entertaining International Falls Saturday.

Old Mill Park Trails Are Open

Arrival of snow has opened the trails at Old Mill state park. The park, located 10 miles west of Newfolden, has three miles of snowmobile trails, three miles of groomed cross-country ski trails and a sliding area.

Picnic shelter building is open for use as a warming house. There is a barrel stove in the shelter.

The trails are designed and groomed for the two separate uses and trail users are urged to stay on their own trails.

Snowmobile trails are marked with orange diamonds and arrows. Ski trails are marked with blue diamonds and are also marked with signs to give the skier an estimate of the trail's difficulty. Easy trails are marked with a green sign and a gently curved white line. The intermediate trails are marked with a blue sign and a very curved white line.

Trail maps are available at the park entrance.

Radio Shack Wins Muzzy Tournament

Radio Shack of Thief River Falls was a weekend winner in the Mike Muzzy memorial mixed bowling tournament held Saturday and Sunday at the Family Bowl.

Joel Carlson, Dollie Newland, Bess Lang and Tim Erickson were members of the Radio Shack team that finished with a 2,336-pin total in the 30-team event.

Potucek Auto finished second with a 2,334 total, followed by Rundell Electric 2,286 and Dewey's Standard 2,268.

Carlson finished with the high series, a 613 with games of 226, 224 and 163. Emery Wicklander bowled a 604 series with games of 166, 218 and 220.

Rest of the top five series scores included Dale Alling 580, Bob Larson 582 and Ann Yonke 575. Larson had a 243 for high game honors.

Swimmers Beat Lakers 50-32 Monday

A revamped Thief River Falls line-up produced a 50-32 win over Detroit Lakes Monday in high school swimming.

"The kids did a good job," said Thief River Falls coach John Kopari who had most of the Prowlers swimming out of their regular events. "It's kind of fun to go into a meet with a light-hearted attitude and still do well."

The win evened Thief River Falls' dual meet season record at 1-1. The Prowlers have spent most of their time in multiple team events this winter. They were at an International Falls meet last Saturday where no team scores were kept and they'll be at the Fergus Falls invitational this Saturday.

Huskies Lose To Alvarado

Troubled by inconsistent play in the backcourt most of the season, Goodridge received an 18-point scoring night out of guard Neil Race Tuesday, but then the Huskies' front line people failed to match their previous strong play in a 63-54 high school basketball loss at Alvarado.

"Our guards came through, but our big people let us down," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson who watched the Huskies' record dip to 1-11.

Alvarado led at the quarter stops 13-6, 31-27 and 50-39.

The Indians finished with a big edge in shooting, hitting 25 of 47 shots for 54 per cent while the Huskies made just 18 of 56 shots for 31 per cent.

"Shooting percentage is the story of the ball game," pointed out Nelson.

Scott Olson led Alvarado with 22 points. Randy Henrickson of the Huskies, out most of the season with an ankle injury, scored 10 points in about 12 minutes of playing time. He played briefly Saturday in a 46-10 loss to Warren.

"It was nice to have Randy back in the line-up," said Nelson. "Hopefully he'll be back to full strength next week."

That means limited service this weekend for Henrickson when the Huskies visit Argyle Friday and host Strandquist Saturday.

Matt Baab Is Leading Scorer In Section 8 High School Hockey

Matt Baab of Crookston Mount St. Benedict, moved from defense to center, since the start of the season, stands atop the latest Section 8 high school hockey scoring charts announced earlier this week by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

A four-year letterman, Baab scored 18 goals and collected 11 assists in the first nine Blue Wave games for 29 points. In six games at center, Baab has scored 13 goals and seven assists.

His scoring outburst since his shift from defense to center moved Baab ahead of Crookston Central's Bob Clauson who had 17 goals, 10 assists and 27 points in seven games, two less than Baab. Wade Hoppe of Thief River Falls ranks third in the scoring lists after January 12 games with eight goals, 18 assists and 28 points in eight games.

Paul Hennen of Brainerd carries the best goals-against average for Section 8 goalies — a 2.3 figure for seven games. He also has the top save percentage, stopping 135 of 151 shots he's faced for a 90 per cent save mark.

little wrapped up in this one. The objective is gaining control of the puck and not just sticking people. We were overly concerned with frying them on the boards. But that had an effect on them — it slowed them down. Central has a fine hockey team. They have some kids who can really motor."

And despite the ten goals, both goalies drew praise from Grand. "A 6-4 game doesn't exactly look like a battle of goaltenders, yet there was good goaltending in both ends." Jury finished with 26 saves, 14 in the final period. McKay stopped 24 shots.

"It wasn't a masterpiece," acknowledged Grand. "It was a good game from the fan's standpoint."

TEAM ARCTIC SNOWMOBILE drivers Bob Elsner and Jim Dimmerman will be at Eagle River, Wis. this weekend to race in the 17th annual world's championship snowmobile derby. Elsner is the defending champion in the prestigious event that nets the winner the world championship title, $2,500 first place prize money and a new four-wheel drive jeep. Racing will take place Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with the 15-lap feature event scheduled to be held Sunday at 3 p.m.

Bob Elsner Puts His World's Championship On The Line

Bob Elsner

He's a veteran driver and he's the defending champion. But according to Bob Elsner, he'll be just as nervous as a first-time rookie Sunday afternoon when he approaches the starting line for the 15-lap feature race in the 17th annual world's championship snowmobile derby at Eagle River, Wis.

"You get butterflies in your stomach when they line you up for the world's championship race," admitted Elsner. "You're all jitters. I've never gotten over that."

Those symptoms were with Elsner a year ago when he won the prestigious race, accepted as the "world's championship" as the sponsoring Eagle River Lions club dubs its three-day extravaganza that draws the biggest press coverage on the 12-stop Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing circuit.

It's the biggest snowmobile event of the season, and Elsner, along with Team Arctic teammate Jim Dimmerman, are expected to be top challengers for the $2,500 first place prize money and a 1980 four-wheel drive jeep that goes to the winner. Elsner is driving his 1979 prize now.

"It had to be the highlight of my racing career," says Elsner about last year's world championship title. "To every driver racing snowmobiles today, winning at Eagle River would be the highlight of their career."

The prize money — by far the best on the Sno Pro circuit where an $800 weekend would be considered an excellent take — and the added media and spectator attention makes Eagle River the top draw for Elsner and the rest of the drivers. Dimmerman took this year's Heteen Cup competition at Alexandria, but even that highly prized event has to take a back seat to the world's championship.

As defending champion, does Elsner have an edge going into the event. "I don't think so it gives me any edge at all," he replied. "You just get all your mechanic work done and hope nothing breaks down. There is no edge."

Only Mike Trapp and Steve Thorsen have successfully defended their world's championship title at Eagle River, and Elsner says Thorsen, now an Arctic Cat driver after taking his Eagle River races on a Polaris, might be considered the pre-race favorite based upon his consistently strong showings this winter. Elsner, Dimmerman, Scorpion's Brad Hulings and Jacques Villenuve and Alan Decker of Ski-Doo are the top challengers.

But the best driver doesn't necessarily win the race, according to Elsner who says the winner will be the driver who best acclimates himself to the speedy ice-and-sawdust Eagle River track. "It'll be the driver who has his things together who wins; the driver that has the best set-up," explained Elsner.

And it's his set-up that has Elsner concerned right now. With departure time near, Elsner is working on his third engine of the week.

"Right now it doesn't look so good," he said about the prospects for winning a second world's championship title. "But I think we'll be ready."

As the fastest qualifier last year, Elsner began the world's championship race as the favorite and after a slow start, he took over the lead on the fourth lap and held on for the win.

But that nervousness before the race continues throughout the 15 laps and he didn't relax until he crossed the finish line. "You're always wondering if something will happen," said Elsner. "You just never know when something might go wrong with your sled."

Racing will take place throughout the day Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Amateur racing and the Sno Pro 340X event will be held Friday. Additional heats and semifinals will be held Saturday morning, with the top 36 qualifiers racing at 1 p.m. in an effort to earn a spot in the top ten world's championship race Sunday.

In addition to $30,000 in race prize money, the jeep and snowmobiling face, sponsors have sweetened the jackpot, with $1,000 and a trophy going to the high point driver of the weekend; $250 going to the highest finishing amateur in the world's championship race; and $100 going to each lap leader in the world's championship feature.

Cardinals End Nordics' Winning Streak, 50-37

Diane Fisher, bidding to become a 1,000-point scorer, poured in 26 points Monday to lead Plummer past Marshall County Central 50-37 in girls high school basketball, snapping the Nordics' seven-game unbeaten status.

It was the Cardinals' first game in a month following a long holiday break and a postponement last week.

"We were pretty pleased," mentioned Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We haven't played in a long time.

Koivisto mixed up his defenses to keep Marshall County Central off-balance and the Nordics struggled with a 14-for-55, 25 per cent shooting night.

"They just out-shot us," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde whose shot charts showed the Cardinals 20-for-42 from the field for 48 per cent.

Plummer built a 14-8 first quarter lead, maintained a six point edge at halftime, 26-20, and at the end of the third quarter, too, 34-28.

One of the top players in the area, Fisher connected on nine of 15 field goal attempts and was a perfect 8-for-8 from the free throw line in the second half to draw praise from Mjelde. "We just couldn't stop her," he said.

The Nordics also received a strong individual effort from Rosalyn Knutson who nearly matched Fisher with a 20-point effort.

"It had to happen sometime," said Mjelde of the Nordics' first loss.

Poor shooting by Marshall County Central carried over to the free throw line, too, where the visitors made just nine of 24 attempts, including an 8-for-15 first half when Plummer was never awarded a free throw. The Cardinals were 10-for-14 in the second half.

The 7-1 Marshall County Central record will be identical to Grygla's won-lost mark when those two District 32 rivals meet Thursday at Newfolden, with the Nordics completing a busy week Saturday at home against Lake of the Woods. It'll be the only outing of the week for the Eagles Thursday.

Sacred Heart 47
Goodridge 39

Foul problems put Goodridge in early trouble and the Huskies dropped a 47-39 make-up game loss to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Monday. The defeat ended a five-game Goodridge winning streak.

"We got in foul trouble right away," explained Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "If we wouldn't have gotten in foul trouble I'm sure we could have played much better."

Still, the Huskies led at the start, up 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and ahead 24-17 at halftime. But the fouls began to take their toll and the

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

Thief River Falls Bantam B team was a double winner last week in youth hockey, beating East Grand Forks and Hallock.

Rob Raymond, Rick Spong and Chris Blankenfeld all collected three points as the Bantam B team beat a strong East Grand Forks team 4-2 Saturday. Lon Aune scored four times in Sunday's 7-1 victory at Hallock.

Bantam A team beat Grafton 4-2 and skated to a 1-1 tie against Fargo South.

Pee-Wee A team made it three wins in a row with a 10-2 triumph over Crookston, a 3-2 victory over Moorhead and a 7-6 win over Warroad.

Squirt B team split a pair of 3-1 games, beating East Grand Forks but losing to Hallock.

Weekend schedule will find the Bantam A team at Fergus Falls for Saturday and Sunday games. At home on Sunday, the Squirt B team hosts Fergus Falls at 1 p.m. in the old arena, the Bantam B team faces Fergus Falls at 1:15 p.m. in the sports arena and the Pee-Wee B team is tentatively scheduled to meet Bemidji at 2:30 p.m. in the old arena.

Huskies trailed 31-30 after three quarters.

Lisa Abeey scored 27 points for the winners, including 11 points at the free throw line where the Eagles were 15-for-39. Goodridge made 13 of 23 free throw attempts.

Stephen 66
Plummer 55

Stephen was a 66-65 winner over Plummer Tuesday on the Tigers' court.

The loss dampened a 27-point scoring performance by the Cardinals' Diane Fisher who increased her career scoring total to 979 points. She will be looking to joining the 1,000-point club either Thursday at Red Lake Falls or Tuesday when Plummer hosts Oslo.

Stephen capitalized on early foul trouble incurred by Fisher to build a 17-8 first quarter lead. The Tigers led 33-22 at halftime and were up 50-38 at the end of the third quarter. Plummer pulled within three points with two minutes remaining, but then lost ground.

Fisher picked up three fouls in the game's first four minutes. She didn't return to action until the final three minutes of the first half when she quickly scored nine points.

The loss evened Plummer's record at 3-3.

Goodridge 31
Alvarado 29

Goodridge overcame its own mistakes Tuesday to win 31-29 at Alvarado.

"Our passing was really lousy," pointed out Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "And we seemed so slow out there."

Alvarado led 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, but Goodridge went up 17-14 at halftime and led 25-20 after three quarters.

Liz Holz scored 18 points for the Indians, with Mary Jo Klesow hitting 12 for the Huskies.

Goodridge, now 8-2, will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Monday. "We hope the rest will get us going again," said Saurdiff whose team has been slowed by the flu.

LUNCH SERVED

IN A BATTLE for a rebound, the ball eluded both players during Monday's women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Sue Hahn of Bottineau (40) and Karen Sparby of Northland were reaching for the ball on the play. The Northwomen broke into the win column for the first time with a 47-31 win. Northland — both the men's and women's teams — will host Itasca Friday night and Hibbing Saturday afternoon in double header basketball action.

by Stroud

Leech Lake is one of the better winter lakes. Larry Dayton of Walker sent us this early report:

"The ice on Leech Lake is at a point which, if the cold continues, there will be a fair amount of close-to-shore pick-up transportation and installation of fish houses. There are probably 50 to 70 houses now on the lake that were in most cases moved by hand or snowmobile.

Walleye fishing has been extremely good in the late afternoon. One party of four caught 13 walleyes fishing through holes in the ice between 4 and 5 p.m. and strikes have been excellent during that period.

I haven't actually had any spearing reports either good or bad but there are over 20 spearing houses on Uran Bay and a good many more around the Bear Island area and Squaw Point. There are the normal shore-huggers in Shingobee Bay and the Brevik area."

In addition to the walleye, Leech Lake is famous for the winter-caught perch. Many fishermen prefer the winter yellow perch to the walleye for tastiness.

Perch family is divided into three groups: the yellow perch, the yellow pike perch or walleye, and the sauger. All members of the family breed in the spring or early summer.

FARM LAND FOR SALE ON BIDS TERMS

NELSON PARK TOWNSHIP MARSHALL COUNTY

160 acres near Kittson County/Marshall County line, 150 acres tillable, building site.

From Karlstad, Minnesota, located 5 miles West on State Highway No. 11, 3 miles South on Kittson County No. 20, becoming Marshall County No. 1, and ½ mile West to the Southeast corner of the quarter section, and legally described as follows:

> The East Half of the Southwest Quarter (E½ SW¼) and Lots Six (6) and Seven (7), Section Six (6) in Township One Hundred Fifty-eight (158) North, of Range Forty-six (46) West, of the Fifth Principal Meridian, Marshall County, Minnesota, according to the United States Government Survey thereof, subject to easements and restrictions of record or in existence, if any.

Written bids will be accepted at the law offices of YON & Moren, attn/ Martin Berg, Esq., 309 - 3rd Street Northwest, Roseau, Minnesota 56751, (218) 463-1564, until 10:00 A.M., Monday, February 4, 1980. All bids will be opened in the library at the Courthouse in the City of Hallock, Minnesota, at 9:30 A.M. on Tuesday, February 5, 1980. Those submitting the four highest written bids will be given a chance to raise bids orally at the time of the opening of the written bids. All bids should state a total price bid, rather than stating a "per acre" price.

The sale will be by contract for deed with ten (10) per cent of the sale price paid down before the bid is accepted. Nineteen (19) per cent of the sale price will be payable in sixty (60) days. The balance will be payable in five (5) equal annual installments. Interest will be at eight (8) per cent on all unpaid balances.

The buyer may take possession immediately.

The seller reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to waive any irregularities.

Interested parties may contact Richard Anderson, Lake Bronson, Minnesota, or YON & MOREN, Attorneys at Law, (218) 463-1564, for further information.

LEGAL NOTICE

Jan. 16, 1980
Ordinance No. 39, 2nd Series
An Ordinance To Control
Rats and Vermin In The City
Of Thief River Falls

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS ORDAINS:

Section 1. NUISANCE. Rats and rat harborages are declared a public nuisance and shall be removed or exterminated in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 2. DEFINITIONS.

A. The term "rats" shall include all rats, mice, rodents and vermin not regulated or controlled by the State of Minnesota.

B. The term "rat harborage" shall mean any physical condition or place which may provide shelter or protection for rats, thus favoring their multiplication or existence inside, outside, over or under a structure of any kind on any lot or premises within the City of Thief River Falls.

Section 3. ELIMINATION OF RAT FEEDING. It shall be unlawful for the owner, lessee, or occupant of any property within the City to place, leave, dump or allow to accumulate any animal, fruit or vegetable matter, garbage, rubbish or trash in any building or on any premises, improved or vacant, or on any open lot or alley within the City of Thief River Falls, so that the same may provide food or harborage for rats. Any waste material of animal, fruit or vegetable origin shall be stored in ratproof containers with tight fitting doors or covers.

Section 4. ELIMINATION OF RAT HARBORAGES. It shall be unlawful for the owner, lessee or occupant of any property within the City of Thief River Falls to accumulate or store on property within the City of Thief River Falls any building materials, lumber, boxes, cartons or other containers, machinery, scrap metal, junk, raw materials, fabricated goods, and other items in such a manner as to become infested with rats.

Section 5. NOTICE. When any premises are found to be infested with rats or to be a rat harborage, the owner, or the person in possession thereof if other than the owner, shall, upon written notice from the Health Officer or his authorized representative, exterminate the rats and remove all said harborages. Notice shall be served personally or by certified mail directed to the last known address of the person to be served. Should the person served fail to comply with the notice within three (3) days following such service, the Health Officer or his authorized representative shall take all necessary action to abate the public nuisance and cost thereof can be recovered in a civil action against the owner or person in possession of said premises or both.

Section 6. PENALTY. Any person who shall fail to abate a nuisance as set forth in this chapter, or who shall fail to comply with the provisions of any notice provided herein, or who shall resist or obstruct the Health Officer, or his authorized representative, in the abatement of the nuisance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine of not more than $500.00 or imprisonment for not more than ninety (90 days), or both. Each day on which such violation continues shall constitute a separate offense.

Section 7. SEPARABILITY. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid by a Court of competent jurisdiction such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance.

Section 8. This ordinance shall be in force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication.

Passed by the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls this 14th day of January, 1980.

Voting Aye: Aldermen Borsheim, Wysoski, Engelstad, Restad, Womack, Goodrich, and Mayor Carlson.
Voting No: None.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

How The Presidency Has Changed

The Office of the President has evolved in ways that might amaze the Founding Fathers.

Herbert Hoover — like all our Presidents before him — set aside days of each week to meet with the public. George Washington was assisted by two aides — one of whom was part-time, the other full-time — whose salaries he himself paid. (Not until 1857 did Congress appropriate funds for a Presidential clerk.) President Cleveland personally answered the White House phone; Wilson occasionally typed his own speeches.

Today, the American President is probably the most powerful elected official in the world. In fact, the extent of his power might daunt the framers of the Constitution, who designed a system of separation of powers, checks and balances, to guard against the concentration of great power in a single person.

Does our Chief Executive wield excessive power? Or does he have enough to get the job done? Why and how has the Presidency changed so dramatically?

The debate, the questions and the paradoxes surrounding the American presidency will be explored on television in "Every Four Years," a series of three programs to be presented Jan. 23, 30 and Feb. 6, 9 pm EST, on PBS. The series will launch public broadcasting's election year coverage.

These three programs are, surprisingly, television's first historical study of the most influential elective office in the world. "Every Four Years" was made possible by grants totaling nearly $500,000 from the Sun Company and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

The series will probe not just the political science of the office but the underlying psychological needs of the citizenry on one hand and the psychological needs of those who seek and realize power on the other.

Reviewing the evolution of the office, "Every Four Years" will present a look at how it has expanded, especially in our time; the individuals who have served in the office; and those who have advised. The result of a specially conducted Gallup survey explores how the Presidency is perceived by the voters, and what Americans want in — and from — a Chief Executive. The series will also examine how the Presidency works, and how Presidents have sought to solve the increased requirements of the office through vastly increased personal staff — itself both a help and a danger.

Yet, ironically, the build-up of counter pressures has eroded the ability of the President to get things done. The personality politics of television, for instance, may get a man elected, but they make it difficult for him to govern because they erode the power bases that in the past quietly got things done. The loss of party discipline, the rise of single-issue pressure groups and a more critical press all mean that the President is hindered in functioning effectively — but the public expects, more than every before, that he is the man who must "get things done"!

Credit Offered Through T.V. Courses At MSU

Three courses broadcast over Prairie public television this winter will be offered for credit at Moorhead state university.

Two of the courses, "Project Universe" and "The Growing Years" will air Saturday mornings on KFME-TV beginning January 26. Both are products of the University of Mid-America, a consortium of midwestern colleges.

"Shakespeare on TV," a British broadcasting corporation and Time Life television project, will feature six William Shakespeare classics on weekday evenings beginning in late February (watch your television schedule for exact dates). This is a continuing series that will bring all 37 Shakespeare plays to television within the next five years.

All three courses will be available for college credit through Moorhead state's continuing education division. Along with the television programs, students will be given reading and writing assignments and will meet on campus for three or four Saturday discussion sessions. Courses may also be taken without credit, with study materials available through the university.

"Project Universe," a four-credit astronomy course, will run Saturdays from 8 to 9:30 a.m. Jan. 26 - April 19. Course will briefly survey the history of astronomy, examine closely the current state of knowledge on the solar system and then peer into the future with a look at interstellar flight and communications and some speculations about the destiny of the universe.

Course will be taught by a team of nationally noted astronomers and will include a few Saturday afternoon demonstrations at the Moorhead State planetarium. Dr. Walter Vollmers, chairman of the department of physics and astronomy here, will run the Saturday sessions on campus and will be available to answer student questions throughout the quarter.

"The Growing Years," a four-credit psychology course, will be broadcast from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Jan. 26-May 3. It's a study of child development aimed at parents, teachers, counselors and anyone interested in how human beings grow from conception through adolescence. Demonstrations of theories and research in child development that can be applied at home, in counseling or in school will be included in the 15-week television course.

Dr. R. H. Chang-Yit, chairman of the psychology department at Moorhead State, will run the Saturday sessions on campus and will be available for student questions.

"Shakespeare on TV," a three-credit English course, is the second season of a public television project that will broadcast new productions of each of Shakespear's 37 plays. About 700 colleges and universities are expected to offer courses this spring based on the series.

Six Shakespeare plays opened the series last spring. This season it will present "The Tempest," "Twelfth Night," "Hamlet," "Richard II," "Henry IV" and "Henry V." Dr. Marie Tarsitano, an assistant professor of English at Moorhead State and a specialist in Shakespearian drama, will teach the on-campus sessions.

To register, or for more information about these television courses, contact the Moorhead State continuing education division at 236-2181.

North Dakota state university will also offer credit for these courses along with another Saturday morning class, "The Ascent of Man." This course, tracing the great scientific monuments of human invention, will run from Jan. 26 - April 19 at 9:30 to 10:30 Saturday mornings. "The Ascent of Man" was written by Jacob Bronowski, a senior fellow of the Salk institute of biological studies at San Diego.

46-Year-Old Is Oldest Student In UND Law School

She spent 13 years as a housewife, raised four children, belonged to all the proper civic groups and tried to keep the house nice and tidy too. When the kids were all in school, on top of all the rest, she took a job as a secretary.

"I loved it, loved all those years," she said.

But after 21 years, her buzzing picture-book marriage fell apart. "I didn't even know anyone who was divorced," she said. "My social life, the routine, all my friends disappeared. It just all stopped."

Over 40, alone — all her children were grown now — and paying rent in an apartment for the first time, she watched her dreams of mid-life comfort fizzle away as she added up her weekly paycheck as a secretary.

It could've been the story line for a heart-wrenching country ballad. But Pat Gulsvig, at 46, and after three years of night school at Moorhead state university, is now the oldest first year law student at the University of North Dakota.

"I love life," she said, explaining why her attitude didn't hit the skids after her 21-year marriage did. "Not enough people do."

A familiar face to public television watchers here as a part-time community events announcer on KFME's "Peek-at-the Week" show, Pat's now on her way to a career in law. Before her marriage ended, though, the closest she ever thought she'd get to a law office was the waiting room where she worked 10 years as a legal secretary.

Pat graduated from Moorhead senior high school in 1951 and attended Dakota Business college before getting married in 1954. It was what she always wanted.

"I feel sorry for all those women who have to choose about marriage now," she said. "In my day, we didn't have that choice. It was the only proper option. But I loved motherhood and it's too bad that so many women now are going to miss all that."

Pat became what mothers were expected to become: busy at home and in the community. She joined the ladies aide and the PTA. She taught Sunday school. She was a secretary to Dilworth's city planning commission and belonged to a gaggle of other social groups.

She was also a frequent speaker at Christian women gatherings, which wasn't out of character. Since she was 17 and for the next 25 years Pat was a rotating regular on KFGO-radio's "Christian Women Speaks" show.

But after the kids were all in school, she wrestled with a typical trauma: what to do with those long, empty, unchallenging days. "The housework and all that civic stuff wasn't enough," she said.

She enrolled in a patchwork of adult education courses, learning to sew, paint and even play the guitar.

And when that wasn't enough, she brushed up on her shorthand and landed a job as a legal secretary.

"I didn't have to work," she said. "I wanted to."

But when the divorce came seven years later work ceased to be a pasttime. Although her salary as a legal secretary wouldn't creep much over $12,000 if she kept it up another 20 years (she was near the peak of the pay scale), it at least paid the rent, she said. But not much more.

"If I was going to live alone and be self-supporting, I knew I couldn't do this much longer and still stay happy," she said. "How could I ever afford to take a vacation or buy a new car? I was determined to be self-sufficient and comfortable too."

She wasn't completely unprepared. Before the marriage broke up, Pat started taking night courses at MSU. "I just got tired of reading pop novels and not learning anything. I think I have a pretty good mind and fortunately I started putting it to work at school. It saved me."

When she realized that her single income wasn't enough, she began studying in earnest, enrolling in the university's external studies program. It's designed specifically for adults who want to earn a college degree studying part-time. She kept working full time days, but kept plugging away at night school for three years.

It wasn't easy. "For one thing, I got no encouragement at the office," she said. "Maybe I shouldn't have expected any. But I did."

And being pratically a grandmother, it took some extra spunk just to step into the classroom.

"Every single course I took, my heart was in my throat when I walked through that door. I just knew all the heads would turn and the kids would be wondering what this old lady is doing here. I just had to learn to say 'so what.'

"At times I thought it would have just been easier to have stayed married. And until it happens to you, you really don't take notice of just how many divorced women there are. There's a lot. And so many are lonesome, unhappy and just casting about. I mean, what choices are there there after a divorce: marry again, move in with a girl friend and share expenses?

"Nope, I just decided that I deserved better and went after it."

Pat, however, earned her college degree faster than most. Not because she skimped or anything. She just had an accumulation of knowledge and experience at 40 that most college students don't have yet. And because of that, she acquired a big chunk of credits without having to take any classes.

External studies program at Moorhead state will give adults college credits if they show competencies in certain fields. According to the program's philosophy, someone who's spent years at a worthy trade, profession or hobby deserves certified credit for what they've learned.

"But it's not that easy," says Audrey Jones, who heads external studies program at the university. "Adults who earn these credits," she said, "must prove their competencies through comprehensive testing or evaluation by the university's faculty."

Pat earned more credits this way than most external studies students at MSU — over 90, nearly half the 190 credits it takes to graduate. "I never realized how much I already knew," she said.

From what Pat learned in 10 years as a legal secretary, she earned bona fide university credits in business law, political science, office management and more. She earned credits in speech for her work on radio and television. She even earned credits in industrial education because of her experience as a ham radio operator, a hobby she picked up from her husband.

After three years of shuffling a full time work and part-time school schedule, Pat finally graduated this year with a 3.46 (B plus) grade point average and a degree in business office management.

"When I was up on stage waiting for my diploma, I just knew someone was going to take it away and say 'I'm sorry, but we made a mistake.' "

But no one did and Pat was so proud that she wore her graduation gown to a restaurant that evening to celebrate.

Pat passed her law school entrance exams soon after and is now one of 16 women and the oldest student in the 103-member first year law class at UND now. She has a single room in a dormitory there and shares a community bathroom on her floor. And like most students, she'll be looking for a summer job this year. Pat has a student loan of over $9,000 that she'll have to pay back after her three-year program in corporate law.

"I don't dwell on that (the loan) much," she said. "It spooks me. But at least I have the confidence now to know that I'll be able to pay it back and still have a comfortable and interesting life ahead. It could have all fizzled away, but it didn't. I wouldn't let it."

For the next three years Pat's going to be studying and catching up on a career that wasn't even in her daydreams a few years ago.

Says she: "You really have to want to. And I do."

A NEW WORLD

One hears complaint about the secularism and materialism of our day. The world as we know it seems enshrouded in a web of selfish concern.

In our lifetime scientific exploration into space has opened the door to the Universe . . . a world that is far more than "the world as we know it." This newest world doesn't have to be like its predecessor. Some earnest astronauts have felt it to be a religious environment.

We ought to be preparing our children spiritually for this newest world. Whatever may be its dimensions, whatever excursions it may offer adventurous souls . . . the need for faith and commitment will be greater than ever.

Today in Christian churches and Christian homes there are men and women being trained who will make theirs a better world than we have known.

MEA Plans At Legislature To Stress PELRA

Tracking down the family tree in Scandinavia is the focus of a study and travel package offered this summer by the Heritage education commission, an independent group promoting interest in Red River valley history and culture.

Called "Adventures in Ancestry Abroad," the package tour includes study materials and pre-trip workshops on how to trace a family history plus a round trip flight from Fargo to Norway this June.

Trip, scheduled last fall, was originally priced at nearly $1,000 a person. But a new group flight package for 30 reserved seats has cut the cost to just under $700.

Flight to Oslo is scheduled to leave here June 13 and return July 5. Included in the package is a pre-trip workshop, dinner and lodging at the university the day before and after the trip and group lodging and a banquet in Oslo the night before returning home. Once in Norway, members of the group will be allowed to search out their ancestral roots on their own.

Heritage education commission was created three years ago by Dr. Roland Dille, president of Moorhead state university. He appointed its 14-member board to stoke local interest in the heritage of Red River Valley people. Commission has since sponsored a variety of cultural events dealing with the region's history, including the family history workshops that are held at Moorhead State each fall.

In preparation for the trip Moorhead state is offering two special programs:

—A three-credit course in "Scandinavian Culture and Civilization" that will meet for Saturday lectures in March, April and May.

—"Family History Research-Scandinavian," a four-credit independent study course that will meet once on the evening before the Oslo trip.

Also, the heritage education commission has assembled an information packet detailing: how to trace ancestors in various countries, available local reading materials on family history, library resources, and travel hints on how to save time and money researching family roots in Scandinavia.

For copies, further information or to make reservations for the Scandinavian trip, contact Moorhead State division of continuing education at 236-2181 before March 1.

An Opportunity Seized

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald:

Contrary to popular belief, the Kremlin is not a ship of fools. After the recent happenings in Afghanistan, I doubt if many will argue this point. To date it is estimated that over 30,000 Soviet troops have entered the Middle Eastern country with only one purpose in mind — a takeover of that nation's government. The Soviet move couldn't have come at a better time, at least as far as they are concerned. Afghanistan is bordered by the USSR to the north, and Iran to the west, and interesting configuration particularly during a period of crisis and instability within Iran.

By choosing this time to stage their invasion of Afghanistan, the Russians have scored twice with a single shot. They have accomplished their first active takeover since the military occupation of Czechoslovakia in 1968, and at the same time, they have caught the United States at a time when national attention is focused on the Iranian situation — a combination of events that the Kremlin knows will lessen U.S. hostility towards Russia for their actions.

But the simple facts cannot be overlooked. The Soviets have blatantly and forcefully invaded another nation. The situation is made even more severe by the fact that the Afghan invasion marks new Soviet movement in the direction of the oil-rich middle east, a region vital to the West for both raw materials and strategic purposes. As such, we view President Carter's use of the Washington-Moscow hotline as appropriate, and his strong assertion of U.S. position in the invasion as necessary, if not a bit weak. Carter's terming of the action as a grave threat to peace is a predictable but necessary action that will serve the purpose of alerting U.S. allies to the position of the United States and to the possibility of a further heating up of the controversy should the Russians choose to press the issue.

Recent Soviet accusations that the deployment of U.S. made missiles in Europe, a decision made at the recent NATO conference, is a threat to peace, would seem to be out of place in light of the action taken last week. The NATO move was a security move, while the Russian move is one of aggression and hostility, resulting in the execution of the previous ruling family of Afghanistan, and the takeover of that nation. We join the rest of the free world in condemning this action by the Soviets and in supporting the U.S. government in its efforts to protest, if not rectify the matter. We are certain, however, that our protestations will fall upon deaf ears as it is our belief that the Soviets will under no circumstances surrender control of their newest province. We hope that this will serve as a reminder to our own people that our national defense must be second to none, and that nuclear superiority is but one facet of a complex issue. The Russians, in their takeover, used no nuclear weapons, but instead exercised that one area where they are undeniably the world's only superpower — conventional forces. The most convincing U.S. response to the Afghan situation could be a strengthening of U.S. conventional military forces in preparation for potential warfare. This is what the Russians understand and this is where they are clearly superior to the United States.

Quick Turnabout

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

One of the fastest turn-arounds in American politics in the nation's history has been the popularity or decline in popularity of the two leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Up until he declared his candidacy not long ago, Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, according to the polls, was virtually a runaway choice for not only his party's nomination but the whole ball of wax.

But since then, a combination of "foot in mouth" disease, the Iranian crisis and the spectre of Chappaquiddick has haunted Kennedy. Right now the polls show the two men are virtually neck and neck in popularity, and Carter is threatening to turn what promised to be an exciting race into a route.

The surprising thing is that Carter has done very little to enhance his image aside from playing a cool hand in the Iranian crisis. His rise in popularity and Kennedy's rapid decline is more a matter of Kennedy goofs than of Carter's positive moves.

There's an old expression that if you give a man enough rope, he'll hang himself, and that could well apply to Ted Kennedy.

He's not only made some unfortunate statements that have kicked away some of his earlier support, but he's proved surprisingly inept on the podium, and his "All American boy" image is losing much of its earlier lustre.

Political pundits aren't too surprised at the turnabout at the polls, since nearly all observers agreed that once Kennedy declared himself and was forced to make statements, his popularity would slip. As long as he could remain aloof from the political scene and pick and choose his entrances, he came on like the knight on the white horse. But he's an active candidate now, and things have changed much more rapidly than anyone had anticipated.

Right now, Jimmy Carter has to be regarded as a strong bet for not only renomination but re-election as well. If it comes to pass, he can thank not the Iranian, but also Kennedy's shortcomings.

Strength In Unity

Thomas L. Kimball, retiring after 20 years as head of the National Wildlife federation, concludes that the most important lesson he has learned in more than 40 years in the conservation movement is that there is strength in unity.

"Whether we are hunters, hikers or bikers, campers or butterfly fanciers, when an alarm sounds for one of our resources we must act together," he said.

"We cannot afford the luxury of saying, 'that is a wilderness issue and I am primarily interested in solar energy' or 'that is a wetlands problem and I am primarily interested in upland game birds'. No man is an island; we are all diminished when any part of our natural inheritance is lost. So when the alarm bell sounds, don't ask for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee, It tolls for us."

Unity of purpose and effort can not be underemphasized as a force in accomplishing a given objective. Numbers do not necessarily mean unity, however, and a large group with diverse interests may be no more effective than a smaller group with a more singular goal.
